Gale Darkens Marin; State Rivers Rampage

Sun Gives A Brief Respite

Battered, frequently powerless and reeling like a hapless prizefighter from 19 consecutive days of rain, Marin County got a brief rest today but was preparing to slug it out with at least one more storm scheduled to hit tonight and tomorrow.

Steady rain and gale-force winds pounded away at the county's already softened midsection again yesterday. More than two inches fell in many parts of the county and the winds toppled trees in several locations, including one which narrowly missed killing a San Rafael man and his wife.

LESS FLOODING

There was a positive side. Flooding yesterday was not as extensive as earlier in the month, mainly because the heaviest rain fell during low tide rather than at peak tide as it did two weeks ago when Highway 101 was virtually blocked for three hours by bay waters.

But super-saturated hillsides continued to slide around the county yesterday and Inverness was isolated when a slide closed Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Bear Valley. Downed trees and a flooded Corte Madera Creek closed Sir Francis Drake Boulevard in Ross for several hours also.

130-MILE WINDS

Donald R. Frost, county public works director, said that despite yesterday's downpour, there were no new major slides other than the one which sealed off Inverness. Old slides continued to creep onto roadways and threaten hillside homeowners, Frost said, particularly in Larkspur where three houses on Eliseo Drive remain perched on their precarious sites above Via la Cumbre.

Winds hit 130 miles on Mount Tamalpais and 60 miles per hour in the Sausalito Yacht Harbor. In Novato, Ross and Belvedere, there were reports of roofing being blown off in the high winds.

TREE HITS HOME

The gusting winds toppled a 120-foot cypress tree and sent it crashing onto the San Rafael home of Joseph Filippo, owner of the Filippo Construction Co., at 215 Mountain View Avenue. The huge tree landed on the bedroom roof directly over where Filippo and his wife were sleeping. Limbs from the tree punctured the ceiling and protruded into the home but the major part of the tree was supported by the roof.

"I just thank God the roof held," said Filippo. "It would have squashed us and we'd have

Major Routes Closed

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Heavy Friday night rains accompanied by strong winds flooded Sacramento area rivers and closed a number of highways.

Shasta County, where about 100 people were evacuated near Redding and Anderson, was declared a disaster area by Norman A. Wagoner, civil defense chief and chairman of county supervisors.

Sections of major highways, including Interstate 80, highways 101, and 128 and coastal route 1, were closed.

WEATHER BREAK

But by morning, county officials looked at generally clear skies and noted that river levels were lowering or at least steady.

Overnight reports from some counties:

SHASTA—Civil defense, Red Cross, Salvation Army and other volunteers worked until late evacuating about 30 families to motels and then placing sandbags along the swollen Sacramento River. Federal Bureau of Reclamation officials were releasing water from the Keswick Dam at a rate of 15,000 cubic feet a second. Several small bridges over tributary streams are out, county officials said.

MENDOCINO—Sheriff's deputies said Highway 101, between Ukiah and Willits, closed from mud slides. Coastal Highway 1 closed south of Elk when part of the highway washed into a canyon. Slides and flooding closed Highway 128 between Cloverdale and the coast. Deputies said that by early morning, the Russian River had dropped four feet in as many hours.

Stuffed Birds At Mill Valley Debate

Proponents and opponents of Mill Valley's planned small craft harbor in upper Richardson Bay met today in another attempt to work out their differences.

"We are here to get as much fact, opinion and feeling about the harbor as we can" Sally Garoutte, Mill Valley planning commissioner and chairman of the workshop meeting, told the 60 persons who had assembled.

Mrs. Garoutte said the meeting was designed to distribute information about the proposed facility to "as many persons as possible" and to clear up any misinformation which people may have.

She said the city's official bodies "need to know what the goals of the community are" before they make any decisions on harbor development.

Planning Commissioner Edward Farrell used maps to describe existing conditions in the harbor area and present city policies regarding development.

"This isn't going to be a solution session, but consideration of problems and possibilities," he said.

Richard M. Russell, a spokesman for the Mill Valley Coalition said he felt no serious problems would arise "if everyone comes here with the intention of doing the right thing."

The coalition claims that in developing the harbor, planned since 1958, ecologically valuable marshlands and mud flats will be filled and a shallow-water small boat recreational area for children will be destroyed.

Mrs. Elizabeth Terwilliger, who said she represents "all the children of Mill Valley and the birds," brought a number of stuffed fowl to the meeting to show which species would be threatened by loss of existing marsh-lands in the harbor area.

Farrell gave a short history of harbor development plans and touched on problems such as water pollutipon from boats and flood control.

The remainder of the informal meeting was to be devoted to opinions and proposals from individuals in the community and persons representing various groups in the Mill Valley area.

Egyptian Bombers Invade Israel, Hit Three Points

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Egyptian bombers with fighter escorts attacked three locations in the Israeli-occupied Sinai peninsula today, including a raid on El Akrish, the region's largest town.

An Israeli spokesman said the strike at El Arish, 26 miles west of Israel, was the closest Egyptian bombing attack to Israel in 22 years. He said it was the closest since 1948 when Egyptian planes hit Tel Aviv.

Iraqi and other Arab planes, but none from Egypt, made attempts to bomb Israel during the 1967 six day war but were thwarted by the Israeli air defense.

Cairo Radio said the jets struck Israeli artillery and ammunition depots at East Kibrit and Al-Shat in the southern sector of the Suez Canal.

Israeli troops killed 10 Arab guerrillas in a clash early today near the Biblical sin city of Sodom south of the Dead Sea, a Tel Aviv spokesman said. It was near the same area where an Israeli tank column swept across the Jordanian border last Tuesday in a 20-hour anti-guereilla operation.

Israel acknowledged both the raids on the southern sector of the canal and an earlier attack on El Arish, a city of 30,000 persons on the Mediterranean coast 120 miles east of the Suez Canal. El Arish contains the Israeli military government headquarters.

Israel said the raid on El

Fighting Renews On Viet Mountain

SAIGON (AP) — New fighting was reported today near the base of Black Virgin Mountain north of Saigon and in the U Minh Forest deep in the Mekong Delta. Both regions have long been enemy strongholds.

The U.S. Command also said that about half of the 29 enemy rocket and mortar attacks reported throughout South Vietnam during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today were concentrated in Tay Ninh Province, the province in which the mountain is located.

Senate Presses Bills To Help In Crime War

WASHINGTON (AP)—In the year's first Saturday session, the Senate today took up a massive drug control bill intended to provide the Justice Department with new tools to crack down on the illicit narcotic traffic.

"Under this new law we will impose severe punishment for the professional criminal in the drug trade while providing more flexible penalties for the less serious drug offenders," said Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn., the bill's floor manager.

The bill provides for "no knock" narcotics raids by law enforcement officials, sets up categories of drugs and dangerous substances, creates a commission to study the long-term effects of marijuana and overhauls criminal penalties for those convicted of drug abuse offenses.

"The new penalties will allow the judge to use his discretion in imposing sentences for drug offenders," Dodd said. "It will allow more severe sentences in the case of pushers and traffickers in heroin and a lesser sentence of up to one year for offenders involved with the simple possession of marijuana."

The Senate began consideration of the measure after passing Friday a bill to control organized crime.

One basic thrust of the measure passed by the Senate Friday is to bring federal enforce-

U.S. Warns Crackdown Due On Soft Drinks Additive

WASHINGTON (AP) — Food and drink manufacturers have been told they will have to stop using brominated vegetable oils unless they can prove within six months that the common type of additive is being used at safe levels.

The Food and Drug Administration served the notice Friday on the basis of Canadian studies showing the food additive had caused heart damage in rats. There is no evidence the oils are harmful to man, said a spokesman for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

It was just three months ago that HEW Secretary Robert Finch banned cyclamates from general food and drink use after it was found the artificial sweetener caused cancer in rats.

Brominated vegetable oils are stabilizing agents used to prevent separation of ingredients in some types of citrus-flavored soft drinks, with smaller amounts in some varieties of orange juice, ice cream and bakery products, officials said Friday.

The U.S. action came one day after the Canadian government ordered an immediate tenfold reduction in approved levels of the oils in citrus-flavored drinks.

The additive had been one of 680 on a government list allowing virtually unrestricted use without any laboratory proofs of safety.

Concern over cyclamates caused the FDA to begin a review of the special list.

Mister Major Bows Out As Private

AUGSBURG, Germany (UPI) — An American civilian masqueraded for months under a soldier's name to serve with the Army in Germany, the Army newspaper Stars and Stripes said Saturday.

A spokesman for the 24th Infantry Division in Augsburg confirmed the basic facts of the case but declined to give further details.

The civilian went to his company commander's office Nov. 25 and said he was not Pfc. Bob Addison as his identity papers indicated, but David Major of Gary, Ind., a civilian, the newspaper said.

He said he agreed to switch with Addison to complete Addison's three-year stint of Army service early in 1969, when Addison was home on leave from his unit at Fuerth, Germany, Stars and Stripes reported.

The newspaper said Major wanted to leave the United States for some reason and Addison wanted to get out of the Army.

The civilian who called himself Major had served a stint with the Army in Germany in 1967, so he knew the ropes. On his return to Germany as Pfc. Addison he was sent to a new unit which did not know the real Addison.

Major had a hard time convincing the Army he was an impostor, the newspaper said but the photograph and fingerprints on his Army identity card did not match his own, so they finally believed him.

But Major was without money or passport, so for more than six weeks the Army kept him in barracks, providing food and lodging, but no pay, while they decided what to do with him.

Finally about a week ago, the civilian was allowed to leave the barracks. He went to the American consulate in Munich and telephoned his father in an attempt to get him to pay his plane fare back to the United States.

"I don't know whether my father will send the money," Major told Stars and Stripes. "He didn't really seem to understand what was going on."

He said he turned himself into the Army in November because he heard the real Addison had been caught and was back in the Army.

"I figured the Army wouldn't pay two men with the same name and serial number for long, so I decided to turn myself in," he said.

PENALTY FOR OVERTIME PARKING?

It's either the world's largest artificial ice cube, or a penalty for overtime parking. Authorities in frigid Amherst, Mass., don't know whether the residents of this house near the Amherst campus did this themselves to their car before going out of town, or whether students did it as a prank during recent subzero weather. The "post" at the right is the car's radio antenna. (AP Wirephoto)

Grand Jury Will Probe Union Killing

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A federal grand jury will convene in Cleveland Tuesday to probe what U.S. Atty. Robert B. Krupansky calls "the broadening aspects of the Yablonski investigation."

Krupansky called Friday for a grand jury investigation in the slayings of United Mine Workers insurgent Joseph Yablonski, his wife and daughter. Three Cleveland men have been charged with first-degree murder in Pennsylvania, where the slayings occurred.

Krupansky said the probe would take several days and would call witnesses from states other than Ohio. He declined to say what other states were involved.

JULY DATE CITED

FBI warrants say plans to kill Yablonski were being made as long ago as July 19. Charges against Claude E. Vealey, 26, Aubran W. Martin, 21, and Paul E. Gilly, 36, stem from that date, according to the warrants.

The three Cleveland men are accused in the federal warrants of conspiring together July 19 and agreeing with each other to travel from Cleveland to Clarksville, Pa., for the purpose of "corruptly and violently, by force, killing Joseph Yablonski."

Yablonski, 59, his wife, Margaret, 57, and their daughter, Charlotte Joan, 25, were found shot to death Jan. 5 in their Clarksville home. Authorities said they apparently were killed early Dec. 31.

DATE WITH PROBE

The FBI warrants say that at the time he was killed Yablonski was scheduled to be a witness before a federal grand jury in Washington, and that the "object of the conspiracy was to obstruct and impede the due administration of justice."

FBI scuba divers, with the aid of Pennsylvania State Police, searched the Monongahela River Friday near the Yablonski home.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Massacre Suspects

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army said Friday 34 soldiers and former soldiers are under suspicion or have been charged in connection with the alleged My Lai civilian massacre in Vietnam.

Names of only four of the men have been made public. At least 19 of the 34 are civilians.

Nixons To Conccert

THURMONT, Md. (AP) — President and Mrs. Nixon will attend the 70th anniversary concert of the Philadelphia Philarmonic Orchestra tonight after traveling to that city by the one year-old Metroliner train.

Nixon, his wife, their daughter Julie and her husband, David Eisenhower, spent Friday night here at Camp David and were to return to the White House by helicopter before the President and Mrs. Nixon board the high-speed train.

In Philadelphia, the orchestra and its conductor, Eugene Ormandy, are each celebrating their 70th birthday anniversarys today and the Philadelphia Academy of Music is 113 years old today.

Autobahn Trouble

BERLIN (AP) — East German harassment of West Berlin traffic because of West German meetings in the city continued today for the fourth day.

At Helmstedt on the West German border, officers said, trucks and cars were moving into East Germany but those arriving from West Berlin were delayed for long periods before they could leave East German territory.

Demos To Reply

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats will respond to President Nixon's State of the Union address and citizens from across the country will discuss their questions and concerns with the party's Senate and House leaders in a Feb. 8 telecast.

A caucus of Democrats agreed Friday on the program's format. Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., party whip, said the show will not be a rebuttal to the President's speech, but "a view of the state of the union through the eyes of the people who are living in the state of the union."

Tokyo Wants Rain

TOKYO (AP) — Shinto priests said traditional prayers for rain and sent 500 balloons skyward, entreating the gods to break a drought which left Tokyo and the eastern seaboard of Honshu island parched for the 48th day today.

Area residents their wells going dry, are buying water from roving trucks. Fire officials have issued warnings that the parched area is becoming a tinderbox.

Weather forecasters said today it might rain Wednesday. Tokyo's last major drought in January 1967 lasted 40 days.

Jumbo Late Again

LONDON, (AP) — A Boeing 747arrived 57 minutes late in London today on the new transatlantic jumbo jet service from New York.

A Pan American airways spokesman said the delay was caused by an air traffic ontrol holdup before takeoff from New York's Kennedy airport.

The big jet, which suffered delays for the third straight day, carried 231 passengers.

H-Bomb For India?

NEW DELHI (AP) — The Indian government has begun studying the costs of building a nuclear weapons system following persistent demands from within Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's ruling Congress party, the New Delhi daily newspaper Statesman said today.

Joseph Smith To Lead Mormons

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Joseph Fieldin, Smith, a descendent of the founder of the Mormoi church, has been chosen 10th president and prophe of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

Smith, 93-year-old father of 22 children, was selected Friday by the Mormon Council of the Twelve Apostles to succeed David O. McKay, who died Sunday.

Smith

His selection must be ratified by the world's 2.8 million members, but this is only a formality.

Harold B. Lee, 70, was named to succeed Smith as head of the council.

Smith, a small man with intense blue eyes, is a noted theologian and and church historian famed as an interpreter of church doctrine and author of a score of religious works.

He became an apostle 60 years ago while his father, Joseph F. Smith, was president. His cousin George Albert Smith, preceded McKay in the presidency. His great-uncle was the prophet Joseph Smith, who founded Mormonism in upstate New York nearly 140 years ago.

Youngster Gains Reagan's Ear

SACRAMENTO (AP) — A nine-year-old critic of Gov. Reagan will have a chance to voice his views Tuesday when he is scheduled to meet with Reagan and several top administration officers.

Kenny Fried of Palo Alto recently wrote a letter to Reagan criticizing the State Water Project and Reagan invited the boy to come to the Capitol for a briefing.

Wednesday, Reagan is to attend a meeting of the state college board of trustees in Sacramento and Thursday he will hand out awards for top state winners in the "Voice of Democracy" oratorical contest sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Liner On Block

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Sky-rocketing operating costs have forced American President Lines to sell the S.S. President Roosevelt.

APL announced Friday that a Greek firm, Chandris Lines, appears to have the inside track among potential buyers. However, if that deal falls through, APL said it intends to find another buyer.

The liner is now on a 92-day world cruise and is due here April 1. No further voyages have been scheduled under the APL flag.

The sale, which is subject to confirmation by the Federal Maritime Administration, is for a reported $1.8 million.

APL has two other passenger liners, the President Cleveland and Wilson, which it intends to keep operating.

Mansion For Sale

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 23-room mansion of Episcopal Bishop C. Kilmer Myers, located in San Francisco's fashionable Marina District, is for sale.

Confirmation was given Friday by a spokesman for the financially troubled Episcopal Diocese of California, which encompasses 10 Central California counties.

The action follows an $80,000 slash in the diocese's 1970 operating budget, attributed by the spokesman to a general decline in parishioner support.

Doctor Strike Ends

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)— Argentina's physicians went back to work today after a 24-hour strike kept an estimated 40,000 of the nation's 45,000 doctors at home Friday.

The Argentina Medical Federation, which called the strike to protest what it called low pay, poor working conditions and lack of consultation in establishing public health policies called the walkout a success and said practically all the doctors throughout the nation heeded the walkout call.

Illegal Evidence

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— The California Supreme Court has ruled that the Adult Authority can consider inadmissible evidence in determining whether or not to revoke a prisoner's parole.

Justice Raymond E. Peters dissented in Friday's 6-1 vote by the high court in the case of Ralph Martinez, a prisoner at Folsom.

He was convicted of selling narcotics in 1955 and was paroled in 1962. He was arrested the following year and found guilty of possessing heroin. In 1965, his heroin conviction was reversed because evidence introduced at the trial was obtained in an unconstitutional search.

The charges were dismissed against Martinez but the Adult Authority revoked his parole. The high court refused to allow Martinez' release on habeas corpus.

G.E. Truce Sought

NEW YORK (AP) — J. Curtis Counts, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, says he'll work through a third consecutive weekend in search of a solution for the 13-week-old strike against the General Electric Co.

The strike has idled 130,000 GE employes in 135 cities. Twelve unions are involved.

Mayors in many of the cities have asked that President Nixon act personally if the strike's end is not in sight by Thursday.

No Women Priests

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Women cannot be ordained as Roman Catholic priests an Italian theologian said Friday in the Vatican paper L'Osservatore Romano.

The front-page article by Rev. Divo Barsotti was clearly a response to increasing speculation by liberal Catholics about a female priesthood.

Barsotti said the main reason women could not be ordained is that priests are "other Christs" and Christ was a man.

Nigeria Pulls Crazed Troops From Biafra

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Reports reaching Lagos today said military leaders had begun replacing the victory-crazed 3rd Marine Commando Division with 1st Division units in the former secessionist area of Biafra.

Earlier reports said the marine unit had deteriorated to the point where Ibo refugees and former soldiers were arming themselves to assure themselves of food.

Relief officials said the condition was so chaotic in Orlu that food stores could not open.

Reports said 1st Division troops were moved into the Orlu area and were moving on south as the 3rd Division was pulled back toward Port Harcourt, its headquarters.

White House Opens Possible Pandora's Box On Satellites

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House policy statement threatens to touch off a battle among the nation's communications giants over who is to control a domestic communications satellite system.

The White House proposed Friday that anyone with the money and technology be permitted to launch a domestic satellite communications system. It sent a message to this effect to the Federal Communications Commission, the agency which must now decide who can operate such a system.

With the backing of the White House, industry sources say, firms hoping to launch domestic satellite communications are expected to begin actively soliciting business, especially from the three major television networks.

The networks could offer the biggest source of revenue initially. They have proposed creation of their own system in an effort to reduce the expense of transmitting programs over American Telephone & Telegraph land lines.

Other potential users include news agencies, newspapers, computer service companies, Western Union, airlines and cable television firms.

Frank Stanton, president of CBS, said the White House statement is "practical, realistic, and should remove the roadblocks which until now havs been responsible for delaying a domestic communications satellite system."

There is presently no such domestic system. Television programs transmitted "live via satellite" result from the global system created by the Communications Satellite Corp.—COMSAT—that was established by Congress in 1962. It is an international operation with 72 participating nations, a spokesman said.

COMSAT issued a statement Friday saying it will "file promptly with the FCC for authority to proceed with domestic satellite service."

The agency said it is the only one authorized by Congress to launch communications satellites and that "establishment of a commercial satellite system by any other U.S. entities other than COMSAT would require new legislation."

It declined to say whether it would go to court to halt any private efforts to establish a domestic satellite system.

On Wall Street, the White House announcement triggered heavy sales of COMSAT stock and it closed at $45 per share, down $6.75.

The technology necessary for a domestic system has existed for years. But the FCC delayed action pending a White House policy statement.

A special presidential commission chaired by Eugene Rostow recommended in late 1968 that the government approve a single system to test the market. However, the report was downgraded by incoming Nixon administration officials, a source said, and the FCC waited for the report issued Friday. That White House policy statement was signed by Peter Flanigan, assistant to the President.

Billion-Dollar Cleanup Bill For Great Lake?

CHICAGO (AP) — An expert estimated Friday that the cost of cleaning the filth from Lake Michigan would be more than $1 billion.

President Nixon pledged in his State of the Union message Thursday a $10 billion drive to combat water pollution.

The state of Illinois alone "has needs of over $1.5 billion," C. Wallace Poston, director of the Great Lakes regional office of the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration said. Poston becomes commissioner of Chicago's Department of Environmental control Feb. 1.

Others in his organization pegged the cost at $2 billion to $10 billion.

Federal officials, together with authorities of the four states which border the lake—Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana and Michigan—agreed on a cleanup plan in 1968.

By December 1972, all communities are supposed to have waste treatment facilities. Industries are required to have completed pollution control devices. Various bans on pesticides, combination sewers and storm drainage and dumping are scheduled to be enforced.

"I don't think Lake Michigan is irretreivably lost," Poston said. "There's a lot of clean water in the middle of the lake. But there are localized areas where you're giving it hell. We have to act and act fast."

Unofficial groups are not so optimistic.

Anthony D'Amato, an assistant professor of law at Northwestern University and an advisor to the Northwestern Students for a Better Environment, said it is impossible to put a dollar figure on the cost of cleaning up Lake Michigan. The current proposals, he said, are avoiding the issue.

Yippie Accuses Policeman Of Proposing Bomb Plot

CHICAGO (UPI)—"Chicago Seven" defendant Rennie Davis testified Friday he believed an undercover policeman suggested that protesters "dynamite the Amphitheatre" —site of the Democratic National Convention.

The testimony came during a stormy session of the trial of seven men charged with conspiring to incite riots during the convention. Defendant David Dellinger called the presiding judge the "chief prosecutor" and the wife of another defendant scuffled with U.S. marshals.

Davis' testimony concerned a series of preconvention meetings called to plan demonstrations. All the meetings involved the National Mobilization Committee to End the War in Vietnam, of which Davis was project director.

Davis said he met Irwin Bock, an undercover police agent who infiltrated the group and later appeared as a prosecution witness, at an executive committee meeting shortly before the convention.

Davis said Bock showed him a weird contraption composed of a balloon, a glass tube and a piece of cloth. Bock told him, Davis said, that by computing the rate at which helium gas escaped from the balloon and computing the wind velocity, the gadget could be sent aloft and made to fall "wherever you want it to."

"We can drop it on the International Amphitheatre if you want to," he quoted Bock.

Davis said he later told other defendants that "Bock is crazy or he's a police agent or both.

Brody Claims He's Given $5 Million

HONOLULU (UPI)—Guitar-twanging philanthropist Michael James Brody says he has given away "about five mil" in his efforts to shed his $25 million oleomargarine fortune in the cause of world peace.

Brodie, 21 and long-haired, arrived in Hawaii Friday to entertain at a rock concert by the Grateful Dead.

He handed a $10 bill to an elderly man in a black suit who asked to borrow $1 and then turned his pockets inside out to show they were empty.

Brody, who said he had been playing the guitar only five months, expressed disappointment when the promoter of the show who greeted him asked if he'd go to an afternoon rehearsal.

"Man, I didn't have to rehearse for the Ed Sullivan Show," he replied.

Brody confidently predicted his record of "You Ain't Going Nowhere" would sell more than 100 million copies in a month and "should be the biggest record RCA ever had." RCA announced earlier this week it had signed Brody for exclusive recording rights.

Brody threw around many big figures during his brief interview. He said he had given away "about five mil"; had "200 million letters to answer"; was mulling over a $1.5 million movie deal; and said 20,000 persons have forged checks on his bank account in Scarsdale, N.Y.

"I don't know if you're for real," a reporter said to Brody at one point.

"I don't know either," he replied.

END OF LINE—County firemen put finishing touches on temporary line laid from drainage creek to downtown Point Reyes Station to provide emergency water for fighting fires. The community has been without water service since Wednesday and residents have been hauling water into town in their cars. (Independent-Journal photos) never known it. When the tree hit it sounded like lightning hitting a gasoline dump."

STORM

Numerous trees were also reported down in the Mill Valley area but none apparently caused damage to homes.

Power outages were reported throughout the county. One homeowner, Eugene L. Oswald of 108 Almenar Drive, Greenbrae, reported that he had been without power for 14 hours.

Power was out in Inverness and Black Point for three hours, for nearly six hours in parts of the Tamalpais Valley and four hours in Alto. In Bolinas firemen stood by as power lines, snapped by tree branches near Canyon Road, arced. Seven slides were reported on Arroyo Honda Canyon Road, threatening to knock out PG&E equipment there.

The heaviest winds hit the county between 9 p.m. and 1 a.m. and other power outages were reported during that time in Strawberry, Larkspur, Greenbrae, Santa Venetia, Corte Madera, parts of San Rafael, San Geronimo and Lagunitas, according to Leonard O. Robertson of PG&E.

GAMES AFFECTED

Two high school basketball games — Tamalpais at San Rafael and Terra Linda at Redwood—were postponed until tonight when the power failed.

The power failure also shut down county pumps in the Santa Venetia area and caused minor flooding in shopping areas.

Robertson said the majority of power outages were caused by trees falling across power lines but that in a few cases slides loosened the company's poles.

The Coast Guard posted small craft warnings from Pigeon Point to Point St. George near the Oregon border, including all San Francisco Bay waters. Gusts to 35 knots were expected today and possibly higher winds tomorrow.

Point Reyes Station, which has been without a water supply intermittently for the past two days because a line to the community's 100,000-gallon storage tank ruptured, was without water again today. County firemen worked this morning trying to get water into the tank but had been unsuccessful as of 11 a.m.

Trees falling in Ross not only blocked Sir Francis Drake Boulevard but sent a tree crashing into the home of Bruce W. Dayton on Shady Lane. Moderate damage was reported by the fire department.

Rainfall across the county was 2.55 inches in Woodacre; 2.29, Ross; 2 inches, Fairfax; 1.80, San Anselmo; 1.5, Novato; 1.46, Point Reyes Station and Bolinas; 1.35, Terra Linda; 1.15, Larkspur; 1.02, Tamalpais Valley; 1.6, Santa Venetia; 1 inch, Sausalito; .95, Hamilton Air Force Base; .87, Mill Valley, and .46, Tiburon. Petaluma reported 1.23 inches.

FIRE CALLS

YESTERDAY:

6:48 p.m., San Rafael — Clothing burned in dryer at Parkway Convalescent Hospital, 81 Professional Center Parkway; $50 damage to garment.

9:08 p.m., San Rafael—Report of house fire on Union Street turned out to be candle flickering in house because of power outage.

9:50 p.m., San Rafael — Report of house fire at 145 Locust Avenue turned out to be arcing wires felled in storm.

11:38 p.m., Tamalpais Valley — Fire burned wall behind stove at home of Camilla Russo at 254 Flamingo Road; damage estimated at $5,000; cause under investigation.

11:58 p.m., San Rafael — False alarm at Woodland Avenue and DuBois Street.

SOUTHERN SONOMA

No fire calls.

IN CASE OF FIRE — County firemen use a pumper truck to fill temporary water lines into Point Reyes station to insure a source of water to fight possible fires in the community, which has been without water service since Wednesday night. The line which serves the area was ruptured.

were in danger before the river reached a steady level.

NEVADA — High winds knocked over several trees in the Donner Pass area, including one large tree across a power line at the summit. Interstate 80 was closed from midnight to 4 a.m. between Colfax and Reno while crews repaired the fallen power line.

PLACER—A two story wooden warehouse-office in Auburn collapsed from the weight of rain and beating of winds. Deputies said the Stockton Box Co. building was in the old section of town.

Spokesmen at the Federal-State Flood Control Center in Sacramento forecast near-record river flows, but don't anticipate serious problems.

Boyd Museum Board To Elect

Officers and trustees for 1970 will be elected at the annual meeting of the Louise A. Boyd Marin Museum of Science Monday at 8 p.m. at the museum, 76 Albert Park Lane, San Rafael.

Nominees are: for president, Robert A. Roumiguiere of San Rafael; vice-president, Robert A. Reeves of San Rafael; secretary, Patricia Arrigoni of Fairfax and treasurer, William H. Richardson of Ross.

New trustees nominated are: William H. Sherwood of Novato; Jock W. Miller of San Rafael; Elizabeth Jung of Mill Valley; Ken Reichard of Corte Madera; Donna Kopfer of Greenbrae; James M. Tasley of Ross, and Richard Smith.

A director's report and a slide presentation of the museum's activities during 1969 will also be given at the meeting.

Four-Car Crash Injuries Five In Terra Linda

Five persons were injured yesterday in a four-car accident at Manuel T. Freitas Parkway and Las Gallinas Avenue, San Rafael police reported.

One of the injured, Audrey E. Corda, 34, of 60 Twelve Oak Hill, San Rafael, suffered a concussion and was reported in fair condition today at Marin General Hospital.

Treated at the hospital were Virginia Ellis Morowski, 48, of 611 Bamboo Terrace, San Rafael, cut and bruised right leg; Brant D. Morowski, 17, same address, a cut scalp; Parthenia E. Ellis, 73, of Dennis, Mass., bruised knees and a cut scalp, and Shirley E. Corda, 10, 60 Twelve Oak Hill, cut right arm.

Cars driven by Morowski, Mrs. Corda, Ingrid Bergstrom Borland, 44, of 1025 Las Quejas Avenue, and Gloria Joanne Lima, 16, of 156 Oleander Drive, both San Rafael, collided at 3:18 p.m. A stop light at the intersection was reportedly malfunctioning, police said.

Gunman Holds Up Station For $150

An armed robber stole $150 today from Jack's Phillips 66 Service Station at 8161 Redwood Highway, near Novato, Marin sheriff's deputies reported.

The hippie-type thief pointed a gun at the head of 23-year old attendent Rick Rosser and demanded the contents of the cash register after stopping for $7 worth of gasoline at 3:30 a.m., the sheriff's office said. The thief fled after ordering Rosser to wait in a back room for five minutes.

Supervisors' Aid Asked On Labor Issue

The Marin County Labor Council wants the board of supervisors to help resolve the current union strike at the Independent-Journal.

A letter from Charles B. Weers council secretary, will go to the board Tuesday morning. San Francisco Typographical Union Local 21 went on strike against the I-J on Jan. 7.

Weers said the council is "very disturbed by the present labor-management dispute at the Independent-Journal."

"By refusing to bargain in good faith on the issues involved or submit them to binding arbitration, the management of the I-J has taken a position that has been declared unlawful by the highest courts in our country," Weers wrote to board chairman John F. McInnis.

"We, therefore, call upon you (our elected representatives) to insist that the Independent-Journal sit down at the bargaining table and bring this dispute to a peaceful conclusion."

Egypt's air strike, carried out around midnight followed two previous air raids Friday, one against Israeli troops occupying parts of Shadwan Island and another against two Israeli positions, one of them opposite Ismailia on the Suez Canal east bank and the other deep in Sinai.

In Tel Aviv, Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Dayan said Friday night Israel's 32-hour takeover of Shadwan Island at the Gulf of Suez entrance was part of a campaign to disrupt Egyptian military preparedness.

Dayan said he doubted the Arabs would try now to renew intense hostilities in the coming months and that the Egyptians might even slow down.

He expressed doubt the Arab nations would cease their hostilities against Israel entirely.

"The key is in the hands of Alfkatah," Dayan said, referring to the Arab guerrilla organization.

Large-scale illicit gambling enterprises would be made a federal crime. These are defined as involving five or more persons, being in operation for more than 30 days, and having a gross take of as much as $2,000 in any one day.

Bribery of local officials by gambling syndicates would be a federal offense.

Another novel part of the bill is designed to root out racketeer infiltration of business and labor unions, partially through use of anti-trust concepts like divestiture, dissolution and reorganization.

The bill also provides for extra sentences of up to 30 years' imprisonment for habitual and professional criminals and leaders of organized crime.

Other parts of the bill make substantial changes in evidence-gathering processes to strengthen government prosecutions of mobsters.

Fairfax Zoning Policy Hearing

More than 100 residents turned out Thursday night for what secretary Eileen A. Foster described as a stormy fourth hearing by the Fairfax Planning Commission on the proposed city zoning ordinance.

Most of the audience supported 12 Baywood Court residents who voiced objections to the changing of their zoning from duplex to single family, Mrs. Foster said.

Fairfax Festival Committee Plans Only Beer Booth

The Fairfax Festival Committee has decided to become more "self-sustaining" financially by operating the only beer booth that will be set up at next year's festival, festival president Charles Vergara reported yesterday.

Last year's festival had three beer booths: one operated by the committee itself, the other two by the Native Sons of the Golden West and the Lions' Club.

Also rock music will largely give way to "music for everybody," Vergara stated. Last year's festival had three stages set up for rock bands, drawing complaints, so this year only one stage will feature rock music, he said.

Since Police Chief James Orr said he didn't have enough officers to control the approximately 20,000 people attending last year, Vergara said the committee is considering hiring its own patrol. The committee on Thursday also discussed limiting the festival to one day, instead of two days.

Misdemeanor Charges Set In Kidnap Caper

Only misdemeanor charges were filed yesterday in Marin Municipal Court against three Novato youths arrested Thursday on suspicion of kidnapping another youth.

Daniel Lee Temple, 21, of San Rafael, was charged with battery against the supposed kidnap victim, Rickey Craig Rosser, 21, and exhibiting a weapon. Steven James Irons, 19, of Novato, was accused of having a switch-blade knife, and Philip Norman Gjervik, 21, of no known address, was charged with having a hypodermic needle.

Their cases were continued to Monday for entry of plea.

Felony Assault Charge Denied

Raymond Lee Wise, 23, of 37 Madrona Avenue, Mill Valley, pleaded innocent yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to a felony charge of assaulting a police officer and resisting arrest. A preliminary hearing was set for Tuesday.

Wise is accused of punching Patrolman George Rudometkin in the stomach and kicking another officer in the knee after refusing to sign a hitchhiking citation in Sausalito Wednesday night.

Rudometkin was treated for a broken finger suffered when the officers struggled to subdue Wise.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

The Short Haired Guys Get Off; The Long Hairs Really Get It

DEAR HELEN:

We have a shaving judge in our town. When you come into his court on minor offenses—that is first-time things—he lets the guys with short haircuts and no beards off with a lecture and a month's probation, especially if they have on neckties and jackets.

But if our hair is long or we have some on our faces we get a choice of going to jail or going bald, via his official barber. Some of us can't afford a jail term as, believe it or not, we work and go to college. So we turn up looking like billiard balls. There will soon be enough of us to form a club, as traffic tickets in this town are easy to come by—especially if you are long-haired, male and young.

Should we march on the court house, or what?—SAMSON WITH DILEMMA

DEAR SAM:

If you bald ones form a club and leak the news to the local paper, you won't need a march on the court house. One picture, titled "Close Shave With the Law" will take this judge out of the barber business—unless your town is much more reactionary than it should be.—H

DEAR HELEN:

My parents won't let me buy any of the popular records because they've read that groups like the Beatles, Rolling Stones, etc. put double meanings into their stuff. Well, so what if they do? Just because you hear a song doesn't mean you'll jump into dope, bed, or other "evil practices." After all, our folks watch those sexy ads on TV that mean all kinds of things while selling shave creams and colognes, and they don't go wild. Besides, I've heard some oldies—the records my folks bring out at parties and anything I'd buy is super-clean compared to them.

Why all this double standard? I like modern music because of the good sounds, while adults seem to blank out everything but certain words. Isn't this dumb? — DEPRIVED

DEAR DEPRIVED:

I'm not a censorship-freak so I'll agree with you: It's dumb to monitor every record for possible double meanings. The kids already know the score here, but they're more interested in the music. —H.

DEAR HELEN: We've been saving our Christmas cards, and hope you'll again give us an address of some organization or person who can make use of used cards. —D.J.R.

DEAR D:

Here are severeral addresses of native ministers who need Christmas cards, especially those with a religious scene.

Peter John, Evangelist, Medical and Gospel Home, Mannuthy P. O., Trichur, Kerala, South India.

The Rev. R. D. Devasigomony, The Lord Jesus Christ Evangelical Tabernacle, 49 Stanley Nagar, Madras, 21, South India.

The Rev. Golem Pitong, La Castellana, Negros Occidental, Philippines.

Packages marked "Used Cards, No Value" may be mailed very reasonably. —H. P

Tricks With Organdy Collar

By EUNICE FARMER

I thank all of you who have written to me with suggestions for preventing the corners of an organdy collar to curl up, in answer to Mrs. L. F. We have tried most of them, and one that seems to work best is to use three layers of organdy instead of two. It will appear almost as sheer, and the extra weight seems to give the collar more stability.

Another point I can't stress too much is to be sure there is extra fabric on the top collar, after it has been stitched and turned. If they are exactly the same size, the collar will automatically curl up after it has been applied to the garment.

Because of this extra fullness, you will have to change your method of pressing. Instead of pressing the entire collar at once, press the outer edges first, and then press from the neck edge in until the collar is completely pressed.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am about to make a fake fur coat, and since I've never worked with this kind of material before I'm at a loss to know what kind of buttonholes I should use.

MRS. V.D.J.

DEAR MRS. V.D.J.

If the fake fur is smooth and not too thick, it is possible to make bound buttonholes. However, there is a lot of danger because buttonholes would pull out if there was any strain on them.

I suggest a number of closings that are used commercially, and these seem to be much more satisfactory. Depending on whether it's strictly a sports coat or a coat you will use for dress wear, you could use the popular frogs. These can be made of leather or heavy braid.

Loops may be made from cording and work very nicely with rounded buttons. If you don't care for any visible closing, use the large, corded or covered fur hooks.

MRS. A. N. BITYK, Royal Oak, Mich., is this weeks's Tailor Trix pressing board winner for her following suggestion.

"I'd like to share my idea that worked beautifully on a brocade dress but could also work with any type of dressy dress. I couldn't find a slip the same color red as my dress, so with the scraps of material I had left over, I cut out the flower motif and appliqued them around the hem of my slip. Now, if my dress rides up a little, it matches. This same idea would work with petti-pants."

DEAR EUNICE,

I'm from the old school of dressmaking when we were taught to always pull threads to be sure the grain line is even before cutting a garment. Recently, I sent away for some fabric and found that if I tried to cut it with the grain line, the print wouldn't match anywhere. What is you opinion.?

MRS. K.B.J.

DEAR MRS. K.B.J.:

I don't want to completely throw out the importance of grain line, but I will tell you that with the finishes that are applied to most fabrics today, the fabric becomes stable. I would not get too excited about this.

If your fabric was a plaid or a woven horizontal pattern, naturally, it would matter very much. This couldn't be cut until it was straightened.

I had the impression that uneven fabric was woven wrong. Since then I have learned that it can only be woven one way. The warp and the woof threads can only be woven vertically and horizontally to each other.

The fabric can be woven perfectly and still the print will be uneven. This is due to the way the fabric has been printed or finished. It is usually more important to match the print, rather than the grain line. If the fabric is of good quality with today's finishes, I'm sure you won't have trouble with the way the garment hangs.

DEAR EUNICE,

Recently, I purchased some wool crepe, and after preshrinking it by wrapping it in a wet sheet I found it had shrunk considerably. The fabric was full of ripples that were impossible to press out. Please tell me how to treat this kind of material to prevent shrinkage in the finished garment. Also, how do you remove the wrinkled effect?

MRS. E. I.

DEAR MRS. E. I.:

You made your first mistake when you tried to shrink your fabric the way you did. It is very seldom that you will buy fabric that isn't already shrunk unless someone has brought it back as a gift from a foreign country.

Any fabric that is subjected to as much moisture as you have placed on yours will shrink and continue to shrink. This is not the normal amount of shrinkage you would have encountered in construction of your garment or in normal dry cleaning.

Hopefully, you have a good dry-cleaner near your home, and you can have the entire piece of fabric professionally pressed and begin all over again.

After this, be sure to press construction seams with your steam iron or else use one of the chemically treated press cloths that will give you the hot steam you need but not make your fabric too wet.

For a free leaflet telling how to make bound buttonholes, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request for it to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

has been a permanent member of the staff of Cavalcade of Books since 1965. She has received rave notices for her fresh approach to book reviewing and her fund of personal anecdotes added to her criticisms. She will allow time for a question and answer period at the conclusion of her talk.

The mother of three young children, Jean Ward was born in Scotland, educated there and in England and served in the Woman's Royal Naval Service during World War II. While studying at the Sorbonne, she met her husband, who brought his bride to Pasadena in 1952.

She organized and serves the docent service at the Huntington Art Gallery in Pasadena, was president of the Pasadena Symphony Association, for which she ran a weekly program for a year and has been chairman of the music guild of All Saints' Church in Pasadena. She was named "Volunteer of the Month" in 1968 by the Pasadena Women's City Club.

Reservations chairmen are Mmes. Leonard Wood and Willard A. Hall, and Mrs Ernest King, who may be called at the church office.

A TWILIGHT retreat for married couples, "Communication Between Spouses," will be held Wednesday evening at 7:45 p.m. at Mission San Rafael Arcangel.

BETHEL 246, Internation Order of Job's Daughters will initiate Sherrie Kirkendall, Claudie Keane, Ginger GMAHLING, Susie Finch, Laurie Martincich and Robin Buckley Tuesday night at 7:30 p.m. in the Larkspur Masonic Temple.

A COCKTAIL party will be given by members of the Marin Alumnae Chapter of Delta Delta Delta from 5 to 7 p.m. tonight at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Angelo Cappozzi in Tiburon.

Mrs. Sybil Taylor of Corte Madera is chairman. Husbands or escorts of the members will be guests.

SONOMA MENDOCINO Deanery, National Council of Catholic Women, will meet Wednesday at St. James Catholic Church in Petaluma. The St. James Ladies Guild will host the meeting.

The 9:30 a.m. mass will be celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Clyde Tillman, pastor of St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church in Petaluma, who will also act as moderator. There will be a breakfast served at the church, with registration at 10 a.m. and a business meeting at 10:45.

The nominating committee will be elected during the meeting.

A panel discussion at 11:30 a.m. on "What's Happening - and Why?" will be presented.

Mrs. Frank Lynch will speak at the 1 p.m. luncheon, to be held at Sonoma Joe's.

Reservations chairman is Mrs. Robert E. Mc Donald of Petaluma.

"LUNCHEON IS served," a public fund-raising project will be held at the Mill Valley United Methodist Church Tuesday at 12:30 p.m.

Mrs. Jack Shapiro will play accordion music. Reservations chairman is Mrs. Harold Huycke of Mill Valley.

Cynthia Fredette Bride Of Warren Boyd In Novato

Warren Paul Boyd claimed Cynthia Sherrill Fredette of Novato as his bride Saturday at Our Lady of Loretto Church in Novato.

The daughter of Mrs. Anita J. Fredette of Novato and E. Lester Fredette of Hollywood, Cynthia chose her twin sister, Mrs. Susan Thorsson of Novato as her matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Linda Laier of Novato, Mrs. Tim Tuck of San Jose, Julie Williams of Napa and Susan Farrar of Novato.

Best man was Glenn Thorsson of Novato and ushering guests to their seats were Michael Boyd of Novato, the bridegroom's brother, Kenneth Wynns and Bob Worley of Novato and Dave Worley of San Rafael.

A reception at the Lodge restaurant in Novato followed the ceremony. The couple will return from a wedding trip to Southern California to live in Novato.

The bride is attending San Marin High School and is the sister of Tim Tuck of San Jose and Richard Tuck of Petaluma.

Son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Boyd of Novato, the bridegroom attended Novato High School and is employed by San Rafael Plastics. Allan T. Stevens, serving with the Army in Hawaii is his brother.

SHARON COLLINS

Petaluman To Be Bride

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon J. Collins of Petaluma are announcing the engagement of their daughter Sharon Ann to Bruce Kevin Knoles, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth P. Knoles of San Rafael.

Sharon is the sister of Larry J. Collins of Fort Monmouth, N. J., and Patricia J. Collins of Petaluma. She attends Petaluma Senior High School and is employed by Taco Bell in Petaluma.

The future bridegroom is the brother of Sue, Scott and Diane Knoles and the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel S. Knoles of San Anselmo. He was graduated from Terra Linda High School and is employed by Bob Gordon's Chevron Station in San Rafael.

Consider Muscles

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—The harried housewife can get a lot more work done with the same amount of energy if she gives some consideration to her muscles, according to a University of Nebraska home economics consultant.

Helen Becker, a health education specialist, has come up with five suggestions to help the homemaker outlast her work. They are:

Vary homemaking chores. Since a particular job uses the same muscles constantly, it is less tiring to switch from one task to another.

Change the rhythm of movement. Don't stay with a single motion when doing repetitive work like carpet sweeping or cutting heavy material with a scissors.

Avoid hurrying to avoid fatigue. It takes more energy to run up a flight of stairs than to walk up slowly.

Rest ato least two minutes for every hour of work. Taking hourly breaks is more likely to prevent muscle exhaustion than resting for a couple of hours when everything is finished.

Don't sit too long in one position. When the body is held in a fixed position, the muscles are constantly contracted.

Less Caloric

To lower the calories and increase the volume, combine stiffly beaten egg white with whipped cream before serving. Add one beaten white to eight to 10 ounces of cream whipped.

MR. AND MRS. WARREN P. BOYD

Lend Interest

Sweet foods, such as jams, pastries and cakes, lend interest to meals and may provide needed calories for active children and adults.

Frozen Foods

It is recommended that no more than two pounds of food per cubic foot of total storage space be frozen at one time in a home freezer.

Judith Holybee Will Become Bride In June

The engagement of Judith Holybee to Clarence L. Sidbeck was revealed at a dinner party in the home of the bride-elect's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Holybee of Petaluma.

Judith, a student at Petaluma High School, is the sister of Charles Holybee of Aptos; Kenneth Holybee, stationed in Vietnam; Raymond Holybee, stationed in Thailand; and Mrs. Charles Annis of Petaluma.

Clarence, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Sidbeck of Petaluma, is the brother of Robert Sidbeck of Tracy; Ronald Sidbeck, stationed in Japan; Mrs. Henry Gilmore of Washington; and Elsie Sidbeck of Petaluma.

A graduate of Petaluma High School, the future bridegroom is serving with the Armed Forces in Naples, Italy.

St. Vincent de Paul Catholic Church in Petaluma will be the scene of the June wedding.

Maxi Coats Can Hide Bad Legs And Stolen Articles

London Express Service

LONDON — Shopkeepers throughout Britain have been warned to treat girls wearing maxi coats as potential shop lifters. Since the maxis were introduced shop lifting has risen sharply, Britain's largest store detective agency said.

Officials said that girls in maxi coats had more room to hide things and that the fashion is posing a major security threat at stores throughout the country. The warning to watch girls in maxi coats "very carefully" in shops has also been sent to 11,000 members of the national union of small shopkeepers.

Their national president, Tom Lynch said "All our traders are being warned to closely watch girls in maxi coats because of the increase in shoplifting. There is no doubt that they do pose a security threat.

A spokesman for Store Detectives Ltd., who provide security services at shops throughout Britain, said:

"Although maxi coats do hide bad legs they can also hide bulky and expensive articles stolen from stores. The coats are a new threat on the shoplifting scene and have brought in a new method of stealing.

"Among people we have arrested are girls trying to smuggle out clothes, food and even bulky electrical equipment beneath ankle length coats.

But a spokesman for one of Britain's largest fashion firms said, "Despite the warnings, the maxi is here to stay. We have more orders for maxi coats than we can handle.

"We are even preparing special maxis for summer wear. We can only suggest that the stores should find a new way of detecting thefts because maxis will be around for a long time."

OUTDOOR DRYER GOOFS

Richmond, Va., Resident Budda Johnson finds out that the clothes line is no place to dry long-johns in the weather the Atlantic Coast is having this week. The near-zero temperatures resulted in the undergarments being frozen stiff. Further north, authorities had to airlift 35,000 pounds of foodstuffs to Nantucket Island off the Cape Cod coast as falling temperatures locked the island's harbor in three feet of ice for the fourth straight day. Massive Federal Crackdown Set Vs. Charter Airlines, Agencies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Enforcement officers of the Civil Aeronautics Board have accused several supplemental airlines and a large number of travel agents and charter organizations of violating flight-eligibility regulations over the past two years.

The CAB's Bureau of Enforcement asked the board Friday to suspend the operating authority of two U.S. supplemental airlines—Capitol International Airways, Nashville, Tenn., and Overseas National Airways (ONA), New York City—and two foreign lines, Atlantis Airways of Stuttgart, Germany, and Caledonian Airways, London.

Declaring that there had been violations in 1968 and 1969 involving more than 500 charter flights and about 75,000 of the persons aboard them, the Bureau said it would seek civil penalties from those companies and a fifth—World Airways, Oakland, Calif.—that conceivably could run as high as $70 million.

A violation could be charged for each passenger carried illegally. The maximum penalty for a violation of $1,000.

The complaints filed with the CAB charged the supplemental airlines in general with operating transAtlantic flights for groups that were not authorized to make charter contracts under CAB rules, with illegal rebates, to travel agents and charter organizations, and with other illegal acts.

Officials of the airlines denied the allegations.

Supplemental airlines are permitted to carry groups that have a recognized entity or well established nature, and only at a pro rata charge evenly distributed among the flight participants. Non-members of a group, or persons who joined less than six months before a flight may not be accommodated.

The bureau did not seek suspension of the authority of World Airways because, it said, that company had taken some steps to eliminate ineligible persons from its charter flights, and it was charged only with operating "un-charter-worthy flights."

The bureau also filed complaints against eight travel agents, 15 clubs and associations and 17 individuals.

They were charged with operating as "indirect air carriers" by selling charter-flight tickets to the general public, without CAB approval.

The CAB gave the parties 15 days in which to answer the complaints before hearings are held to determine whether the agents barred from air charter activities.

Federal Bug Finds Probe Secrets Leaked To Mafia

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — While the FBI was preparing evidence against the Mafia, members of the Mafia knew what was going on behind the closed federal doors, evesdropping transcripts reveal.

The transcripts, filed by the FBI in U.S. District Court here, show that on Feb 23, 1963, Angelo "Gyp" DeCarlo, reputed captain in the Mafia "family" of the late Vito Genovese, told several underworld associates:

"They (the FBI) know who we're with and who we ain't with, who the mobs are and everything else."

Louis "Fat Louie" Larasso, another alleged Mafia figure, is recorded as saying during the same conversation that during a visit to Washington he had seen a chart showing the names and relationships of Mafia members.

It was not known where the Mafia obtained its information.

The FBI, the former Federal Bureau of Narcotics and the Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations said Friday they knew of no security breaches in their offices.

Officials say the transcripts were recorded by a bug placed in the Barn, a lodge at Mountainside, N.J.

Among those present during the discussion by DeCarlo, who was called Ray, were Larasso, Anthony "Tony Boy" Boiardo, a reputed member of the Genovese family, and a man named "Sam," believed to be Simone Rizzo "Sam the Plumber" DeCavalcante, the reputed boss of a New Jersey Mafia "family."

The transcript describing the Mafia's knowledge of federal activity said:

Sam: "Well, did Louie tell you that when he was in Washington they had the boss Profaci—?"

Louie: "A chart, yeah."

Sam: "They had a chart like a map of the United States, and they had me listed as Profaci's lieutenant in Trenton. They had my name on there."

Louie: "Everything is too open."

Boiardo: "Jerry (identified by the FBI as Gerardo Catena) says the jig is up. Ray, they got your name way up on the list."

DeCarlo: "As long as they can't prove nothing, I don't care."

College Rejects SDS Request For Convention Use

A request by Students for a Democratic Society to hold a national convention at College of Marin next week during the semester break was rejected yesterday by the collge's facilitis-use committee.

The request came from SDS member Terri Barnett of San Francisco, not local members of the student group.

The committee's reply said a meeting of a national organization would create crowd control problems which the college could not handle.

The society had anticipated 500 members would attend, and asked for use of one large hall and 15 to 20 classrooms from 9 a.m. to midnight Jan. 31 through Feb. 2.

Local SDS member Dennis Marnell said the society is now looking into convention facilities in Los Angeles, reported college public information officer Earlene Jones.

Missing Girl Alive

HONOLULU (UPI)—A 13-year-old girl who vanished Dec. 2 on her way to school was found alive but suffering from severe malnutrition Friday in a warehouse at the Army's Schofield Barracks.

The girl, Mary Washington, was taken to Tripler Army Medical Center where she was listed as "very seriously ill" following her 53-day ordeal.

Two soldiers entered the warehouse Friday and heard a noise from an unused portion of the building, which is located in a sparsely populated area of the military installation. They found the girl suffering from "severe malnutrition and dehydration," an Army spokesman said.

Alcatraz Vandalism

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Vital navigational aids on Alcatraz Island have been tampered with, defaced and vandalized, the Coast Guard says.

CPO D. E. Thompson, a navi-gational aid specialist, discovered this week "at least one fog signal tampered with, and station quarters, light tower and power room forcibly entered," a spokesman said Friday.

But he said he was not accusing the Indians who have occupied the former federal prison in San Francisco Bay since Nov. 20 of having caused the damage.

"There were visitors on the island too," he said.

Park-Rec Award Fete Tonight In San Rafael

San Rafael City Schools and the city of Rohenrt Park will be among Marin and Southern Sonoma agencies and individuals to be honored tonight at the California Parks and Recreation Society's 20th annual installation and awards banquet.

The dinner is scheduled for 7:30 in the Holiday Inn, San Rafael.

Other awards from the North Bay Area recreation organization will go to the Mill Valley Junior Chamber of Commerce and Dixie School District.

The following individuals will be honored for their contributions to recreation in Marin: Jean S. Barnard, chairman of the Mill Valley Parks and Recreation Commission; Howard Slade, Novato Parks and Recreation Department; Walter Anderson and Raymond Greenberg, San Anselmo Parks and Recreation Department.

Gary Howell, Novato recreation supervisor, will be installed as president of the organization. Other officers for the coming year are: William Skinner of Fairfield, vice president; William Archer of Santa Rosa, secretary; Dennis Jauch of San Rafael, treasurer.

About 150 persons from throughout northern California are expected to attend, according to Andrew J. Snyder Jr., San Rafael parks and recreation director, who is making arrangements for the event.

Dances Planned At Brown's Hall

Dances will be held Thursday and Friday at Brown's Hall, 390 Miller Avenue, Mill Valley from 8 to 12 p.m.

On Thursday, the featured bands will be Sea Train and the Hereford Hart Stringers, and on Friday, Joy of Cooking and Ofoedian Den, dance chairman Toby Byron has announced.

This Week In The World

By U. P. INTERNATIONAL

President Nixon set the tone of his administration this week with a State of the Union address—his first—calling for action to rescue the American environment and improve the quality of American life.

Nixon promised efforts to secure world peace, beginning with a just settlement in Vietnam, but his principal emphasis was on domestic rather than foreign problems.

He proposed a $10-billion, five-year program to clean the nation's water sources, coupled with research and regulation to check pollution of the environment.

Nixon also called for continued efforts to hold living costs down. He pledged new efforts to win congressional approval of his welfare reform and tax-sharing programs, both introduced last year.

On foreign matters, the President said the prospects for peace in Vietnam are much better now than they were a year ago. He cited U.S. approaches to Russia and Red China as examples of the sort of policy that might ensure world peace for the rest of this century.

The address was generally well received in Congress, though Democrats complained that Nixon, in a congressional election year, was trying to steal issues which they had regarded as their party's property.

The Democrats were reported planning to stage a State of the Union presentation of their own, reaffirming their party's claim to such issues as poverty and pollution.

Around The World; Around The Clock

CLEVELAND, Ohio — Three men were arrested on charges of murdering Joseph A. "Jock" Yablonski, unsuccessful candidate for president of the United Mine Workers, and his wife and daughter. They were said to have been traced through an auto-license number that Yablonski jotted down because he considered the actions of the car's occupants suspicious.

NORFOLK, Va. — The Navy cargo ship Yancey, torn from its moorings by a sudden storm, knocked a 150-foot hole in the Chesapeake Bay Bridge. No one was killed or injured, but the bridge was closed indefinitely.

LAGOS, Nigeria — Foreign correspondents who reported scenes of rape and chaos in conquered Biafra were stranded overnight in Port Harcourt, principal town of Nigeria's former Eastern Region. The newsmen suspected the hangup was a deliberate effort to discipline them or delay their stories, but the government blamed it on a mistake in flight schedules.

BEIRUT — At least 41 persons in Iraq were hanged or shot following a reported attempt to overthrow the government of President Hassan al-Bakr. This week's executions increased to 95 the number of Iraqis officially slain for "espionage" or political activities since al-Bakr came to power in 1968.

WASHINGTON — President Nixon nominated Florida Judge G. Harrold Carswell to fill the U.S. Supreme Court seat vacated by the resignation of Abe Fortas. Civil liberties groups opposed the appointment.

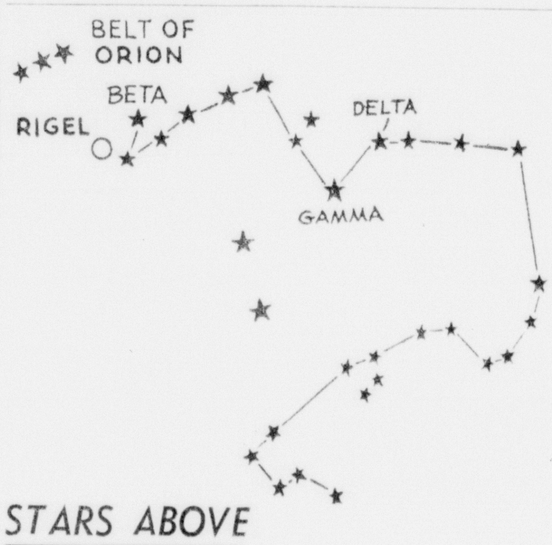
Design Changes Voted For Park

A plan for development of Rosal-Adrian park was resubmitted to the Marin County Planning Commission Thursday by directors of the Gallinas Village Community Services District after directors approved minor changes suggested by the commission.

The plan includes an oval lawn, surrounded by small trees and shrubs, with heavier vegetation around the park's periphery to serve as a screen for homes that back up the area.

Changes were mainly technical, according to Director Walter E. Rudolph, who said they included more screen planting and different grading for the less-than-an-acre park.

Once the county has given final approval to the plan, work can proceed on the park, Rudolph said.



STARS ABOVE

Eridanus Is Longest Constellation Visible

Eridanus, the River, is the longest constellation in the sky — it is so long it disappears over the southern horizon for viewers in the United States. Its stars are rather dim but still easy to locate on a reasonably dark night.

On the illustration the top half of the constellation is shown because that is the part seen from the United States. Its brightest star, called Achernar, is far below the southern horizon and out of our sight.

The brightest star that we can see in this constellation is Beta Eridani which is so near the first-magnitude star, Rigel, in Orion, that it looks quite dim by comparison. In fact Beta is also called Cursa, meaning the Footstool, because Rigel is supposed to represent Orion's foot.

To locate Eridanus in the sky, face southward at 9 p.m., Standard Time and look at the region of the sky that is two-fifths of the distance up from the southern horizon to overhead.

In mythology this river in the sky has been associated with almost every large stream that was well known to the ancients, including the little brooklet that ran through the Acropolis.

Different countries have given it the name of the largest river of their region. Thus, it is known as the Po, the Nile and Euphrates.

It was known as the Nilus in the Alfonsine Tables which were compiled in 1521, and its characteristics seem to fit the Nile better than the others.

Troop 11 Scout Due Eagle Rank

Bruce Collins — a 14-year-old Redwood High School student — will receive scouting's highest rank, Eagle Scout, at a Court of Honor Feb. 3 at 8 p.m. in Kent School.

Collins is senior patrol leader of Boy Scout Troop 11 in Kentfield. Last summer he was elected a patrol leader for provisional Troop 38 which represented the Marin Boy Scout Council at the national scouting jamboree in Farragut, Ida.

He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Collins, 25 Corte Patencio, Greenbrae.

Violent Jail Inmate Sent To State Hospital

A San Francisco man who claimed after his arrest Thursday by the California Highway Patrol that he killed actress Sharon Tate was committed yesterday to Napa State Hospital.

Robert Leon Covic, 32, was not brought into court to face two charges of felony assaults on jailers which allegedly occurred earlier yesterday. Deputies said he jumped them when they went into the maximum security area, where Covic was being held, to investigate a light Covic had broken.

Jail For Cash Theft

SANTA ROSA — Bruce D. Allen, 23, of Petaluma, was sentenced yesterday to four months in Sonoma County Jail and placed on three years' probation by Superior court Judge Kenneth M. Eymann for taking $300 from a cash register while employed at the J. C. Penney Co. at the Coddington Shopping Center, Santa Rosa.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Tubal Reconstruction Possible For Women Who Change Minds

VAN DELLEN

A woman can be sterilized by tying and cutting each fallopian tube so that sperm and ova cannot meet. The procedure is usually done via abdominal surgery, often at the time of a caesarean section of after a normal delivery.

It is primarily done when serious heart disease or a psychiatric disorder makes further pregnancy unwise. Some women insist on the operation after their family is completed.

No tissue is removed, menstruation continues, and there is no change in libido or other sexual functions.

IN THE PAST, sterilization was considered permanent and irremediable. Improvements in technic have led to several reports in which the tubes have been reopened to allow reproduction.

The passageway is reconstructed around a polyethylene tube that remains nin place for 6 to 8 weeks. It is easily removed at the end of this time because one end extends into the uterus and through the cervix. The other protrudes through a stab wound in the wall of the abdomen where it is sutured to the skin.

SOME WOMEN regret having been sterilized because of a divorce or the death of a husband. They want to start a new family. Now and then the reason is the loss of one or more of the children.

A Welsh gynecologist operated upon four such women with favorable results. He also sent a questionnaire to his British colleagues and found that 15 per cent of a group of 681 women undergoing the operation were able to conceive. But only 71 of the 107 conceptions went to full term.

THE REMAINDER had a miscarriage or an ectopic (tubal) pregnancy. The latter is understandable because the fertilized ovum could easily get caught in the reconstructed tube. The women who successfully carried their babies to term were delivered in the normal way or via caesarean section.

PINWORM INVASION

O.E. writes: Every menber of our family has threadworms. What can we do about it?

REPLY

Pinworms (threadworms) are common in children, but adults are not immune to these critters. Our leaflet on pinworms discusses the various measures need to rid the family and household of the pest. It can be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with request.

TREATING LOCKJAW

R.C.L. writes: How is lockjaw treated?

REPLY

Massive doses of tetanus antitoxin nullify the effects of the tetanus organisms. Sedatives such as pentothal sodium or paraldehyde are administered to relax the locked, or spastic, muscles. Curarelike drugs also help as do the steroids such as cortisone or Meticorten.

DURATION OF BRUCELLOSIS

O.S. writes: How long does undulant fever last?

REPLY

Without treatment the acute attack usually subsides within 3 to 6 weeks. The tetracycline drugs have shortened the duration of the disease considerably. Chronic brucellosis is a dubious disease and when it is believed to exist, the best remedy is Brucella antigens.

FUL COMPLICATION

C.H. writes: Does influenza affect the brain?

REPLY

Yes, as a complication of the disease. Headache, drowsiness, and stiff neck usually point to encephalitis. Recovery is the rule.

Two Acquittals, Hung Vote In Auto Trial

Stanley Shrout, 31, of Clovis, Fresno County, was acquitted yesterday by a jury in Marin Superior Court of two counts of car theft, but the jury was hung eight to four on whether he was guilty of two counts of receiving stolen property.

Shrout was arrested in January 1968 by the California Highway Patrol, which said that parts of two stolen Volkswagens had been sold by Shrout to a San Rafael auto shop.

Today is Saturday Jan. 24, the 24th day of 1970 with 341 to follow.

The moon is full. The morning stars are Mercury and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars, Saturn and Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1848 gold was discovered in the Sacramento River near Coloma, Calif.

In 1908 the first Boy Scout troop was organized in England by Sir Robert Baden-Powell.

In 1946 the United Nations General Assembly voted to set up an atomic energy commission.

In 1966 President Lyndon B. Johnson submitted to Congress a record $112 billion budget. Also in 1966 117 persons died when an Air India jet crashed on Mont Blanc in France.

In 1968 the Defense Department announced the finding of pieces of a lost H-bomb at a bomber crash site in Greenland.

A thought for the day: Adam Smith said, "The real price of everything, what everything really costs the man who wants to acquire it, is the toil and trouble of acquiring it."

Ships Turn Back

LONDON (UPI)—Three Soviet warships approached the English Channel Thursday but turned back, British defense officials said. The Soviet helicopter carrier Moskva and two other vessels were making their first voyage in the Atlantic since joining the Soviet fleet in 1968. British naval sources said the Soviets may have been trying to confuse British ships and planes watching them.

MISSING ACES

You win the first spade, knowing that East has both of the missing aces for his vulnerable opening bid. If you are not careful, East will defeat you with two aces and three spades.

For example, suppose you run the diamonds first in the hope of putting East under some pressure. East discards both low clubs. Then you lead a club. East takes the ace of clubs and forces out the ace of spades.

ONLY EIGHT TRICKS

You now have only eight tricks. The moment you lead a heart, East will take the ace of hearts and run his spades. Down one.

You're no better off tackling the hearts before the clubs, if you lead a low heart from your hand and use dummy's queen to force out the ace. You still have to set up the clubs, and East will take the ace of clubs and his spades.

PROPER HEART LEAD

The solution to the problem is to take the last diamond in the dummy and then lead a low heart from dummy. If East takes his ace of hearts you will later clear the suit with the king and queen, after which you will take a third heart trick with dummy's six. Now you don't need the clubs, since you have two spades, three hearts and four diamonds.

CLUB SWITCH

If East plays the ten or jack of hearts when you lead the suit from dummy, you win with the king of hearts and switch at once to clubs. East knocks out the ace of spades, but you have nine tricks: two spades, four diamonds, two clubs, and the one heart trick you "stole" by leading through East's ace.

Like Charity, Environment Control Begins At Home

BREATHES THERE a candidate in 1970 who is not running on an environmental quality platform?

One political hopeful who visited the I-J to announce his candidacy recently went the rest one better. He described four principal planks in his platform, one of which was environment and another of which was ecology.

He explained that environment was broader than ecology and that to state his poistion accurately, he needed to list both.

Merriam-Webster's dictionary gives this definition of ecology: the totality or pattern of relations between organisms and their environment. It is hard to see how anything could be broader than that.

However, if one plank on the subject is good for a candidate, how can two planks hurt?

ASK A GREEK-SPEAKING person what ecology or environment means and he will tell you, plainly, habitat.

If you ask your grandmother what environment means she will probably say surrounding.

But when something is as "in" as concern for environmental quality is today, we just can't refer to it in ordinary language. We must find a high-sounding euphemism which we imagine will impart more importance to our declarations.

In grandfather's day not much was heard about pollution — by that name. But grandfather and his then-young contemporaries did give thought once in awhile to the plain fact that wherever man goes he seems to foul his own nest.

How would it sound in 1970 to have a candidate come out forsquare against further next fouling?

IF YOU PILED UP all the mimeographed press releases mentioning the battle for environmental quality you could put a sky-full of smog into the air by burning them. And while you watched the smoke curl up from the burning pile, you could reflect on the number of trees consumed in the process of making the paper on which the conservation information was disseminated.

Sitting before a fire is a great way to day-dream.

You could think of all the tobacco consumed — with resultant foul-smelling smoke discharged into the atmosphere — at meetings to plan environmental quality control campaigns.

You could reflect upon the litter and debris left behind at the last big ecology rally you read about.

Day dreaming on the subject boggles the mind.

INDELICATE AS IT IS to say so, we are fouling our nests faster and worse than ever before.

And it is right that we should be doing something about it.

But let's not imagine that politicians voted into office can halt all pollution for us.

No amount of governmental spending is going to stop the irresponsibles from dumping old beer cans along the roadside. Only the individuals involved can do that.

The old-fashioned way was to set a good example yourself and try to train your own children. When you went picnicking, you always tried to leave the picnic site cleaner than you found it.

Environmental quality care begins at home. Each of us must first do his own part to maintain a clean nest.

If we try to leave it to politicians and government, we are sure to lose the battle.

Jack Craemer

But, only smog can kill a tree."

From The Gulf Of Alaska

Most of our Marin winter storms come to us out the Gulf of Alaska, as all amateur weather-watchers know.

But most of these storms can be seen coming toward San Rafael over Mount Tamalpais, from the south. This used to strike us as very strange because we knew Alaska was the other direction.

However, just a little reflection gives the answer. Our big storms usually are hundreds of miles in diameter and follow the coast all the way to Los Angeles and beyond. They are composed of winds moving in a counter-clockwise direction about a moving area of low pressure. As the storms move down the coast, we usually receive only the eastern half, the half where the winds are blowing around from the south.

Natural Time Sense

Many primitive peoples and not a few animals possess a keen time sense. Most of us have had dogs that perked up when it was time for the kids to come home from school.

Wild animals have it too. We used to feed a California jay at our back door, the same time each afternoon. Before long the greedy fellow would be sitting on his favorite branch five or ten minutes early, squawking that he was hungry and telling us to get a move on.

Just recently we have been feeding raccoons right after dinner. One night we had a late dinner and rattle, rattle, bang, bang, went the lid of our garbage can.

Bouquets And Brickbats

BOUQUETS to Jach Schlette and Marvin Hershey for their heroic rescue of Joe Libra after he was buried by a slide of mud, rocks and uprooted trees at Muir Woods — and BOUQUETS also to the many other good Samaritans, names unknown to us, who helped those in trouble because of the floods that raged this week in Marin.

BRICKBAT to Jupiter Pluvius. (If he'll shut off the rain, we'll gladly give him a bouquet.)

Save The Rats; Never Mind Humans

We live in fantastic times! A group of scientists has shown that massive doses of cyclamates may cause some bladder tumors in rats. Another group of scientists clearly establishes the relationship between lung cancer and smoking. The FDA orders cyclamates off the market — in other words, to hell with people dying of lung cancer as long as we protect our rats.

Reader Unhappy With Editorial

In rebuttal to your lead editorial of Jan. 19, I wish to point out three major flaws in your statements:

(1) When dealing with educational policy and economics, they must be looked at separately. The policies and goals are established — and then it is decided whether or not the district can or should afford them. Whether or not we have letter grades in the Reed District is not an economic question and bringing up the costs of education only confuses the issue. . .

(2) Most teachers I know both in and out of the Reed District are hardworking, dedicated human beings. They are not power-hungry politicos as you make them seem to be in your editorial. I strongly protest your insinuations. Over the years the Reed District has had the reputation of being one of the best — that reputation brought the Manley family to Tiburon in the first place — and in less than one year I am watching what many people — parents, teachers and board members — have worked so hard to achieve go down the drain.

(3) Parent/teacher conferences will continue. Letter grading has not supplanted them. . .

Board To Blame In Reed Struggle

As a resident of the Reed School District for 11 years and a parent of three children attending Reed schools, I feel I must respond to your editorial of Jan. 19.

You are right that there is a struggle going on in this district and the issue of report cards is merely a visible part of a deeper struggle. However, I take exception to your editorial opinion that this is a "power showdown" between teachers and board. As I see it, it is a polarization of many parents and educators on one hand and a lay board on the other who completely ignore or discredit recommendations of the professional staff of this district. Since the "new" board took office July 1, recommendations of the staff have been repeatedly met with total disbelief from the board, usually by 3-2 votes. Opinions of many parents, either attending meetings or communicating to the board through letters, also have been ignored.

The board, staff and parents no longer seem to be working together for the betterment of our children. Instead most factions are labeling each other with black or white hats, and have lost that middle ground that is so important if communications are to continue.

For several years the Reed District has been an exemplary district and the educational philosophies recommended by the staff and implemented by past boards have made the Reed District one which other districts throughout the country have copied and followed. At a time when the so-called swing in education is to non-graded schools, multi-age grouping, individualized instruction and no report cards, our district board has slammed on the brakes and taken a backward step. Report cards are only one thing, but perhaps they are the handwriting on the wall. That appears to be the fear of parents and teachers in this district. . .

Yes, there is a struggle. And in the end the only ones who really stand to lose are the children.

LINES ON LIVING

Dead Of Heroin At 12 —Lesson For All Of Us

by Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

Walter Vandermeer, a child of 12, was found dead in a dirty cold bathroom, in a dreadfully cold Harlem tenement, on a dreary cold December day. The cause of death was reported to be an overdose of heroin.

These are chilling statistics of a child's obituary, the horrifying tale of a child who died not because it was death's time to come, but because he had no place in life. He died because he had no home, no love, no roots. His young life surrendered to the "mercies" of drugs to become the youngest victim of heroin.

After the funeral, Tony, a brother of the dead child, rushed over to a dope pusher, shouting: "You killed my brother!" Did he? Who really killed Tony's brother? Was it heroin, the junkie, or the neighborhood?

THERE WERE, to be sure, many accomplices to this murder lurking behind the shadowy death of a child lying lifeless on a latrine floor. There were the visible and invisible agents of death: homelessness and loneliness, poverty and rootlessness, neglect and the drug peddler - the criminal hand that makes a business of brain-blowing young souls in a deadly barter for profit.

But behind them all was the master-minded contrivance of still another killer, the invisible and all-too-potent ghost-writer weaving the plot that condemned Walter to a living death. It was the society in which Walter lived.

Walter lived only a short life because his society, boasting of the promise of the stars, had fallen short of the fulfillments of life on earth. Walter was not born in a warm bed, and lived in an even colder world. He saw a city glittering with the light of splendorous life, on one side; and the abysmal darkness of hell, on the other side. Only a few blocks separated the skyscrapers from the dingy tenement dwelling. And that's what made the darkness on the child's side of the world even more discernible and real.

His dark world came crushing in on him - collapsing. And alone, he was left to himself. It was too much for the child to take. In the discerning words of tribute of a junkie, "Walter lived to be 30 in 12 years." The drug life in a capsule, turning man into impotent child and child into impotent man.

There is a great tragedy in a society when a child's life can't run its normal course of innocent childhood; when the short tender years of a youngster harden to a compressed miserable existence of 30; when a child jumps childhood to become "a little man" in the street. For "there was nothing about the street he didn't know," confessed a fellow junkie.

SOCIETY CAN'T wash its hands clean simply with a sigh of sympathy. Its hands are bloodstained with sins of omission as well as commission. And what's happening in Harlem is happening in many an affluent suburban community where, in some quarters, dope is taken as routinely as smoking a cigarette; is considered a lesser evil than alcohol, and is openly peddled in high schools and sometimes in elementary schools, with school officials looking the other way. And as one educator declared bluntly, "There are thousands of Walters out there."

And there are thousands of Walters out here and wherever there are homes - rich or poor - that are homeless; wherever there are parents neglecting children, to leave them parentless; wherever men and women are permissive with their children, allowing them everything to compensate for the one thing that matters most which they don't give them - themselves.

Walter in his death is now biting into the soul of a lot of us in this Moon-Age society.

MARQUIS CHILDS

A Tie Could Mean A Win For GOP In Senate Races

WASHINGTON — That unnerving tick, tick, tick comes from the time bomb of the congressional elections meaning a campaign for 35 members of the Senate and all 435 members of the House.

As Congress returns with the old familiar faces, it is a statistical certainty that some of those familiar faces will not be with us in 1971. Of the 35 seats up for election this year in the senate, 25 are Democrats, 10 Republicans.

If the Republicans hold all of their own, and this is improbable, the loss of only seven Democratic seats would mean a 50-50 split. Under the Senate Rules Vice President Agnew would break the tie, and the Republicans would have control with all that this means in the power of committee chairmanships and the prestige of running the ship.

WITH THIS as the goal the Republicans, with plans laid long since and money overflowing the coffers, are zeroing in on a list of Democrats rated most vulnerable. The unenviable honor of heading that list is shared by two southerners. Whether Albert Gore of Tennessee or Ralph Yarborough of Texas is No. 1 is immaterial, since they both stand in the same jeopardy in a South turned increasingly conservative.

Each state — Tennessee and Texas — now has one Republican senator. To add another would be a big step toward consolidating the southern strategy for 1972.

BOTH YARBOROUGH and Gore are in the populist tradition of the South that began to come into its own with the New Deal spending of the '30s. In Texas a Republican candidate for the Yarborough seat has already announced. George H. W. Bush, serving his second term in the House from Houston, is the epitome of the new South. Settling in Texas after serving in the Navy in World War II, Bush, who came from Connecticut, the son of former Sen. Prescott Bush, moved up rapidly in oil.

He is the ideal image candidate — smooth, outgoing, looking younger than his 45 years, a business success, no hidebound conservative and yet never stepping so far over the line as to scare the big money. His advertising campaign when he first ran in 1966 in a district that had never been carried by a Republican was handled by Harry Treleaven of the J. Walter Thompson Advertising Agency. Treleaven, who in 1968 directed the Nixon television campaign, looked Bush over and found him "highly promotable" — a product like Ford cars or a popular brand of cigarettes.

In Tennessee the only announced Republican candidate is another version of the new politics. The cowboy singer, Tex Ritter, whose residence is Nashville, America's folk music center, has teamed up with Claude Robertson, an announced candidate for governor. Robertson was Howard Baker's campaign manager in Baker's first successful run for the Senate in 1966, and the combination could be formidable.

TWO DEMOCRATS from western states, Gale McGee of Wyoming and Frank Moss of Utah, are high, perhaps three and four, on the vulnerability scale. With a small number of voters in the mountain states, money pumped in from the outside goes a long way in what in the cynical political vocabulary are known as cheap seats. The swing in both Utah and Wyoming has been to the conservative Republican side.

In the East Sen. Harrison A. (Pete) Williams Jr. of New Jersey is high on the list. A Republican member of the House, William T. Cahill, won the governorship when the Democrats put up Robert Meyner, a fading rerun. Indictments of officeholders in and around Newark brought to light long-rumored scandals swept under the Democratic rug. In Connecticut Thomas J. Dodd, censured by the Senate, is No. 6. In Indiana a Republican swing puts Sen. Vance Hartke in jeopardy.

THE REPUBLICANS also have their vulnerables, conspicuously two newcomers, Ted Stevens of Alaska and Ralph T. Smith of Illinois. Adlai Stevenson III will oppose Smith. George Murphy of California has the handicap of age and illness, but with popular Gov. Ronald Reagan running for re-election, he is a likely survivor.

In the 1970 version of the game of musical chairs, money for television time will be all-important. In that department the Republicans have an overwhelming advantage and they mean to make every use of it.

ART BUCHWALD

Could He Say It So Sincerely If He Really Rode A Train?

WASHINGTON — The American railroads may be behind the times when it comes to serving passengers, but as far as their public relations are concerned, they are literally in the Space Age.

Some months ago, the American railroads hired Wally Schirra, the astronaut, to do their radio and television commercials for them. Schirra, in his sincere voice, tells us what a great job the American railroads are doing for each and every one of us and always ends his commercials with the same statement: "The American railroads—who needs them?—you do."

I'M QUITE SURE Schirra wouldn't make a commercial unless he believed in the product, so the only thing we can assume is that he hasn't taken a ride recently on a passenger train.

I would like to imagine what would happen if one of our astronauts toook a ride from Stamford to New York during the morning rush hours.

"This is Penn-Central Control. We are 87 minutes late into takeoff and holding. How do you feel, Wally?"

"I'm freezing my tail off. Where's the train?"

"It's in New Haven and holding, Wally. Suggest you guys go into the waiting room."

TWENTY MINUTES later: "Hello, Penn-Central. I am now in the cabin of the train and holding."

"Wally, our engineers advise us that the lack of heat will not hurt the train, so we're proceeding with all systems go. 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 blastoff!"

Static, noise, explosions, static.

"Wally, where are you? Give your exact position."

"I'm still in the Stamford station. The coupling broke on the engine."

TWENTY MINUTES later, Penn-Central Control: "Wally, we're going to try it again. Here we go 4-3-2-1 BLASTOFF!"

"Hello, Penn-Central Control. We're moving, we're moving! It's beautiful."

"What do you see, Wally?"

"Nothing, the windows are all fogged. But what a feeling! It's the most wonderful feeling in the world to be on a train and actually moving."

"Hello, Wally. We're going to go through Larchmont in the next hour or so. We want you to drink some water."

"Penn-Central, there is no water on the train."

"Wally, the doctors advise us if you stay on schedule you may not need any water. But don't use up much energy. Can you see Larchmont yet?"

"I think so. There seem to be frozen carcasses of passengers piled all over the station."

"That's Larchmont. Get some photographs so our people can study them."

FOR THE NEXT 40 minutes Penn-Central Control lost contact with the train and, when they raised it again, asked, "Wally where are you now?"

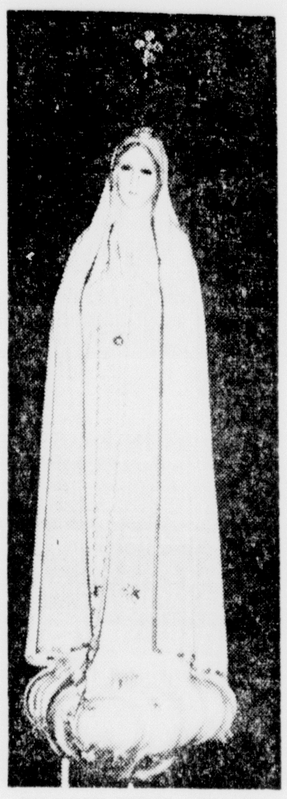
"Somewhere in Harlem on a siding. Can you give me an estimated touchdown time at Grand Central?"

"Our computers indicate you should be in the terminal no later than 12:15 p.m. Do you know what you're going to say when you put your foot down on the platform at Grand Central?"

"I'm going to say 'The American railroads—who needs them?—you do.'"

"Good show, Wally, and we're all praying here for you to have a safe journey home."

Veneration Slated For Virgin Statue



PILGRIM VIRGIN STATUE
To visit San Rafael

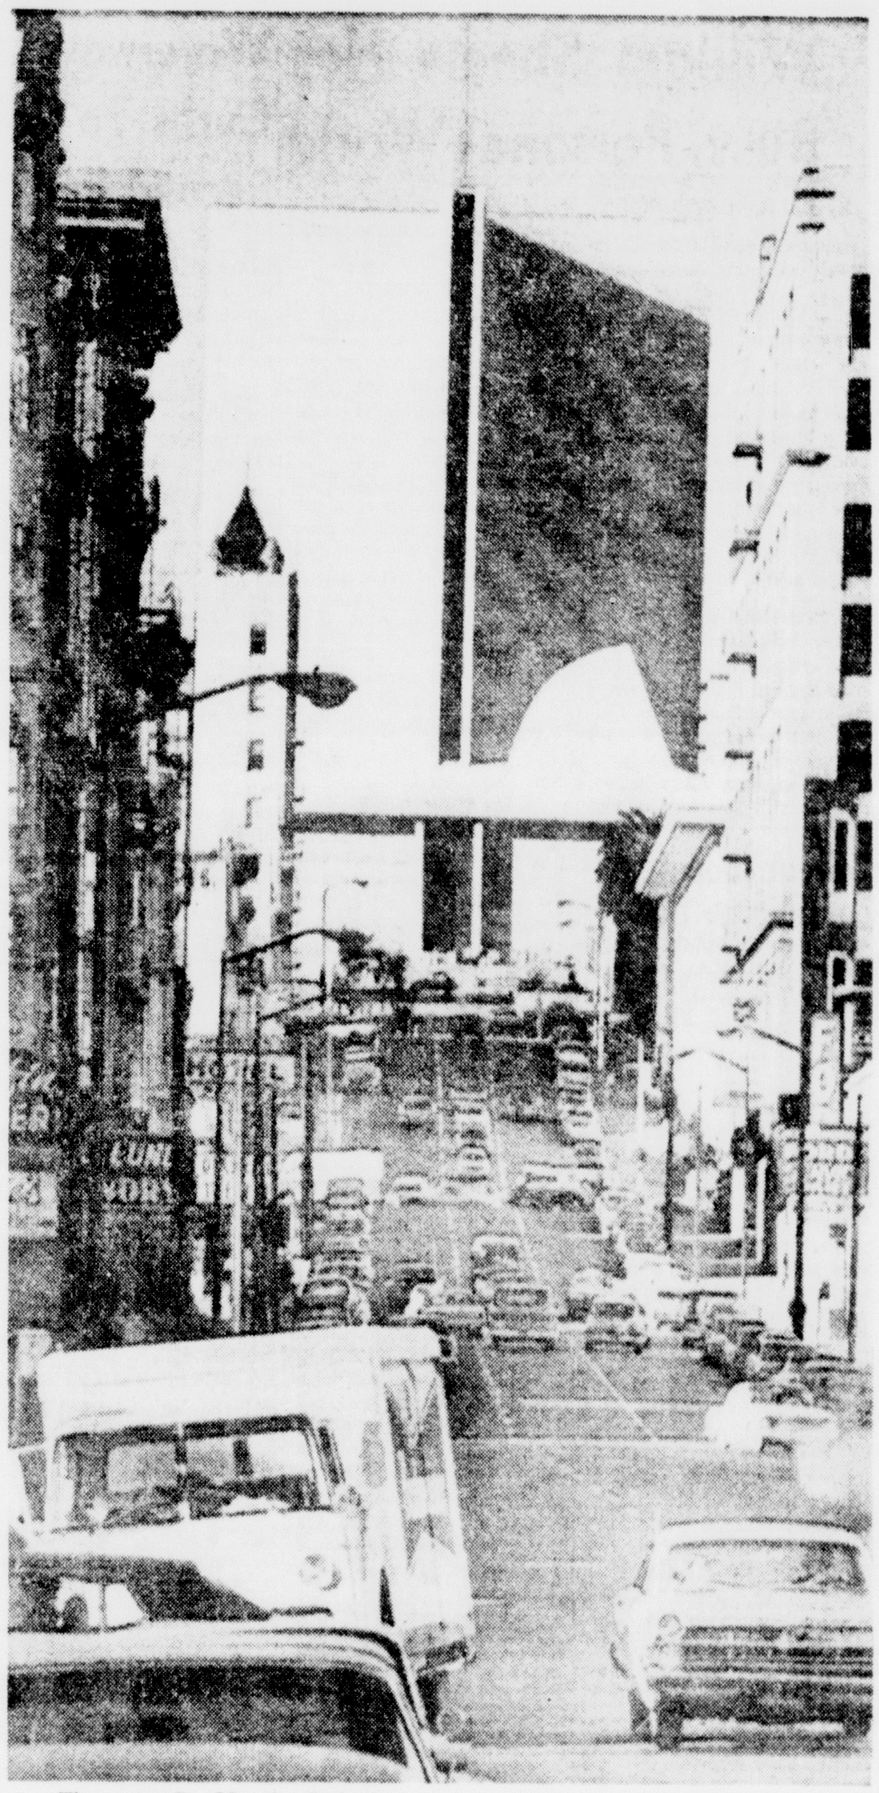
The Pilgrim Virgin Statue, a symbol of hope to Catholics, will be vernerated in services Tuesday at St. Raphael's Catholic Parish in San Rafael.

Carved from wood by Portugese sculptor Jese Thedin, the statue was inspired by the visions of the three children at Fatima, Portugal in 1917. Sister Lucy, the sole survivor of the visions, assisted Thedin by describing the vision in detail.

The statue's pilgrimage began in 1947. Since then it has been attended by 25 million persons with South Vietnam its latest stop.

A possession of the statue into the church will be followed by an 8:30 a.m. mass. Special visits of children's groups and lay organizations will be held throughout the day.

Conclusion of the veneration will be at 7 p.m. with a Latin High Mass celebrated by Rev. Thomas I. Kennedy, pastor of St. Raphael's.



The new St. Mary's Cathedral, mother church of the Archdiocese of San Francisco, is an impressive structure as viewed from O'Farrel Street from near th edowntown area. The nwe building atop Cathedral Hill, when completed later this year, will replace an old brick structure on nearby Van Ness Avenue which burned in 1962. Outer portions of the church are covered with travertine marble from Italy. Work is continuing on the interior. (AP Wirephoto)

Change Unlikely In Church Celibacy Law

By GODFREY ANDERSON

LONDON (AP) — A survey of European countries shows that the Roman Catholic rule on priestly celibacy, the subject of deep controversy in some areas, faces little challenge among the clergy elsewhere.

The question was brought forward forcefully this month when the Dutch Pastoral Council, a national body of clergy and laity, voted 90-6 in favor of ending the obligation of celibacy as a condition for ordination. There were 100 abstentions—the bishop members of the council.

Pope Paul VI has called the rule against marriage an "incomparable treasure" of the Latin Church, and has lamented as "our crown of thorns" the current controversy. In 1967 he rejected any change in canon law on the subject.

Since celibacy is a matter of the Church's universal discipline, the concensus is that, even if the Dutch bishops make the council's recommendation their own, they cannot change the law even for Holland on their own responsibility.

But recent Dutch surveys have shown 72 per cent of Dutch Catholics, including clergy, want the celibacy rule ended.

In a few European countries an increasing number of priests are giving up active office, many to wed. Four hundred left in Holland in two years; around a hundred left last year in Britain. But most of Europe's priests are content with their lot or at least keep silent. And most of those who have left say they would continue to exercise their priestly functions or return to them, if permitted to do so as married men.

Some bishops worry more about the effect all this talk may have on recruiting clergy. Many young men, they say, are adopting a wait-and-see attitude toward the celibacy question before committing themselves to the priesthood.

A German magazine poll in several seminaries indicated that more than 90 per cent of those questioned opposed the unmarried life which lay ahead of them as priests.

Munich's Action Circle—composed of priests, former priests and laymen—has published an end-celibacy request made to Julius Cardinal Doepfner, as chairman of the German Bishops' Conference.

The German news magazine Der Spiegel says about two-thirds of the priests it polled favored lifting the relationship between priesthood and celibacy. But many said they did not want marriage for themselves.

"Holland has accustomed us to such things. It's like them to spell out very clearly what they think and criticize the hierarchy—without even thinking of schism."

A 30-year-old priest from Perugia said: "As far as Italian priests are concerned, I don't think marriage is good for them now. . . . One is afraid it would make them more bourgeois."

Italy's conference of bishops is scheduled to discuss problems of the priesthood in June. It is making a 212-question poll of all parishes. The words "marriage" and "celibacy" don't appear, since the celibacy question is judged finally settled, but priests will reply to a question about psychological problems they face.

Nothing is officially known about the number of priestly dropouts in Italy, although it is believed to have increased in recent years, especially in the south.

The only official poll on celibacy, carried out in Turin with approval of Michele Cardinal Pellegrino, showed that of 465 priests who replied 304 favored admission of married men to the priesthood, with 76 unconditionally against. A total of 301 backed optional celibacy for priests, with 104 wanting it to remain mandatory.

In Austria, about 2,000 priests were asked for their views and "a considerable number" favored being allowed to marry. This showed up especially among priests under 50. Findings of the opinion poll, not disclosed in detail, have been sent to the bishops for study.

Church sources in France say that requests from priests to be allowed to marry rose from 10 in 1962-63 to 116 in 1968. There are 41,076 priests in France.

More conservative Catholic countries do not show the same unrest.

"The situation in Belgium is extremely quiet," said Msgr. Joseph Schoenmakers, auxiliary bishop in the Malines archbishopric. "The problem, of course, exists but not with any acuteness now. But any decision in Holland would have possible consequences here."

The problem has hardly touched the Roman Catholic cantons of Switzerland. Spanish bishops have told their clergy that celibacy is here to stay.

Polish bishops maintain a strict posture against any change in rules.

Historically the Church's view of celibacy has not been unchanging. St. Peter, regarded as the first Pope, and many bishops and priests of the early Church were married men.

The discipline of celibacy appears to have taken hold in the Latin Church in the fourth century. In 1139 the Second Lateran Council put celibacy in the Church's rule-book of canon law and made marriage a direct impediment to the reception of holy orders. The Eastern Rite Catholic Church, like the Protestants, never made celibacy mandatory for all clerics.

Urges Woman Pres. For Convention

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI) —A suggestion that a woman be nominated for President of the American Baptist Convention for the year 1970-71 has been made by the board of Managers of American Baptist Women to the ABC nominating committee.

"There are women qualified to serve (as president)," the recommendation said. "From past records, it appears that a lay person is nominated every third year. We recommend that a lay woman be nominated." Since the convention was founded in 1907, four women have served as president.

Non-Catholic Church Count Up In Brazil

LONDON (AP)—The number of non-Roman Catholic christians in Brazil rose from 1,920,000 in 1960 to 2,902,000 by 1968, the South American Missionary Society was told during recent celebrations here of the 125th anniversary of its foundation.

Ernest Oliver, secretary of the Evangelical Missionary Alliance and executive secretary of the Regions Beyond Missionary Union said the increase meant a growth of eight per cent in the number of protestant churches in Brazil. The population of Brazil is about 85 million.

Russia's Baptist Churches Thriving

NEW YORK (AP)—"The vigorous growth of Baptist congregations in the Soviet Union, especially since World War II indicates the spirital vitality of the movement," Reverend Dr. Eugene L. Smith said on return from a visit there.

Dr. Smith, head of the New York office of the World Council of Churches, said the Russian Baptist movement "has survived and grown under pressures of anti-religious propaganda of the government."

Church Of Ireland Has A New Bishop

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Cuthbert Irvine Peacocke of Belfast has been elected to succeed Dr. J. Tyndall as Church of Ireland Episcopalian Bishop of Derry and Raphoe.

The Dean, who is 66, is a son of Rt. Rev. Joseph Peacocke, who was Bishop of Derry and Raphoe from 1916 to 1945. He is a graduate of Trinity College, Dublin, and long served as clerical secretary of the General Synod of the Church of Ireland.

MARIN 'WAY' CHAPTERS

Youth Turning To Bible For Finding Better Way Of Life

Future authorities on early religious writing and religious leaders may be training in three "way groups" in Marin County.

They are members of "The Way," a nondenominational organization keyed to the scriptures, said David Schlosser and Lester Harries, Novato youth who recently returned from a week of study at the Way Biblical Research Center in New Knoxville, Ohio.

They are leaders in the Novato group. Other Marin units are in Mill Valley and Kentfield, with membership of 80 teenagers and young adults.

Their aim, according to Scholosser, is that of seeking better life through the teachings in the Bible — both Old and New Testaments.

"We believe that the Bible was the inspired word of God and gives each person the "how" God wants man to lead a more abundant life in all aspects," said Harries.

The Way is not content to use accepted translations of the Bible, but go back to the original Greek and Amaraic texts for study, he said.

Although most of the translations from the original texts are done at the Way Research Center, local members do a lot of their own work in translating. Harries said that he was going back to the center next summer to study Greek to aid him in his work in translating the ancient Greek Bible.

CHARTING CAREERS

"There are several of us considering careers in this," he added.

The Novato group meets three times a week to listen to tapes on the scriptures, do research and compare notes.

They meet at 7:30 p.m. on Tuesday at the Robert J. Morris home at 1138 Ferris Drive; the same hour on Thursdays at All Saints Lutheran Church on Marin Drive and San Carlos Way and 2 p.m., Sunday at the Harries home at 2096 Mill Road.

"Our research is both in the Old and New Testaments, but we concentrate on the New Testament. It clears up the contradictions in the Bible," he said.

For example, he said that Jesus said that he would be dead three days and three nights. According to their research on the scripture, Jesus died on Wednesday and arose on Saturday.

"This will probably draw disapproval of most Christians today," he said.

CENTER FOUNDER

The Way Research Center was founded by Dr. Victor Paul Wierwille after 25 years of researching the Bible and finding the keys and sign posts in the early scriptures, said Schlosser, a Catholic.

Sclosser of 275 San Felipe Way, said that their group takes anyone from any church.

"If they are not satisfied with what they are receiving from their church, we take them into the group and offer them a fuller life than they can get from their church," he said. This does not interfer, however, with their attending their own church, according to Schlosser.

In addition to his own instruction at the center, Wierwille has material prepared for his units. There is a 32-hour film which takes two weeks of classes to show. There are books and other material for self-teaching courses which the members may purchase.

OTHER STATE GROUPS

From the original Way Center, others have been established throughout the world. There are nine chapters in California. In addition to Marin's three, other chapters are in San Francisco, Oakland, Alameda, San Jose, Los Angeles and San Diego.

Wierwille will conduct a public course at 7 p.m. daily, Feb. 1 through 20 at Homestead Elementary School, 305 Monteford Avenue, Mill Valley.

'Lukewarm' Church Members Attacked

NEW YORK (AP) — Some Christians have "only enough religion to be inoculated against the real thing," says the Reverend Dr. Ben Mohr Herbster, who retired recently after eight years as president of the United Church of Christ.

He told guests at a banquet in his honor that "lukewarm" church members reduce the "temperature of an otherwise devoted people" and become a "millstone around the life of the average congregation."

Synod Appeal

ST. LOUIS (UPI)—An appeal to members of The Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod for support of world relief operations has been issued by the denomination's Board of Social Ministry and World Relief. The appeal notes that the world relief budget of $697,000 for the current year must be completely funded by voluntary contributions

Air Force May Shift Unit To Hamilton

The Air Force is considering a plan to move a 430-man headquarters unit to Hamilton Air force from McClellan Air Force Base near Sacramento.

A spokesman for Rep John E. Moss, D-Third District, emphasized that no decision has been made.

The unit being considered for transfer is headquarters of the Western Ground Electronic Engineering Installation Agency, with 113 military members and 317 civilian employees. Its annual payroll is approximately $5 million.

The unit is responsible for installing and maintaining ground communications and electronic and weather equipment for 10 western states, western Canada, Baja California, the Aleutian Islands and Pacific sites in the Western Test Range.

Lt. Col. Everett C. Brown, chief information officer at Hamilton, said the proposed shift was one of many being considered, with nothing definite decided yet. Numerous groups are being considered for transfer to Hamilton in current reductions and closing of other bases around the nation, Brown said.

Both Moss and Rep. Robert L. Leggett, D-Fourth District, met with Air Force officials Monday and argued against the move, saying it might create financial hardship for employees.

Smog District May Get Power Against Odors

I—J Special Report

San Francisco—Legislation intended to strengthen the powers of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District will be introduced Monday by Assemblyman John L. Burton, D-San Francisco.

Burton said on Thursday his bill would authorize the board to charge industries a registration fee, provide state funds for increased enforcement and require the district's board to set standards for odor pollution.

(The board already has asked its advisory council to draft standards for odor pollution, and voted to seek legislation allowing registration fees. At present, the district is financed by a maximum property tax of 1.3 cents per $100 assessed valuation, but has voted to seek legislation to raise the maximum by an unspecified amount.)

Burton claimed that the district board "has a lack of expertise, a lack of staff and a lack of full-time commissioners." (The district has 90 persons on its staff.)

Burton also asserted that the board was "industry oriented when it should be people oriented."

Safety Report

The Kentfield School District board will hear a report on pedestrian safety problems near Adaline E. Kent and Wolfe Grade schools when it meets at 8 p.m. Monday in the library at Wolfe Grade School.

PETALUMA RIVER STUDY

Environment Protection Stressed By Respondents

Recurring calls for protection of the natural environment . . . mixed with fewer requests for greater development . . . are contained in responses by Marin and Southern Sonoma property owners to questions on development of the Petaluma River.

Keith Dwyer, of the Sonoma County Economic Development board has reported receiving 22 replies in an initial response to questionnaires sent to 155 property owners and businessmen. Most stressed the need to eliminate pollution from the waterway and called for zoning to safeguard open space and wildlife.

Many called for increased recreational facilities, with Marinas, restaurants and shops listed often. Others called for balance of residential and commercial zones which would be enhanced by open space.

A smaller number called for more industry on the river. A broader tax base was listed as justification for both heavy and light industry.

Some expressed pessimism at the possibility that something might finally be done to develop the potential of the river, while one person used the opportunity to scribble, "Get off the ball and do something" across the bottom of the form.

Some said they invision scenic boat harbors and likened the area to the San Rafael Canal. Another suggestion was to construct a barrier of the month of San Pablo Bay to impound waters and form a lake for pleasure crafts.

Dwyer said he and four committees preparing recommendations for river development would weigh the recommendations.

Felony Driving Plea Date Set For Friday

William Sheets Has Busy, Personal World

By LAURA DEVENDORF

William Sheets is totally involved with his environment and it's a very personal affair. In a style that is old, yet new, Sheets draws and paints the very close private world in which he lives, his rooms, the things in them, the woman there plus a measured glimpse of the countryside beyond.

Sheets's style suggests several turn-of-the-century painters. Yet it can also have a fresh intimacy which holds all the excitement of new discovery.

TWO-YEAR REVIEW

There aren't many canvases in the artist's exhibit which continues through Feb. 6 at Dominican College's San Marco Gallery. But in covering a two-year period, they describe a progression from often brown-dark, heavily painted and distorted oils to a recent still life which is soft, light and rather realistically done.

CHANGE FOR BEST?

I'm not sure the change is totally welcome. There is something terribly nice, too nice really, about this latest one. It still contains the jumble of things filling every inch with pieces of furniture, flowers, fruit, rugs and patterned walls. But it has sacrificed the emotional intensity the earlier canvases show, even though they are often ugly.

There is one crowded, linking canvas which, while bringing things more into perspective, still retains Sheets's best mixture of clutter and color, including some expressively beautiful blues. But the favorite is still a yellow room painted two years ago.

GLAD PAINTING

This is a painting that is glad to the point of smiles—an emotional view of things happily out of proportion. A small chair or a bend of stove pipe may seem huge, while a stiff sofa is made miniscule. Outside, the hills are the greenest of spring greens and the sky is impossibly blue. It's a simple cottage, really, but Sheets has painted it elaborately as though transforming it by the affection held for it.

Sheets's drawings are quite strange. One interior which is vibrant in an oil, becomes oppressive with heavy, dark, hyphenated lines. His landscapes, which are less worked-over have a twisting windblown quality. Yet they too seem like no place that you might have been.

It's the same, really, with his oils. The color helps you relate to them but for all the near-realism and the familiar objects Sheets includes, his environment is one that only he can recognize. And it is this personal, emotional involvement that often gives his seemingly familiar canvases a strong distinction of their own.

College Booster Committee Set

A subcommittee of the College of Marin Foundation has been named to plan this year's campaign for college scholarship and loan funds.

Subcommittee members Ernest N. Kettenhofen, J. Galen Foster, Kent O. Seymour and Philip Merriman will meet Monday to make compaign recommendations for the fifth annual fund drive.

The foundation board last Monday voted to ask the college's academic senate and associated students to appoint two faculty members and two students to sit in on future foundation meetings as consultants, in a move to broaden participation in the foundation's efforts.

The foundation directors will meet again at 8 p.m. Feb. 2 in a conference room in the college's new group of portable office buildings.

Church Ransacked

Burglars who broke into the Congregational Church on North San Pedro Road in Santo Venetia last Thursday or Friday ransacked the building, but church officials have not ascertained if anything is missing, sheriff's deputies have reported.

Waterways Curbs To Get Second Look

A new ordinance to control filling and building on tidal waterways will be reviewed once again by the Marin County Planning Commission Monday morning.

The all-day meeting of the commisssion will start at 9 a.m. on the third floor of the Civic Center.

Last week the Marin County Board of Supervisors suggested that the proposed ordinance be revised so that it will apply only to the shoreline, including Bolinas Lagoon and Tomales Bay, but not to the bay waters which are already controlled by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

In its prestnt draft, the ordinance would control fill and building on tidal waterways which are below and elevation of 7.5 feet above mean lower low water, and 100 feet inland from that point.

Stanley W. Taylor, Strawberry Point developer, will oppose a lot split granted to Ronald N. Grunt at 376 East Strawberry Drive, who plans to use the smaller lot, 11,660 square feet, for recreational and cultural center.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Bosch of Sant Venetia will seek a use permit to allow up to 16 horses at an existing stable at 257 North San Pedo Road, next to Gallinas School.

North Bay Artists Elect John Crawford

John Crawford, art instructor and counselor at St. Vincent's School for Boys, Marinwood, has been elected 1970 president of North Bay Artists.

Frances Ewing was elected vice president, Mrs. JoAnne Goldsmith, secretary, and Minette Johnson, treasurer.

Marinwood Concert Set By College Choir

The San Francisco State College choir will give a consert Monday at 8 p.m. in the Church of the Nativity in Marinwood.

The "Missa Pro Defuncto" by the 16th century Spanish composer Victoria, sacred and secular music by Johannes Brahms, contemporary American compositions and one work by California composer Roger Nixon will be performed.

Soloists appearing with the 27-member choir are Lloyd Maes, assistant conductor; Craig Bond, director of music at the Church of the Nativity and tenor Alan Parker of Oakland.

Appearing as three cantors in the "Victoria Requiem" are: baritone Richard Nutting of the First Methodist Church in Redwood City; tenor Edwin Nesmith of San Francisco and tenor Stephen Taylor of Mill Valley.

The choir is conducted by John Carl Tegnell, professor of music at San Francisco State.

Shop Center Nod Sought In Novato

A request for a shopping center with food market, drug store and drive-in restaurant at South Novato Boulevard and Diablo Avenue will come before the Novato Planning Commission at 8 p.m., Monday in the Novato Community House.

Sutter Hills Development Co. has proposed the center for 4.5 acres in the triangle between the two streets and Warner Creek. Several proposals have been turned down before by the commission and city council because handling of traffic of the businesses at this busy intersection has not been solved.

Other items to come before the commission include use permits for: a boys club on a lot on the north side of Lamont Avenue adjacent to the Northwestern Pacific Railroad; office and repair shop in the Novato Auto Mart on Ford way for E.D. McGillicuddy and for a service station on the north side of De Long Avenue between Reichert and Scott avenues.

Burglary Charges To Juvenile Court

Charges of grand theft and attempted burglary against Richard Alen Middleton, 18, of Rohnert Park, were referred to Sonoma County Juvenile Court yesterday in Central Sonoma Municipal Court.

Middleton was arrested Jan. 6 on suspicion of stealing several gum machines and attempting to break into the coin box of a telephone booth at Rohnert Park Shopping Center.

Storm Blacks Out Two Marin High School Cage Games

Drake and Novato high schools won games, while this year's monsoons and the powers of darkness won the other two in a suddenly sparse Marin County Athletic League basketball schedule last night.

Mild confusion and laughter in the dark reigned at both Redwood and San Rafael high schools when stormed-caused power failures put a halt to scheduled games between San Rafael and Tamalpais and Redwood and Terra Linda.

At San Rafael, the blackout came with some six minutes left in the second quarter of the varsity game, with Tamalpais leading, 15-9.

At Redwood, the power failure occurred at a strategic moment—in the last 29 seconds of the junior varsity game, with a Terra Linda player standing on the free throw line, shooting a one-in-one situation with his team ahead 37-35.

Some 1,000 fans at San Rafael High School and over 2,000 at Redwood were stranded in the sudden darkness, but no incidents of any kind were reported by either school.

Action will resume at these exact same spots tonight when San Rafael and Tamalpais will pick up where they left off at 8:15 o'clock and Redwood tries again at 7:30, beginning first with the last seconds of the junior varsity game.

Marin Catholic, in the middle of a long, long season, had no such luck occur in Novato where the Wildcats lost a 40-39 decision to the previously winless (in league play) Hornets, even though a game plan worked to perfection.

Drake won its second loop game, downing San Marin 73-65, even though 6-foot-7 junior Dana LaFerriere of San Marin broke loose for an astounding 41 points, 21 of which came in the final period.

The Tam Indians had a good thing going at San Rafael until the big blackout as Briggs Skullman came through with seven big points, working against 6-8 Don Duryee.

"Now we'll have a whole 24 hours to think it over," Tamalpais coach Bernie Schneider said. "It's like playing a bridge game."

School officials and coaches decided to reschedule the game after more than one half hour's wait in the darkness.

Marin Catholic held Novato ace Joe DeMeastri to two points and potentially explosive Gene Barnes to five points, but still couldn't win as the Wildcats dropped into the cellar with Novato, with 1-4 league records.

LaFerriere scored on four three-point plays in the final period but he was the whole show for the Mustangs. San Marin is without ace Gary Howard, out for three weeks with pulled chest muscles.

The Drake Pirates were ahead by as much as 20 points in the game before LaFerriere led a big charge which saw Tom Pugh and Jim Forni foul out attempting to stop him.

Jeff Meeker led the Pirates with 19 points while Pugh, playing his best league game for the Pirates, contributed 12 points, along with Glenn Pfaff.

Bulldozer Blade Buries Little League Memories

They bulldozed the Little League field over the weekend. Ran the blade right over the place where my kid struck out the side after only an 11-run inning one day. Knocked down the fence where the neighbors' little Mikey used to play caroming singles into game-winning, base-emptying homeruns.

The pitcher's mound, where they set a one-inning record of 76 walks, is no more.

I bet the fence didn't give them much trouble. It was hard to hold up in a high wind, anyway. I wonder if the driver winced when he hit the part that said, "Hit This Sign and Win a Free Meal at the Malibu Inn?" Did you realize he was stealing second illegally?

You know what a bulldozer kills? Not weeds, lots, rotting tree stumps, fences, backstops. Bulldozers bury memories.

They ran that blade right over a whole generation of kids with piping voices, bubble gum, hats two sizes too large, gloves that came clear up to the elbow. They knocked over a dugout filled with the ghostly voices of kids yelling, "You got 'em now, Dusty!" or, "Get back, get back!" or, "Wait for a good one, Rick!"

Broken Bats And Broken Hearts

They put ages 34-39 underground forever for a lot of us. They tore out Sunday afternoons from 1956-1966. They got gum wrappers, Hershey foil, yellowing baseballs, broken bats—and broken hearts—clinging to that blade plus a slingshot or two, and a few old pictures of Duke Snider. I imagine there are a few tears stains.

They're building some complex on the lot now—a courthouse, a fire department, emergency hospital, police headquarters, library, radio dispatcher.

They're going to need all those things without Little League. That's the trouble with this country. We're always building things to catch people. They tear down trees, cement over creeks, plow up second base and then grumble because kids don't climb trees or catch frogs or play baseball the way we used to do.

Little League doesn't solve everything. It must have been a pang for some parents whose kids went from Little League baseball to big league heartbreak.

It wasn't universally lauded. We had the kitchen psychiatrists, too, who had been frightened by books written by people who never had—or were—kids and who held out for "unstructured" play. The only trouble with "unstructured" play was, the cops kept catching you at it.

Grace Notes Of Civilization

Maybe it was more fun for the parents at that. Anyway, it's academic now. It's gone. Like your kid's first step, first word, first bike—his first base hit will not be a blacktop parking lot or a sign saying "No Parking" or "Keep Out, This Means You" or anyone of the other grace notes of our civilization.

As I say, it's gone. I suppose there are plans for a new one some place. There better be. Pacific Coast Highway is no place for "unstructured" play.

Still, it won't be OUR Little League. The ramshackle dugout. The backstop that had to be repaired with chicken wire. The foul lines with detours in them. It'll probably have real grass in the outfield. It probably won't have any rocks in the infield. No team will have any left-handed third-basemen.

It'll have nothing to do with where my kid hit his first double. It'll probably have a gleaning counter instead of the lean-to where mothers took turns selling Abacadabas or grape sodas, usually to the players of the team at bat.

Instead of the scoreboard, which was always an inning behind because the kid in charge of hanging up the numbers was always off buying an ice cream sandwich when runs were being scored, it'll probably have one as up-to-date as the Naval Observatory.

No, they just ran a bulldozer through a lot of dirty-faced kids in knickers with "Mayfair Market" or "Realty Board" sewn on their uniforms. They just bulldozed our youth for a lot of us. They were careful not to break anything valuable—just hearts.

SONOMA BASKETBALL

Petaluma Halted By Santa Rosans

The usually high-powered Petaluma High School basketball scoring machine came to a creaking halt last night as the Trojans, winners of four straight North Bay League I contests, were upended by old nemesis Santa Rosa, 59-48, at Santa Rosa.

The loss further muddled the already tight NBL-I race, with no less than five teams in various stages of contention. Petaluma dropped to second place with a 4-2 won-lost record, just behind Montgomery of Santa Rosa at 4-1 while Santa Rosa, Vallejo and Napa are tied for third with 3-2 marks.

Petaluma's usual one-two punch of veteran Ross Goree and junior center Joe Rodola came through again, but there wasn't enough punch left in the rest of the lineup. Goree poured in 21 points and Rodola got 16.

In other Sonoma County games, Rancho Cotate of Rohnert Park put up a severe battle against unbeaten North Bay League II leader Cardinal Newman of Santa Rosa before succumbing, 68-61, at Santa Rosa and St. Vincent's of Petaluma dumped Tomales, 70-53 at Petaluma.

Junior center Ron Seiler scored 4 points and grabbed 27 rebounds in leading Rancho Cotate's fine effort against Cardinal Newman. Rancho Cotate had a 35-34 halftime lead.

In another NBL-II game, Sonoma blasted El Molino, 92-72, in Forestville, to pad its league record to 4-1 and its season mark to a fine 12-2.

Dick Romberg scored 24 points and Dan Waldron had 17 for tht Dragons.

Warriors Shake Slump

OAKLAND AP — Having snapped a three-game losing streak the San Francisco Warriors try to make it two in a row over the Phoenix Suns in a National Basketball Association game tonight at the Oakland Arena.

The Warriors exploded for 84 points in the second half Friday night at Phoenix to trip the Suns 138-132.

Fritz Williams led the second half surge with 24 points, 16 in the fourth quarter.

The Suns led by 13 at halftime, but the Warriors, hitting 64 per cent of their shots, cut the Suns' lead to two points at the end of the third period.

The Warriors went ahead by eight points in the final period, but the Suns, led by Jim Fox and Connie Hawkins, cut the lead to two.

With a minute and a half to play, the Warriors' Clyde Lee hit a crucial field goal to put the winenrs out of reach.

DUCKS RUN FOR COVER

Yancey Halfway Leader; More Storms Predicted

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Even the ducks were looking for shelter.

But not the golfers. They had to play in the whipping wind, and the cold and the ocean spray.

Bert Yancey, who says he's "settled down to my life work," did it best. The one-time West Pointer shot a wind-blown 70 Friday and took over sole control of first place in the $125,000 Bing Crosby Pro-Am with a 36-hole total of 137.

He held a two-stroke lead over big Jim Wiechers and former Masters champion Bob Goalby, each at 139. Wiechers had a second round 71 and Goalby a 72.

All three leaders—in fact 19 of the 25 players at par or better going into the third round—played Spyglass Hill Thursday and still must face Pebble Beach. Of the three Monterey Peninsula courses being used for the first three rounds, Spyglass is the most sheltered from the wind and Pebble is the toughest. Cypress Point is the other. All carry par 72s.

OUT OF SIGHT

Only two pros in the field of 168 broke 70 in Friday's cold and gale-force winds. Some scores went out of sight. Ron Cerrudo, of Napa, one of the first round leaders, went to a 76. Bob Murphy, who had an opening 67, took a 78. Frank Beard, last year's leading money winner, had an 81. Hugh Royer went from a 68 to 82.

TV COVERAGE

Final holes of the Bing Crosby tournament tomorrow will be televised nationally by NBC starting at 1:30 p.m.

An expected rain—it's forecast again today—failed to show, but the wind more than made up for it. The blasts off the Pacific were strong enough to ground the sea gulls, swept the ducks off their usual haunts along Pebble Beach and knocked players off balance as they lined up shots.

Italian Roberto Bernardini, 70, and Tom Shaw, 71, both at Spyglass, and Don Massengale, 70 at Cypress Point, are three strokes back at 140. Arnold Palmer, 72 at Cypress, and defending champion George Archer, 73 at Spyglass, are in a group of six at 141.

Jack Nicklaus had a 72 at Pebble Beach and is very much in contention at 142.

Under the unusual format for this prestige-laden event, the teams of 168 pros and amateurs—many of the latter show business celebrities—all play the three courses over the first three days, then the field is cut and the finals Sunday are played over Pebble Beach only.

"I've played Spyglass poorly before," Yancey said, "but it was a great companion to me out there today. The wind was really blowing, but those trees sheltered you.

Yancey, who said he was

8,277 Watch Seals Knock Off Toronto

OAKLAND (AP) —The lowly Oakland Seals of the National Hockey League West Division flexed their muscles against the East Division cellar team Friday night, blasting the Toronto Maple Leafs, 6-3.

The Seals' Earl Ingarfield led the way in the only NHL game with his second hat trick of the season before 8,277 fans.

The Seals, who have won two and tied two of their last five contests, moved to within one point of fourth-place Pittsburgh in the West Division.

They took a 2-0 first period lead on a pair of power play goals by Ingarfield and defenseman Doug Roberts when the Leafs had two men in the penalty box.

ROUGH GAME

Goals by Jim McKenney and Bob Pulford of the Leafs tied it at 2-2 in the second period of the penalty-marred contest.

Ten penalties were called, including a double minor on the Leafs' Jim Harrison for charging and a five-minute major penalty on Roberts for high sticking.

The Seals rattled off goals—by Ingarfield and defenseman Harry Howell in the second period and by Ingarfield and defenseman Dick Mattiusi in the final period.

Redwood, Tam Capture Final Water Battles

Redwood and Tamalpais high schools, the two teams that gave champion Terra Linda heated chase through the long water polo season, put a capper on the first official year of competition in the sport by trouncing lesser foes yesterday.

Tamalpais, which lost its first two meets of the year, won its ninth yesterday, ripping San Rafael, 14-10, to finish with a 9-3 won-lost mark.

Redwood roared past Novato, 33-13, in a free-wheeling match, and in a slower kind of game, San Marin edged Drake, 3-1, as the Pirates failed to win a league contest.

COMBINED A.P. & UPI

The tennis world was rocked by some major upsets yesterday and today in action thousands of miles apart.

Pancho Gonzales, the 41-year-old grand old man of tennis, shot from behind to upend Rod Laver, Australia's 1969 Grand Slam king, 7-5, 3-6, 2-6, 6-3, 6-2 in a $10,000 winner-take-all match at Madison Square Garden in New York, battling exhaustion and stomach cramps in the final set.

In the combined New South Wales and Australian national tennis championships, sixth-seeded American Dennis Ralston ousted second-seeded John Newcombe of Australia in the longest singles match in Australian big-time tennis, 19-17, 20-18, 4-6, 6-3.

The match ran over two days with four hours and 20 minutes of action yesterday and 21 minutes today. In other matches, Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., ousted Australian Davis Cup player Ray Ruffels, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4, 6-2 and Australian Richard Crealy pulled off his second upset in a row ousting Tom Okker of the Netherlands, 6-1, 3-6, 4-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Hockey

LOS ANGELES — Dick Duff, a veteran of 15 National Hockey League seasons, was traded yesterday from the Montreal Canadiens to the Los Angeles Kings for a player to be named later.

Boxing

ROME — Eddie Pace, a top-rated challenger in the light middleweight division, didn't get much of a fight last night when he was awarded a surprise decision over world light middleweight champion Freddie Little of Las Vegas after Little was disqualified in the eighth round for failing to fight.

The referee's decision touched off a near-riot among the 15,000 spectators in the Rome Sports Palace as the crowd booed, jeered and showered the ring with fruit and bread.

Santa Clara Hits Peak; UCLA Wins

By United Press International

UCLA is unbeaten, but scared, while Santa Clara once again looks like one of the nation's best after a rugged night of cage activity on the Coast.

The nationally top-ranked Bruins Friday night hosted lightly-regarded Santa Barbara and then had to go all out for an 89-80 victory.

The difference was 6-8 Sidney Wicks who muscled in three key baskets late in the going and wound up with 19 points. John Tshogl had 20 for the losers. UCLA faces a stiff test tonight against Wyoming, now 12-2.

BEST YET

kSanta Clara has been beaten three times, but nobody plays better on certain occasions, either. Next to the Bronces' win over Houston at Las Vegas, Friday's win at tough Seattle has to rate as their best yet this season.

The score was 82-76 as big Dennis Awtrey, a 6-10 pivot who is probably the Coast's best, scored 26. So did Tommy Little, Seattle's all-coast performer.

Two other fine pivot men clashed at Corvallis where 7-foot Vic Bartolome had four of his 24 points in the last minute to lead the Beavers to a 78-73 win over Oregon, led by Stan Love. The Beavers hit 18 of 21 shots in the second half of the contest, which did not count in the conference standings. The two old rivals meet again this afternoon.

WARM UP

Wyoming warmed up for tonight's UCLA clash by dumping Stanford 84-74. Dennis O'Neill was heroic for the losers as he swished 36, but Stan Dodds hit 13 of 19 shots to lead the Cowpokes.

California also flopped when Mark Bean's 10-footer with nine SECOND left gave Air Force the 56-55 verdict over the Bears, who can't seem to mesh despite a row of flashy stars. Jacky Ridgle had 27 points and a dozen rebounds for Cal.

Cal hosts Utah State tonight and the Air Force moves to Stanford. USC calls at Arizona State and Washington State is at Washington in the weekend's lone Pacific Eight battle.

Veteran Walt Silva Top Winner In Bowling Loop

BY RALPH CHATOIAN

If you think bowling is just for young kids, don't watch Walt Silva out on the lanes.

Walt, a 56-year old, gray-haired bowler from Sausalito, is showing up all the kids in the Bay Area Bowlers, a tournament group for bowlers with averages of 195 or less.

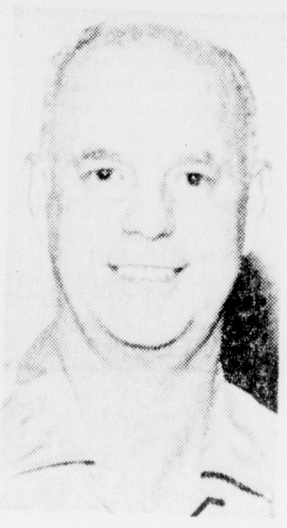
He's currently the leading money winner in the association, already winner of $900 for the season, which runs from August to August. Silva carries a 193 average and bowls in three high average leagues in addition to tournaments. He's made money in 14 of the last 16 tourneys he entered.

STARTED AT 33

Silva, who started bowling when 33 years old, competes in the 910 Classic at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, the 910 Travel League at Country Club and Greenbrae Lanes, and the 935 Classic at L and L Lanes in Sebastopol. And in pro bowling, in addition to the Bay Area Bowlers, he's a member of the Professional Central California Bowlers.

Born in Gustine, near Modesto, Walt attended elementary and high school there and then went to Modesto Junior College. In 1933 he moved with his parents to Marin County, his father, Manuel N. Silva, starting up the Plaza Bar in Sausalito. Walt worked there for his dad, and subsequently took over the business after his father died in 1943.

Walt was in the Army, stationed in the South Pacific, from 1942 to '46, and returned to Sausalito after the end of World War II. He ran the Plaza since then, and sold it last August. He still retains ownership of the property and building, but owners of the business now are Bill Paterson, Henry Lindauer, Dick York and Peter Wells.



WALT SILVA
Money leader

It was after his Army days that Silva first tried bowling. "Some friends of mine used to go to the old Marin Bowl, and I decided to give it a try one time," he says.

Bowling came fast to this man, as Silva carried a 165 average his first year of league competition. He was in the 180s his second year and has been in the high 180s and low 190s since.

Looking back on those early days of bowling, Silva recalls the old, dark bowling houses, called alleys in those days. "Bowling houses used to be in the basement, under the pool rooms," Silva reflected. But time has changed bowling into a great recreation for the whole family. "Now they're kept up better, they're well-lit, all automatic," he said.

Now that he's sold his business, Walt has more time to bowl, although he says he has some "property I look after." In addition to the bar, he owns some shops next door on Bridgeway, a house in Muir Beach and some property in Tahoe Paradise.

He figures he bowls perhaps an average of 12 lines per week, counting leagues and tournaments. 'I'm bowling more now and enjoying it more," he laughed.

NOT YET

Among his bowling championships are a Pederson Point Singles three years ago at Country Club and he teamed with Cecil Simpson back in the '40s to win top prize in doubles at the Marin County 'City' tourney. He's made money at state tournaments in the past, but hasn't won a state title. Yet.

He also sponsors 20-year-old Terry DeYoung of Novato, a pro prospect, on the Professional Central California Bowlers trail.

Walt and his wife of 30 years, Grace, have one son, Walt Jr., a junior at University of California in Berkeley, majoring in Marine Biology and Oceanology. The Silvas live at 17 Rose Court, Sausalito.

Gayle Chu Captures Top Scoring Honors

Gayle Chu really rocked the pins in the Sleepers League at Country Club Bowl, San Rafael, rolling a 250 game to highlight the week of bowling activity.

Her game had eight strikes in a row and paved the way for a 633 series. That 250 line was her highest score ever.

At Greenbrae Lanes, Emile Lundeen, 151 average roller in the Merry Mixers League, rolled games of 208, 220 and 193 for a 621 series, a few sticks higher than his average indicates.

STRIKES TO SPARE--In the Friday Nite Leftovers at Nave Lanes, George Bushton rolled a triplicate series of 180 games. Orv LeNoue had high score of 236, and Pat Kelly went down the ladder by twos, 172-170-168. . . Eloise Burns of the Gutter Belles at Greenbrae Lanes picked up a 4-7-10 split. . .Stars of the Hawaiian League at Nave Lanes were Roberta Thorsen, a 594 series, and Paul Putnum, 513, his first time over the 500 mark . . . Rose Covino reached two bowling milestones in the San Quentin Mixed Fours League, a 210 game and 521 series . . . Lillian Hanken picked up a 6-7-10 leave in the Agents 1108 League at Country Club . . . Next Powder Puff No Tap Tournament at Country Club Bowl is scheduled for Feb. 9, 1 p.m. Last tourney winners were Bunny Galvin, 744 with handicap, and Pat Lee, 713.

JUNIOR SCORES --Wayne Ziegler led the way in the North Bay Junior Travel League, 603 series for the Greenbrae group . . . At Country Club, Rich McPherson had high score, 220 game and 569 series in the Saturday Juniors . . . In the Pee Wees, Alexia Tsigeletos rolled 127 and 132 games and Ellen Williams a 142.

Marin Meets Santa Rosa Hot Shot

College of Marin's basketball team, currently one game off the Camino Norte Conference lead, will have the uninviting task of stopping the No. 2 junior college scorer in California tonight.

That's lanky Steve Tiedeman, who does his good stuff for Santa Rosa Junior College and the great annual twice-a-year rivalry will kick off in Santa Rosa at eight o'clock tonight.

Tiedeman, who was a member of two Tournament of Champions teams as a prep at Montgomery High School of Santa Rosa, is averaging 28.6 points per game for the high-scoring Bearcups. That's only four-tenths of a point off the pace of the top scorer in California—Mike Hammock of Merrit J.C. who has hit at an even 29 clip.

"He's an exceptionally fine player," said College of Marin coach John Panagakis of Tiedman. "He's really quite a boy. We'll just have to play really great defense to stop him."

The Bearcubs as a whole are no slouches. Both Marin and Santa Rosa have 3-2 won-lost league records, a shade behind Contra Costa of Richmond, West Valley of Campbell and DeAnza of Cupertino, who are 4-1. Santa Rosa owns a 101-98 overtime victory over West Valley last week.

Santa Rosa is 11-5 on the season while the Tars own a 12-7 record.

"something of a sourpuss before," now has a more relaxed approach to the game. "I have a great time out there now. It's fun. And that's what you're supposed to do here, have fun."

He played par golf over the first 10 holes, reached the par five 11th in two for a birdie and ran in a 10-footer on the next for another.

Yancey put a three iron shot three feet from the pin on 16, but bogeyed the next hole, missing the green.

John Hayes, a club pro from Los Angeles, had a hole-in-one on the 130-yard 15th hole at Spyglass.

Don Bies and amateur partner Richard Snideman of Pebble Beach, and Bob Rosburg with quarterback John Brodie of the San Francisco 49ers are tied for the team lead at 124.

The final two rounds are scheduled for national television by NBC-TV.

Strike-Bound Horse Owners Take Leave

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Some horse owners, tired of waiting for a union-management stalemate to resolve so Santa Anita racetrack can open, have decided to send their horses home.

Delta Airlines reported Friday that 12 horses from Chance Hill Farm boarded a jet prop freighter back to Camden, S.C. and that 16 horses with five different owners were to leave Sunday.

More than 2,000 horses were boarded at the track in anticipation of a 75-day thoroughbred race meeting which never came off. The track was hit by a strike Dec. 26 and it never opened.

The strike by members of the AFL-CIO Service Employes International Union also closed down the 43-day harness race meeting at Bay Meadows in the San Francisco Bay area.

The union had asked for a $4-a-day increase in wages for employes; management's most recent offer was $2 per day for each year of a three-year contract.

In an attempt to settle the strike, J.R. Fluor, chairman of the California Horse Racing Board, said he had called a meeting of representatives of both sides for Monday. He said a proposal may be made by the board then.

Sonoma State Whips Humboldt

Ramon Solomon, with a little help from a Jones boy, sparked Sonoma State College's basketball team to an 86-72 thumping of Humboldt State last night at Rohnert Park to give the Cossacks their first Far Western Conference victory and only their second win of the season.

Solomon scored 36 points on 15 field goals and 6 free throws and grabbed 21 rebounds while Roy Jones scored 22 points and grabbed 12 rebounds.

College Extension's Evening Classes Set

Sonoma State College's extension division will open evening courses at the Rohnert Park campus and in six Marin and southern Sonoma cities during the week of Feb. 9.

Both credit and noncredit classes will be offered along with workshops, institutes and conferences.

Registration is usually conducted at the first class meeting, but reservations should be made as early as possible with the extension office or the Marin County Superintendent of Schools office for classes held in Marin.

Brochures and full information on the scheduled classes can be received at the extension division office at the college.

Classes offered at the Rohnert Park campus include:

ANTHROPOLOGY — Mexican culture; problems of cross culture education.

ART — Drawing and painting; creative film making; basic crafts and jewelry; drawing and sculpture for teachers; introduction to sculpture.

EDUCATION — Social foundations; individualizing instruction revisited; instructional analysis; an introduction to the school library; methods and materials of adult education; sign language with the deaf.

ENGLISH — Film and the English teacher; Western American-American studies.

STUDIES — Black, brown, red and white — ethnic studies in America; Jewish cultures in the Americas; introduction to Mexican American studies.

GEOGRAPHY — Geography for teachers. GEOLOGY — Principles of geology. HEALTH — Drugs and narcotics; conquest of cancer, part two.

HISTORY — Latin America in the 20th Centruy. MANAGEMENT — Personnel management; tax law; investments. MATHEMATICS — Elementary school mathematics; algebra, number theory and digital computing; study of mathematics for disadvantaged children.

MUSIC — Introduction to jazz; string instruments; electronic music; basic guitar. PHILOSOPHY — The human condition: spiritual crisis and the death of God.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION — Adapted physical education; techniques and principles of training and conditioning; basketball officiating for women; sports clinic; Tae Kwan Do, Korean karate. PHYSICAL SCIENCE — Physical science for the nonmajor.

POLITICAL SCIENCE — Contemporary political issues; national, state and local.

PSYCHOLOGY — Group process seminar; karate; learning and human behavior; exploration towards "the white experience"; Zen meditation; psychology of man and woman; movement and meditation; seminar on self-exploration; practicum in individual intelligence testing.

Courses to be offered in Marin and Southern Southern Sonoma locations include:

CORTE MADERA — At Community Mental Health Clinic at Marin General Hospital, a psychoanalytic view of the classroom; psychoanalytic views of current problems in education; at Neil Cummins School, history of the natural sciences.

NOVATO — Mathematics for elementary grades, Novato High School; the role of the teacher in the discipline and classroom management, San Marin High School.

TIBURON — Richardson Bay Wildlife Sanctuary, seashore life.

Model Selected For New School's Activity Room

A cafeteria and multiuse room similar to that at LaTercera School has been approved as a model for the new school building by the Old Adobe School District board.

Supt. Dean D. Magowan said several teachers had suggested that the new school, to be built on St. Francis Drive, include a high roof in the multiuse room to permit active games such as volleyball.

Board members on Thursday also said the need for an active play area did not warrant the extra expense which might be involved.

The Old Adobe School District also:

SALARIES — Named trustees William V. Youngs and Robert E. Daly to serve with Magowan on a panel to negotiate teachers salaries.

AGENDAS — Revised meeting agendas to include a report from the Old Adobe Teachers Association at the first meeting of the month and a report by Magowan on curriculum developments at the second meeting.

FAMILY LIFE — Received materials being considered for use in family life education classes to be considered for approval at a February meeting.

Precautions Are Urged Against Sewage Overflows

Dr. Carolyn B. Albrecht, Marin County health officer, today advised county residents to take precautions against sewage overflow caused by recent storms.

No community water supplies have been contaminated, she said, "but sewage is all over the county."

She urged parents to instruct their children to stay away from sewage overflows and all residents to avoid sewage and wipe their shoes thoroughly before entering their homes.

She also advised residents to be meticulous about washing their hands before eating or preparing food.

Parents with small children in the home should take the added precaution of wearing rubber boots outside the home and removing them before entering so that floors do not become contaminated, Dr. Albrecht said.

Grants Available To Collegians

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Application for college opportunity grants now are available, Sen. Randolph Collier, D-Yreka, has announced.

Collier, whose district includes Sonoma County, said the grants are for high school students who want to go to college but need financial assistance. The grants are for community colleges generally, but exceptions are made in some cases for four-year colleges.

Amount of the grants ranges from $500 to $1,000.

Application forms are available from legislators, and also have been distributed to local high schools.

Two Brothers Earn Eagle Scout Awards

Two Belvedere brothers, former patrol leaders of Boy Scout Troop 9, sponsored by St. Stephens Episcopal Church of Belvedere, will receive Eagle Scout rank at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 10 in Whitaker Hall at the church.

William and Joseph Mathews, sons of Dr. and Mrs. Benton D. Mathews of 53 Peninsula Road, will be presented the insignia by their Scoutmaster, Bob Hamilton. The brothers are continuing a family tradition, their father, two older brothers, three uncles and two cousins having been Eagle Scouts.

William, 17, is a senior at Redwood High School and a member of the California Scholarship Federation, the Redwood Honor Society and the Math Club. He is also a member of the Marin Conservation League and the Sierra Club. He plans to enter college next fall, majoring in mechanical engineering.

Joseph, 15, a freshman at Redwood High School, is a former patrol leader and has served as troop scribe during his four years in Scouting.

In addition, he belongs to the Belvedere Ski Club and plays trumpet in the Redwood band. Because of his interest in film making, he has formed his own movie and film editing company.

Child Development Center Elects

Phillip D. Smith of San Rafael has been elected president for 1970 of the board of directors of the Marin Child Development Center. He succeeds Alfred M. Thomson of San Rafael who was elected second vice-president.

Patricia Kane of Greenbrae was elected first vice-president; Thomas Fleming Jr. of Belvedere, treasurer; Amity Buxton of Sausalito, recording secretary and Mary Ellen Regin of Belvedere, corresponding secretary.

State Coffers Full, But Debts A Record

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — California ended 1969 with more cash in the state treasury than ever before but also with more debts, State Controller Houston Flournoy has disclosed.

Flournoy said as of Dec. 31 there was $35 million cash in the treasury and no unrepaid loans to other state funds. But there also were state expenses running about $242 million ahead of revenues.

At the start of 1969, there was but $2.5 million in the treasury and the general fund owed $100 million to various special funds it had tapped. Revenue also was running about $219,500,000 behind expenses.

Flournoy added that, although the state is just entering its heavy revenue period with the filing of income taxes, he could not hazard a forecast on how cash and revenue will be for the future.

He noted that the general fund must be ready to loan funds to the State Water Project because water bonds are not being marketed.

For the last six months of 1969, the state collected $1,768,514,212, a rise of $122,097,750 over the same period the prior year. But again, spending totaled $2,010,787,970, a definite deficit and a rise of 7.76 per cent over the preceeding period.

The major avenues of spending for the period, according to Flournoy were $637 million for health care benefits; $197.5 million for bond interest and redemption; $123.4 million for state colleges; $137 million for the University of California; $124 million for aid to families with dependent children; $87.5 million in old age security assistance; and $54.9 million in aid to the disabled.

Phone Directory Deadline March 4

March 4 is the deadline for persons to change alphabetical listings in the 1970 directory, the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co. announced today.

Changes or new listings may be made at the company office at 1800 Second Street, San Rafael. The 1970 directory will be distributed in April.

Community Congress Plans Begin

Initial plans for a Congress for Community Progress will be made at a meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Hill Junior High School, set by the Novato Chamber of Commerce board Thursday.

The board approved a steering committee selection of 43 persons to work on the congress, tentatively set for May. The congress was proposed to Novato by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. which sponsors them in cities throughout northern California, including Fairfax and San Anselmo.

The Novato Chamber of Commerce board also:

STUDY—Gave president George A. Barnwell permission to get cost of more copies of the retail financial study by Arthur D. Little Co. to be used by the chamber.

OBJECTIVES—Set 8 p.m., Feb. 4 at the Bank of Marin for a meeting of all committee chairmen to set goals and objectives for the coming year.

MAPS—Heard a report that the new map of the city should be printed next week.

CLEANUP—Agreed to handle the publicity for the spring cleanup campaign on April 25 and May 2.

MEMBER—Accepted the resignation of Terry Bonner from the board as he is moving from the city and appointed Iver Suess, manager of the Bank of America, to his place on the board.

LEGISLATION—Set 8 p.m. next Thursday at the Bank of Marin for directors to meet with Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael, to discuss legislation affecting North Marin.

DIRECTORY—Heard a report that the organization directory would be available about mid-February and set a charge of $1 for it to nonmembers.

Property Tax Filing System Overhaul Asked

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to make the filing for the homeowner's property tax exemption permanent was introduced yesterday by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

Most homeowners are unaware that they have to file annually for the $750 exemption, he said. The necessity of filing annually is a burden on both homeowners and county staffs, Bagley said.

"The Legislature did not intend to make the process a difficult one for the taxpayers or the tax collectors," he said.

Refiling would be necessary only if title were transferred.

MANUFACTURERS REFUSE CANCELLATIONS!

In the apparel industry, it's customary practice to place seasonal orders 4 and 5 months in advance. Long before the decision was made to retire from business, the Harley McAskill Men's Shop had to face this situation. Although a number of manufacturers were cooperative enough to allow us to cancel out, others held fast. We are committed to honor 1970 orders placed months ago. Goods have been coming into the store. . . . This is a lifetime opportunity to save on newly arrived merchandise. Of course, there is plenty of fall clothing left. Some New Recordings From Verve

By JOHN SUNIER

Some new releases from Verve:

"THE FURTHER ADVENTURES OF JIMMY SMITH AND WES MONTGOMERY"—Verve V6-8766:

Swinging organist Smith and the late guitarist Montgomery were one of the most popular combinations in jazz.

Wes often takes the lyrical line while Jimmy adds the rhythmic under-girding.

The six tunes in this LP are mostly rather extended blowing sessions with percussion added, except on "Milestones," which features Oliver Nelson's big band. "King of the Road" and "Mellow Mood" are other good tracks on this very enjoyable jazz album.

CAL TJADER—"HIP VIBRATIONS"—Verve V6-8730:

This is Tjader's best album since "Several Shades of Jade." The group includes J.J. Johnson, Ernie Royal, Jerome Richardson, and the piano work is shared by three different people, of which one is Herbie Hancock. "Blues March" makes for a rousing start, the title tune is a blowing session for several of the group.

Cal shines in "A Waltz for Diane," and another high point is that MJQ classic, "Django."

"LEONARD FEATHER PRESENTS THE SOUND OF FEELING (AND THE SOUND OF OLIVER NELSON)"—Verve V6-8743:

This is a rather weird album, with two sides containing material with no connection between them. The real meat will be found in the Andrece Twins, gal vocalists in the Lambert-Hendricks-Bavan bag who are the heart of "The Sound of Feeling."

Gary David plays piano and also sings with them, and Oliver Nelson's soprano sax is heard on most of the five tracks. What these girls do with tunes like "My Favorite Things" and "Who Knows What Love Is?" must be heard to be believed. Their advanced techniques go beyond L. H. & B. This, their debut album, has been out quite a while but I have heard nothing further about them.

The flip side of the LP is Nelson's big band in four rather standard tracks of which "Sidewalks of New York" is the stand-out.

"FRANK ZAPPA CONDUCTS LUMPY GRAVY"—The Abnuceals Emuukha Electric Symphony Orchestra and Chorus—Verve V6-8741:

Described as "a curiously inconsistent piece which started out to be a ballet but probably didn't make it," this is another fascinating but indescribable effort from the mad hand of the leader of the Mothers of Invention. It is mostly a very advanced serial-type serious symphonic piece which is often very exciting, but it also throws in rock, satirical material, and just conversations and plain horsing around in the studio.

A release of Zappa's sub-label, Bizarre, it certainly is appropriate. For Zappa nuts only.

TONY SCOTT—"MUSIC FOR YOGA MEDITATION AND OTHER JOYS"—Verve V6-8742:

Top jazz clarinetist Scott was into Eastern music before George Harrison.

This album is sort of a companion to his earlier "Music for Zen Meditation." The music is all originals by Scott and this is definitely not a gimmick—the combination of East and West is just as successful as the experiments of Shankar and Menuhin, except that the combination is more jazz and Indian than classical and Indian. Some very satisfying sounds that are more than just background.

"BILL EVANS AT THE MONTREUX JAZZ FESTIVAL"—Verve V6-8762:

The soft-spoken and lyrical jazz pianist has a masterful collection of performances on wax here. The live audience situation evidently pushed him to new heights (or perhaps it was the high Alps in the background).

A typical Evans program; for example: "A Sleepin' Bee," "The Touch of Your Lips," "Someday My Prince Will Come."

Well-recorded with little audience interference in the weaving of Evans' magic spell.

"BEST OF THE BLUES PROJECT" — Verve/Forecast FTS-3077:

The Blues Project was an important rock group of a couple years ago who are responsible for introducing many of the sounds that are now accepted as standard.

The mixing of jazz, soul music and blues with rock was carried out skillfully by Al Kooper on his electric piano, Danny Kalb, lead guitarist, and others who replaced men in the constantly-changing group. The swinging flute sound in "Electric Flute Thing" is a classic and "Wake Me, Shake Me," really shakes.

The perfection of this defunct group still stands as a guideline for rock groups yet to come. A shame they didn't get more attention first time around, but maybe this re-issue will educate a few listeners about Blues Project.

SPANISH DANCER Teresita Osta will be featured with her brother, pianist Emilio Osta, in a program of Latin-American and Spanish music and dance Friday at 8:15 p.m. in the Fine Arts Theater at College of Marin, Kentfield. Authentic costuming of the senorita adds color to her performance.

San Rafael After The Incorporation

Official Status As Town Marked Start Of New Era

By FLORENCE DONNELLY

With its incorporation on Feb. 18, 1874, San Rafael began a new era.

The village officially had become a town.

Its first trustees, elected by the populace, were Sidney V. Smith, Joseph B. Rice Sr., Dr. Alfred Taliaferro, William J. Miller and Jacob Short. They took their oath of office before R. K. Weston, notary public.

Prominent lawyer Hepburn Wilkins was appointed the first town clerk. William Francis Waite was named town marshal, and notary Weston was appointed treasurer.

OTHER INITIAL actions of the new trustees included:

The setting of the salaries of the town clerk and marshal at $300 each per year.

The renting of rooms on the second floor of Short's Hall, over a saloon, for their meetings and other town business.

Adoption of a resolution that read: "Resolved that pursuant to Section 39 of the act incorporating the town of San Rafael, a debt of $10,000 be contracted in order to raise money for improvements in the town and to provide funds until the assessments have been made and the taxes collected."

HIRAM AUSTIN was instructed to make a survey of the town on his bid of $175.

Another milestone for the new town came Dec. 3, 1874, with the formation of a San Rafael fire department. Then, and for many years thereafter, the firemen were all volunteers.

The department was first known as the San Rafael Hose Company and shortly thereafter as the San Rafael Hook, Ladder and Hose Company 1.

Joseph B. Rice Sr., who called the first meeting, was appointed company chairman. Jerome A. Barney was named secretary, and James Tunstead, later to serve several terms as sheriff, was elected foreman.

OTHER OFFICERS included Francis A. Hanna, assistant foreman, and Frank S. Welch, steward.

Tunstead has left us an account of some of the excitement of those early years:

"One evening in the spring of 1875 an (fire) alarm was sent in. It was raining and the roads were a fright. I was one of the first on the scene and I pulled the truck which was below McAllister's place at Fourth and C. I got stuck in front of Tim Day's place, and Archie McAllister, John Gannon, Timothy Mahon and several others took hold of the rope and we pulled for dear life.

"WE FINALLY got the thing started, but by the time we arrived at the scene (Barnard's stable at the west side of B at Fourth) we found we had no wrench to attach the hose to the standpipe, so I sent George Davis back to the firehouse.

"When George returned with the wrench we ascertained the hose would not reach the barn, so we had to content ourselves watching the barn burn to the ground."

Tunstead continued: "After this we went before the town trustees and procured another 100 feet of hose. We then had 200 feet of hose and a reel, and as time passed we added to our hose until finally we procured another new reel and hook and ladder. We celebrated with a dance and a real hoedown . . . We realized several hundred dollars from the dance which went into the volunteer fund."

THE PIONEER fireman also related:

"After the first firemen's dance so many of the boys became acquainted with their sweethearts and got married that the dances became all the rage.

"I was buttonholed on all sides by the girls to whoop her up again, and so I passed the hat among the boys who were matrimonially inclined, and I soon had enough money for another grand affair.

"TO TELL THE truth, most of the boys for the first 20 years were indebted to those dances for their sweethearts and wives. These dances always struck dad's pocketbook because they either called for a new dress or money to have the old one made over . . . We would start at 9 at night and whoop it up until sunrise."

To support the department an annual ball was given on or near George Washington's birthday. Every San Rafael resident considered it a civic duty to support the department by buying tickets.

SHORT'S HALL, owned by J. O. B. Short, stood on the southeast corner of Fourth and C streets, and its second floor was the scene of the first San Rafael Town Council meetings. Below the hall was a saloon. And the building was also San Rafael's first post office.

WHILE IT WAS many years before San Rafael paid its firemen salaries, the San Rafael City Directory of 1901 nevertheless reflected great pride in the fire-fighting forces of the town.

"The San Rafael Fire Department," it stated, "is fully equipped and is one of the best volunteer departments in the state. Number of hydrants, 68; water supply, first class; gravity system from Mount Tamalpais; volunteer firemen, 75; hose, 3,200 feet; hose carts, five; hook and ladders, two."

Early in this century the department had a firehouse on C Street in the middle of the block between Fourth and Fifth. It was a frame, two-story building.

WHEN THE FIRE bell rang, the express man, Gus Burkhart, raced his horses to the firehouse to hitch them to a hook and ladder. Or Hugh McCurdy, who had a livery stable in downtown San Rafael, would bring a team to the firehouse.

Eventually the firemen got their own team, a piebald pair named Tom and Jerry. A 1904 photo shows them, the pampered "pets" of the firemen and the town's small boys.

Although they were overshadowed by such town beauties as Pearl Jordan, Sadie Brown and Nettie Koenig, who reigned in different years as celebration queens and rode in places of honor, the colorful firemen nevertheless were always one of the features of the town's traditional Fourth of July parades.

IN 1917 THE firehouse at the corner of C and Fifth was completed.

It was in 1945, when Walter Castro Sr. retired as fire chief and was succeeded by his assistant, Fred Scheuer, that San Rafael for the first time had a paid man at the head of the department.

Scheuer's service with the department dated back to 1916.

Many San Rafael men have given freely of their time and even risked their lives for the cause of fire protection in San Rafael. One such was Walker Vaning, who practically grew up with the department since his family home was on Fifth Avenue. He was an assistant chief, as was the late Matt Hart, a 50-year veteran of the department.

THE LATE EUGENE Smith, San Rafael city clerk for many terms, was a volunteer for more than four decades.

But the growth of its fire department was only one indication of progress in San Rafael in the last quarter of the 19th Century and the early years of the 20th.

SAN RAFAEL HISTORY

A. Bray Dickinson, in his excellent book, "Narrow Gauge to the Redwoods," has told of the financial success of the San Rafael and San Quentin Railroad during its brief five years of existence. Then the North Pacific Coast Railroad entered San Rafael in 1874, via Sausalito and San Anselmo, and early the following year the directors of the San Rafael and San Quentin leased their road and stock to the North Pacific for 43 years.

THEN, ON JUNE 21, 1880, Peter Donahue brought the rails and locomotives of his San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad to San Rafael from the north. Later that railroad line was extended to Tiburon where it was met by the ferries.

San Rafael then had good transportation, and a growing though not huge population. When it was designated officially as a city on April 1, 1889, it could count 2,665 residents.

However, it still had no city buildings of any consequence. Its streets at best were gravel-covered. And too many of the beautiful trees of its valley had been cut for lumber.

THE MARIN Journal editorialized on April 20, 1893, about the need for a civic center with offices for city officials, courts and the fire department:

"The city is paying rent for a firehouse, town hall on C Street and public library on Fourth. The rent amounts to $780 a year."

That money, the newspaper felt, could have been better used for the purchase or construction of permanent city buildings.

THE SAME ISSUE of the Journal stated: "Fourth Street, west end, is in deplorable condition of ruts and holes, and driving at a pace faster than a walk means danger of broken springs. This street ought to be macadamized before the driving season commences."

Public gatherings then were generally held at Gordon's Opera House or in the county courthouse. City officials held their meetings on the second floor of the old firehouse.

And the Journal editorially warned about the danger of leaving horses without being hitched. Trustees solemnly considered a more serious penalty for violation of the hitching ordinance.

THE RECREATION of the time was simple.

The Journal noted on Jan. 13, 1889: "An exhibition of the amazing powers of the phonograph will be given this Thursday at the library. There are but two or three of these talking machines on the coast, and San Rafael is lucky to get the chance to hear and see one of them."

Real estate and construction costs were low.

On Dec. 16, 1886, the Journal reported: "Mrs. Roche has bought the Gilbert House cottage fronting D Street, and is fitting it up for her brother-in-law, Henry Knittel. The 40-by-140-foot lot with cottage was bought for $1,250."

THE SAME newspaper carried this item on April 19, 1888: "A contract is recorded for the building of a two-story frame building in Golden Meadow for M. H. DeYoung by Peter Creighton for $7,800."

A. E. Kellogg, who became Marin County superintendent of schools the first of January, 1883, wrote in the Marin County Tocsin on Jan. 1, 1886, about the new Fourth Street School:

"Moved by a desire to place the schools on a solid basis, the people voted in June of 1883 a bonded tax of $18,000. On account of a defect in the law the bonds failed to float.

"THE DEFECT was remedied by the legislation of 1885 and on May 15th of that year, by an almost unanimous vote, bonds for $25,000 were voted for building purposes. These were sold at a premium and today there stands at the corner of Fourth and Shaver streets, on a lot 150 feet square, a six-room building that will be, when finished, one of the finest school buildings of its size in the state . . . Perfect ventilation and lighting are secured."

School graduation exercises were held in the Gordon Opera House, and political campaign torchlight processions inevitably ended there, with the building then resounding to oratory.

AMATEUR theatricals were also staged at the opera house, which had a small stage and a gallery. Frequently touring professional companies also performed there.

Surprising though it might seem, San Rafael was then considered quite a social center in the "high society" sense.

The Daily Alta California reported on June 28, 1885, under the heading: "Summer in San Rafael: A California Resort after the Newport Style":

"SAN RAFAEL offers many peculiar attractions as a summer resort. It lies on the wooded uplands of a picturesque valley, within convenient reach of the busy metropolitan city . . . The bay and the city are at its feet. All the resources of the country are near at hand.

"And in addition to these material advantages, it possesses the additional advantage of a clean and well-ordered town, and a social prestige second to none in the state.

"San Rafael is ordered after the Newport style. Its ruling characteristic is a dignified reserve, which escapes the vulgarity of pride and has no trace of ill-bred self-assertion. The people who go thither to pass the season are almost invariably families of social position, culture and education, who are guided solely by a desire for change and rest."

THE LONG article told of guests at the hotels, the Tamalpais and the Gilbert House, and of houses rented for the summer months.

"The Flint house, an old-fashioned structure with extensive grounds, is occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Foster . . ."

The article also reported: "Mr. Gerstle and Mr. Sloss of the Alaska Seal Co. occupy the beautiful homes they have provided for their families use during the summer."

The newspaper went on:

"INDOLENT AS San Rafael undoubtedly is, it still boasts one enlivening source of entertainment. It is the paradise of lawn tennis players and has the finest grounds in the state.

"One ardent devotee of this glorious sport characterizes the premises occupied by the two societies, the San Rafael and Lotus clubs, as the prettiest sights in California. And while they may be inferior to the Yosemite in sublimity and beauty, they are undeniably fitted up in charming style; attached to the grounds are tastefully arranged buildings, provided with dressing rooms, parlors and refreshment rooms."

IN REGARDS to the activities of the San Rafael Club, the Alta said:

"Some spirited young ladies also lend the grace of their presence to the club. Among those of the gentler sex who have distinguished themselves in this place may be named Miss Grace Eldridge, Miss Hyde, Miss Raymond, Miss Boardman and the Misses Page."

Of the Lotus Club, the newspaper reported:

"The Lotus Club, which belies its drowsy name, is noted for the grace and agility of its members."

FURTHER ALONG was this comment:

"The typical young man, who graces the list of summer residents in San Rafael, affects the English style. His prevailing manner of dress is a nobby check suit, Walkenfast shoes and a stiff Derby hat. He invariably goes gloved and usually carries a frail cane with a heavy head, which he calls a stick. His earmark is a light snuff-colored overcoat, which he carries gracefully over his arm, but rarely wraps around his slender form. He is awfully fond of nice scenery, dotes on the girls, you know, regards tennis as a jolly sport and considers San Rafael a nice little place but awfully slow.

"REGARDED APART from his affectations, he is a very pleasant young fellow, amiable, obliging, generous-hearted, with essentially manly characteristics.

"He is honorable, industrious, more vigorous in his habits, and possessed of cleaner morals than the San Francisco or Oakland youth.

"A considerable percentage of the male population of San Rafael is composed of the younger sons of wealthy English families, who are sent to this country to carve out a new career and who take bravely to voca-

IN HORSE AND BUGGY days, San Rafael's Fourth Street and business district looked like this. Note "Coleman Tract" sign at left. Building with veranda was a hotel. Express office is on right. Note, too, the brush arc light attached to pole, San Rafael's earliest electric lighting.

BY 1905 WHEN this photograph was taken of Fourth Street, looking east from D Street, a few cars had joined the buggies and horseback riders in the downtown traffic. But pedestrians could still cross the street with little difficulty.

RAILROAD MAGNATE Peter Donohue built this imposing mansion on San Rafael's Lincoln Avenue as his home. Later it was the residence of Leon Douglass, inventor, industrialist and business man. Finally the building passed into the hands of the First Baptist Church of San Rafael which made use of it until April of 1967 when the landmark was destroyed by fire.

tions for which they are apparently unfitted by birth and breeding, undergoing a gradual process of assimilation in business and social circles which often results in placing them in commanding positions in the commercial world. It is an excellent inoculation for the restless, reckless, devil-may-care life of our giddy Western city..."

THE ALTA California article concluded:

"It behooves the conservative visitors of San Rafael to enjoy while they may the quiet and seclusion, the laziness and inactivity of this dainty summer resort, for the day is swiftly approaching when the existing condition of affairs will be overturned."

Earlier there had been this description of the young women of San Rafael:

THEY HAVE swept aside the barriers of dignity and reserve behind which their elders are entrenched . . . and dissipate with their bright smiles the hypersensitiveness of time-honored individualism. They ride, they walk, they talk, they row, they swim. They revel in athletic sports; they even climb trees . . .

"Many of them, including the Misses Forbes, Miss Kittle, Miss Boardman, the Misses Otis, Tompkins and Watts, Miss Sears, Miss Stearns, Miss Harney, Miss McAllister are graceful and accomplished horsewomen.

"NOTHING IS too sacred for their daring approaches. To show the enterprise of these young people, it may be mentioned that on the 30th of May, a score or more of them, chaperoned by two married ladies, formed a riding party, and equipped with all the essentials of a mountain trip, started out for three-days jaunt, making Olema the first night, proceeding to Bear Valley, and returning home by way of Bolinas the next day.

"This small undertaking is but a slight earnest of their capabilities for energetic exercise. Romping, daring, mocking, dragging their unhappy victims to the top of Mount Tamalpais to view the glorious panorama spread before them, taking long jaunts through forest and valley, tramping to the waterside, driving spirited horses, the stimulus of their example is working a revolution in the valley.

"ABETTED BY the insidious influence of a library, there is no telling where the progressional movement will end, and the only salvation for the conservative resident is to flee to Ross Valley, where the friendly mountains, the moat of the bay, the happy limitations of the locality offer a stern and impregnable protection against the onslaught of the mischievous, meddling outside world"

Soon after the Alta article was published, the Hotel Rafael was built in San Rafael and became the center of the community's flourishing social life.

San Rafael's first library was on the south side of Fourth Street between D and E.

THE MARIN Journal reported on July 18, 1889, that "Mr. William T. Coleman's last act on leaving San Rafael was to present the free library with a choice collection of books valued at $100."

And the Jan. 15, 1891, issue of the Journal contained this notation: "Mr. Kent gave $200 for books, which is the largest donation the library has received from any one person."

The Journal named on April 17, 1893, as members of the library board Vincent Neale,

THE FIRST LIBRARY building in San Rafael was this structure at 909 Fourth Street, between D and E streets. It opened in December of 1887 and served the public until December of 1903 when a new library went into operation on E Street.

THE HOTEL RAFAEL was built in 1887 by the San Rafael Hotel Co. and became a center of Bay Area social life. The hotel was located on a beautifully landscaped and extensively improved 21-acre site that was later subdivided into Rafael Gardens, a choice residential area. Photo was taken in 1890.

San Rafael And Its Growing Years --- and the town gained one of its most prominent families.

Problems To Be Solved

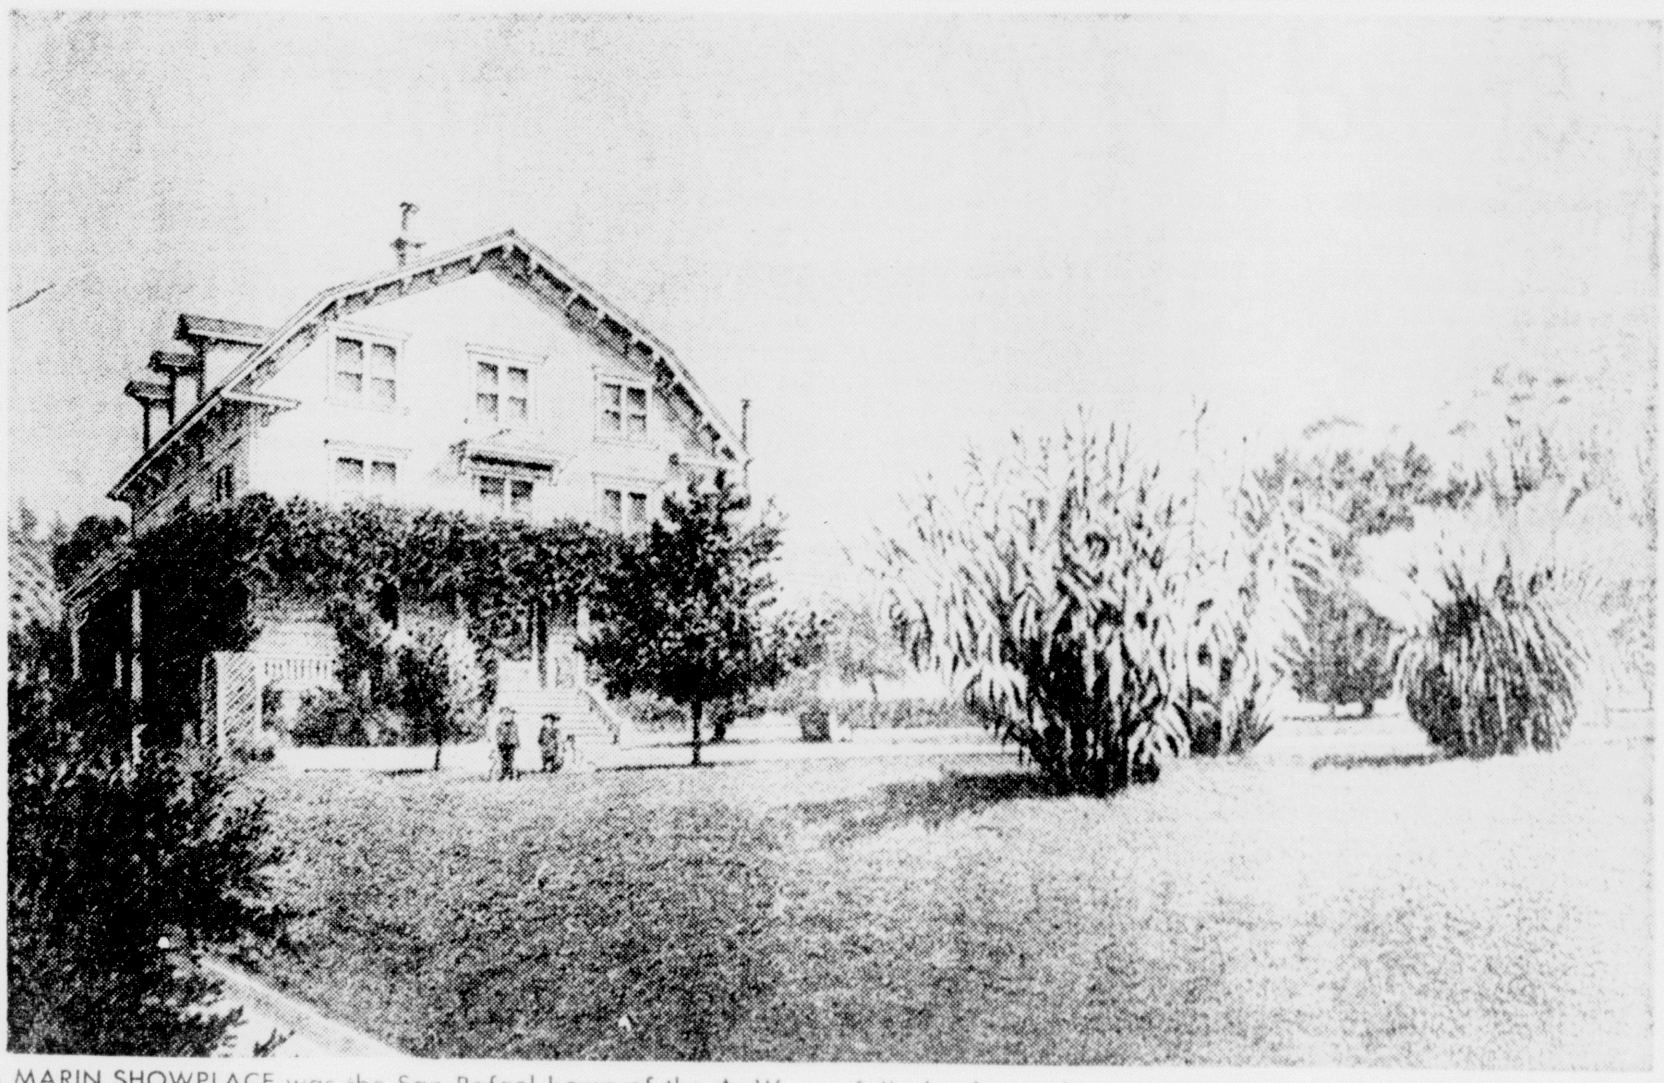
In October of 1887 the Journal printed a picture of the Foster home and carried an article that read:

"A. W. Foster Esq . . . owns 135 acres on the northern side of the valley of San Rafael. The house, ornamental grounds, vineyard, orchards, large outbuildings and paddocks, about 30 acres, are within the municipal limits . . . Mr. Foster is a great admirer and breeder of fine stock, not only horses but Jersey cattle. He owns some of the finest animals in Marin, both bovine and equine.

"AMONGST THE latter are a pair of Hungarian sorrel ponies, with flowing white manes and tails. These little beauties are the admiration of all who see them.

"The house has two stories and a mansard and was owned by the widow of Samuel Butterworth Esq., who spent an immense sum of money on house and grounds and, on that lady's death, was purchased by the present owner, who has entirely remodeled the interior and decorated it in the latest style of art.



A MARIN SHOWPLACE was the San Rafael home of the A. W. Fosters, in north San Rafael. The estate totalled 135 acres and included stables, orchards and vineyards, as well as beautifully landscaped grounds. The residence was known as Fairhills, and its owners were known as San Rafael philanthropists and civic leaders.

"The barns, sheds, stables and corrals are very roomy and most conveniently designed; the gardens are elegant and well-stocked with tropical and semi-tropical plants and trees.

"THERE IS A very fair-sized orange orchard, which yields fruit equal to any grown in the state, and without irrigation. All fruits do well and in every variety, and more than supply the family and servants' tables.

"The vineyard is about two acres and bears heavily, the table grapes, especially the Tokay, being remarkably fine . . .

"Mr. Foster is one of the most enterprising citizens in San Rafael. To his energy and influence may be attributed much of the good done by the Town Improvement Society and by the town trustees in making improvements.

"IT REQUIRED in some cases all the influence of public-spirited gentlemen like Mr. Foster to overcome the indifference, or more selfish objections, of some of the smaller property owners to anything that would incur expenses though benefitting the town."

The Foster estate became known as Fairhills.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Foster were religious and philanthropic persons, and they made liberal donations to the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo. Mrs. Foster was the daughter of Dr. William Anderson Scott, founder of the seminary.

THE SAME edition of the Journal gave the number of children residing in San Rafael between the ages of 5 and 17 in 1893 as 878.

In November of 1900 the Journal carried this item:

"The people of San Rafael congratulate Postmaster Anderson on the increase of $200 in his salary, and upon the raise in the rank of the office from third to second class. The salary is now $2,000 a year. The next step to be aimed at is a free delivery system, and if the people make an effort it can be secured."

THE JOURNAL reported in May of 1903: "J. H. DeCrow, who at the time of free mail delivery service in San Rafael, came from Quincy, Ill., requested transfer to his old home. The carrier force in San Rafael is composed of Fred O'Toole, Victor Becker and James T. Redmond."

Roger Kane, while manager of Pacific Telephone here in 1949, told of the early phone service.

He wrote: "The 13,500 telephones in San Rafael today are descendants of a single telephone line built in 1879 and extended from San Rafael two miles to Mount Tamlpais Cemetery. The same year telephone communication was established between various doctors' offeese. It wasn't until 1884 the telephone became available for general public use . . ."

ONE OF THE oldest social and civic organizations in San Rafael is the San Rafael Improvement Club, founded in the spring of 1902.

San Rafael unquestionably needed improvement. The streets were dusty and hot in the summer, so the club began a tree-planting program as its initial project.

It bought elms, maples and sycamores, had them planted along the streets, and then paid for their watering and care.

MOSQUITOES were a plague upon the citizens of the town.

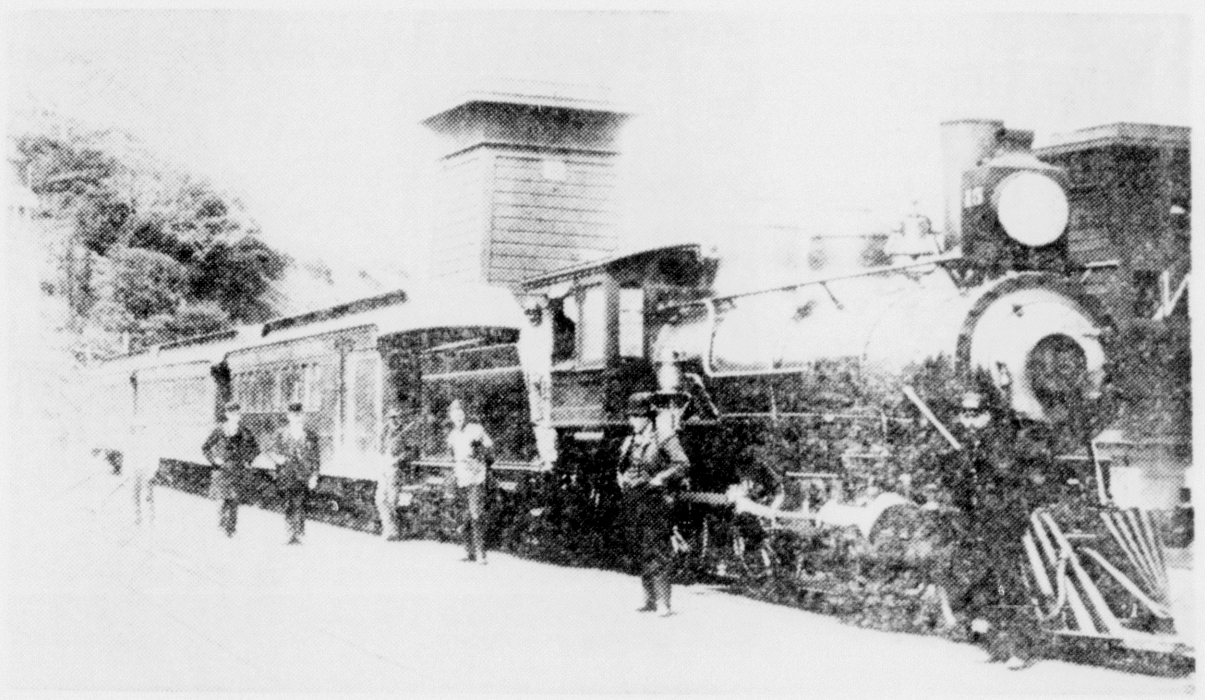
THIS PICTURE of the rails and right-of-way of Peter Donahue's San Francisco and North Pacific Railroad, was taken north of San Rafael in rural Marin. The railroad provided a link with across-the-bay ferryboats service in Tiburon.



A COMMUTE TRAIN of the North Pacific Coast Railroad pulled by a new locomotive, No. 15, from the Brooks Locomotive Works, had just pulled into Sausalito from San Rafael when this 1891 photograph was taken. The same line also ran through San Anselmo.

A Blend Of Rusticity And Sophistication

Swarms of the pesky insects came from the marshes and stagnant pools to feast on the blood of the hapless humans. So the improvement club formed a "Mosquito Brigade."

The Marin Journal issue of June 20, 1904, asked:

"Has anyone a horse, for which he would like to find a good home? A horse, perhaps, maybe 'a little beyond his prime,' but whose master dislikes the idea of selling him?"

The story continued: "Such a horse would find an excellent home, with little work, under the care of the San Rafael Improvement Club.

"PROFESSOR Ashman, in his mosquito crusade, visits all the marshes in the vicinity of San Rafael, taking with him gallons of petroleum. The club's livery bill, in consequence, is assuming alarming proportions, and the decision has been reached that the club must have a horse.

"Now is the oppportunity for some one to do a kindly deed for the community, and at the same time secure a good home (for the horse) with short hours and little work.

"Will anyone who is so disposed kindly communicate with the Marin Journal office?

"THE CLUB HAS still some of the iron hitching posts which are being disposed of throughout the village. For $3 ($2.75 should a dozen orders be sent at one time) the post will be delivered and set up wherever you direct, by a man who thoroughly understands the setting of iron hitching posts. Orders may be left with Mr. DuBois at the San Rafael Bazaar on Fourth Street."

For many years one of the posts with a horse's head at the top stood in front of the DuBois home on Bayview Street. And the posts became collector's items.

The improvement club supported its community betterment projects by giving theatricals and "readings." Most of these were performed at the opera house where the club also met.

THE CLUB continued its interests in mosquito-control and tree-planting. On April 12, 1913, the Journal reported that the improvement club had planted 575 elm and maple trees, and that "the club is investigating the use of crude petroleum in stagnant pools to destroy mosquitoes."

That war against the "skeeter" hordes was to continue until the Marin County Mosquito Abatement District was organized.

The tree-planting program was ultimately taken over by a committee appointed by the city council at the urging of the improvement club.

STREET improvements were also sought by the club, which deplored particularly the terrible condition of Fifth Street.

Hearses and carriages in funeral processions bound for Mount Tamalpais Cemetery became hopelessly mired in the winter mud.

Finally Fifth Street was improved. And at the same time it received an "improved" name as well. It was decided that Fifth Avenue sounded more elegant than Fifth Street, and was in keeping with its new condition.

CLUB MEMBERS from time to time expressed the need for a building of its own for their organization. Their opportunity came after the Panama Pacific International Exposition held on what is now San Francisco's Marina in 1915.

The Victor Building, which had served as the exposition's Palace of Liberal Arts, was given to Leon Douglass, the chairman of the board of directors of the Victor Co.

Douglass, who lived in the former Donahue mansion on Lincoln Avenue, known earlier as Petaluma Avenue, did not want the building for himself, despite its attractiveness. He sold the structure to a dealer, and the improvement club, in turn, bought it from him for a bargain $500.

That Was San Rafael In Its Youthful Years

THE CLUB THEN leased property from Arthur W. Foster

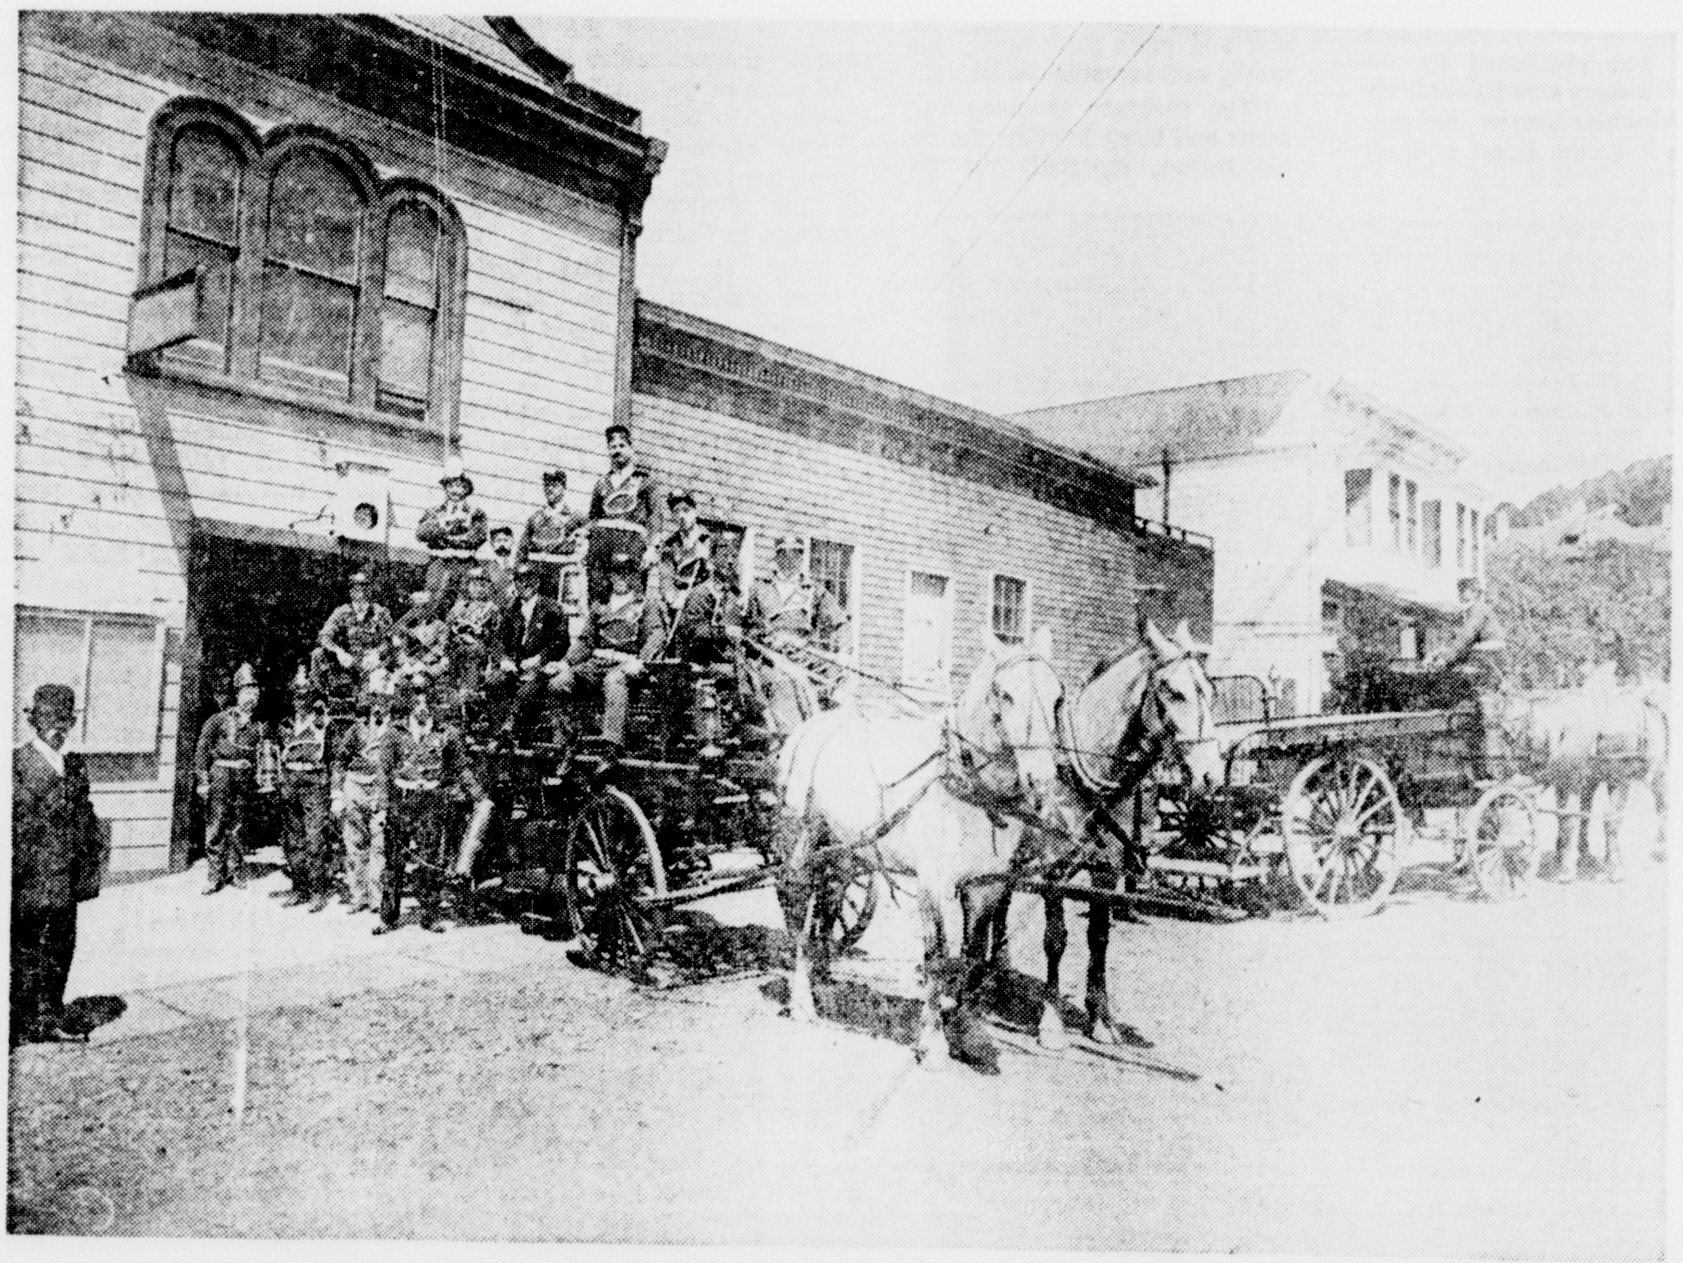
FOR FIVE AND A HALF decades, the San Rafael Improvement Club building has been one of the city's most attractive structures. It served as the Victor Co. Building or the Palace of Liberal Arts at the 1915 Panama Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco, and was barged across the bay in sections, then reassembled.



UNIFORMED VOLUNTEERS and their horse-drawn equipment of the San Rafael Fire Department posed proudly for this photograph in the early 1900s. The piebald team that pulled the hook and ladder wagon were affectionately known as Tom and Jerry and were the pampered pets of the town. It was not until 1945 that San Rafael had its first paid fireman.

An Active Improvement Club Spearheaded Many Of The Gains

at H and fifth, with an option of buying. The exposition building, in sections, was "barged" across the bay and reassembled on the San Rafael lot where it still stands and serves the community today.

There was little entertainment for people of modest income in the San Rafael at the turn of the century.

There were the amateur plays, providing a showcase for local talent, and the political rallies at the opera house. But a far bigger event for the school children — and for many of the adults — were the circuses that regularly visited the town. The boys and girls would line the sidewalks to watch the traditional circus parade with its then await eagerly the performcaged animals and its clowns, ance hour.

THERE WERE also the "medicine shows," where a master of ceremonies would offer the audience an opportunity to buy a bottle of medicine guaranteed to cure anything from catarrh to consumption, to halt falling hair and to improve the disposition.

An announcement for one of these shows appeared in the Marin Journal:

"Coming — Brother Benjamin's big free show Nov. 17, 1903, Fourth Street near Broad Gauge Depot."

Such shows offered pretty girl singers and sleight-of-hand performers as their main entertainers, and featured long intermissions during which the medicines were sold.

BUT FOR THE wealthy there was plenty of entertainment, and much of it spectacular. The San Rafael Independent of Sept. 6, 1914, reported:

"Mrs. M. H. DeYoung gave a party for many San Francisco friends. Many came by special boat, which left the other side at 7:15 p.m. They were met by automobiles and carriages and driven to Meadowlands, the country home of the DeYoungs.

"A stage had been erected on the tennis court and the guests were seated on the lawn.

"Sketches from plays and operas were presented. After that, supper was served. A special train and boat took the guests back to San Francisco.

"THE ELECTRIC display by the San Rafael Gas and Electric Co. was not the least of the attractions."

Thus we have the San Rafael of the early 1900s, a strange mixture of rustic village and cosmopolitan summer retreat of sophisticates.

But there were factors at work that were blurring these social lines and bringing the community's residents closer and closer together. One of these was a violent one that came about in 1906 when the earth shook and sent scores of San Franciscans fleeing that city, some to join permanently the San Rafael population. Others were of a more peaceful nature. But all contributed to the growth of the town, once a village, that was eventually to become a city.

TWO fourth grade pupils at St. Raphael's School, Susan Nave, top, and Ann Dillman, get acquainted in the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum's in-school natural science education program with Isabel the ferret. The teacher and Isabel's caretaker is Gay Maxwell , naturalist and wife of Paul D. Maxwell, director of the Boyd Museum. Mrs. Maxwell takes her program, and the animal friends, to virtually every school in Marin

Nature Goes Into The Classroom

Boyd Museum Sponsors Unusual Education Program

By DON KEOWN

"The idea," says petite and pretty Gay Maxwell "is to bring natural history and ecology right into the children's classroom."

She is speaking of the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum's in-school natural science education program.

Wife of Paul D. Maxwell, the director of the Boyd Museum—she says: "I think it is the most important program that we (the museum and its staff) are doing."

What she and her assistant Mary Joe Newell are doing is to visit the classrooms of virtually every Marin County elementary school and bring to the kindergartners through third graders—and in some cases older children – something of the scientific and natural wonder of the outdoors and some idea of man's relationship to it.

Many nursery schools of the county also receive the service.

And when Mrs. Maxwell visits a school she is accompanied by a living "prop" – in most instances George the screech owl, one of the most popular of the furred and feathered residents of the Boyd Museum.

IF GEORGE is not her companion then it may be Wetback the coatimundi or a ferret, turtle, snake or any one of a number of other interesting mammals, reptiles, birds or fishes that might be making his home at the museum at the time.

In visiting the classes Mrs. Maxwell must budget her time tightly, for she can allocate only 20 or 30 minutes to each classroom.

For her beginning she speaks without George or her other demonstrator "because if I brought them out right at the start no one would pay any attention to me" she explains.

George, she says, is an outrageous showoff.

AND SO SHE starts with a general discussion of nature.

"A good beginning" she says "is simply to ask how many of the children like the outdoors. Of course they all do. And so they are all immediately involved."

There follows a brief summation of what ecology is in its broadest sense — "even the smallest children can understand this," Gay Maxwell insists. And she adds: "But of course you can't go into it in any great depth in such a short time."

NOW, GAY IS ready for her example of the day. And out comes George, perhaps to serve as an object lesson on birdlife and its dependence upon the balance of nature. Or maybe the mischievous Wetback for a lesson on mammals again tying in with nature's all essential balances and checks.

Though time is short Gay Maxwell always makes one important point: Baby animals should be left alone in the out-of-doors where they are at home, whenever possible.

But if circumstances dictate the picking up of such a baby then it should be delivered immediately to a place where it will be accorded proper and expert care.

"MANY PEOPLE are unaware that the Boyd Museum is something of an orphanage as well" she says. "Some 700 'babies' are brought in each year. And most of them will make it if they have been brought in right away."

"My Bell-Bottoms Have Separated."

Other popular bell-bottoms report the same trouble. These garments are constructed of two fabrics, bonded together in manufacture, to give a better band without too much bulk. However, some bonded bell-bottoms have not reacted well to drycleaning. The bonded fabrics come apart due to poor adhesion in the manufacture. Unfortunately, there is no way in which the two fabrics can be reunited.

Again, prevention is your best ally. When shopping, look for assurance that your bell-bottoms are drycleanable. Another thing to remember when shopping is that acetate rayon crepe will shrink when a beverage is spilled on it. Bell-bottoms of this fabric should be bought and used with this in mind.

She Teaches The Basics Of Ecology

Most of these foundlings are turned loose as soon as possible – "if we think they have at least a 50-50 chance to survive in the wild."

But a few become too friendly or tame to fend for themselves on the outside and must be kept. Some of these are used as classroom models in the in-school natural science education program. George, for example, was brought to the museum as a fledgling after an accident to the tree had destroyed his nest, and it was soon apparent that he had failed to develop the natural predatory instincts to make his own way on the outside.

BUT IF ONE of these birds or animals shows stress or other harmful effects when brought into the classrooms, it is spared that ordeal and left to live in peace in the sanctuary of the museum.

"But," Mrs. Maxwell reiterates "it is best to leave wild birds and wild animals in their natural environment whenever possible."

The Boyd Museum has contracts with all the elementary school districts of the county and with the county schools office for its special education classes and its Head Start programs.

THE ONLY Marin public schools not reached by the natural science sessions are four of the Dixie School District schools although the other schools in that district are served.

There are also contracts with a number of private and parochial elementary schools including Marin Country Day, Covey, St. Rita's, Blessed Sacrament, 3 Rs and St. Raphael's.

Boyd Museum has a contract for regular work with the ABC Nursery School, and has "on-call" arrangements with a number of other nursery schools in the county.

IT PARTICIPATES in the creative workshop program at the Alpha Schools and with various groups such as Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

Public schools reimburse Boyd Museum at a rate of 10 cents per year for each student in average daily attendance. Private schools pay $7.50 an hour for the in-school service.

"And the rest of the cost comes from museum funds, largely contributions" says teacher-naturalist Gay Maxwell.

BOYD MUSEUM personnel have been going into Marin schools to acquaint children with some of the facts of nature and science for a number of years. But it was not until last September with the start of the current school term that the present more extensive and better organized program was launched.

"It is still an experimental program" Mrs. Maxwell says.

And her hopes are that after it has definitely proven its worth, it can be expanded to reach still more Marin boys and girls.

MRS. MAXWELL and Mary Jo Newell – a school teacher not teaching regular classes this year and described by Gay as a "a superb" co-worker – have now completed their initial round of visits to the classrooms of the schools with which the museum has natural science education arrangements. The children contacted have all performed "homework" projects — essays, drawings, observation records, etc.

The remainder of the school year will see them on "stand-by duty," ready to answer calls for second follow-up visits to those schools where administrators and teachers feel such a service would be beneficial.

"BUT WE HOPE," says Gay Maxwell "that we have now laid the ground work upon which the regular classroom teachers can build. They are expected to take over from where we left off, with our very basic summary of ecology and what it is and fill in the more detailed natural science pictures."

Gay Maxwell is a graduate of College of Notre Dame where she majored not in the natural sciences, but in business and drama.

"But I did take science courses and I enjoyed them thoroughly" she says.

AND SHE ADDS: "Besides, I think a great deal of the natural sciences are learned not through formal classroom or laboratory study but through a kind of osmosis and by doing. That is the kind of learning we try to stimulate the children into doing on their own, to supplement their classroom guidance."

Gay Maxwell's teaching career began in 1960 in San Mateo County where for four years she taught humane education – "pretty much the same thing as I am teaching here but with even greater emphasis on wild animals" — under Peninsula Humane Society auspices.

It was there she met and later married Paul Maxwell, who was working in the society's shelter with its large animals.

THE MAXWELLS came to Marin and the Boyd Museum in March of 1969.

Before that, there was a stay in San Luis Obispo where Paul finished his schooling at Cal Poly and where the Maxwells cared for five foster children and began the rearing of their own two youngsters, Tad, now almost 5, and Lacy, soon to turn 2.

ABOVE, Isabel the ferret, a resident of the Louise A. Boyd Natural Science Museum in San Rafael, proves a docile and appealing model as naturalist-teacher Gay Maxwell makes a point about mammals in her in-school ecology education visit to a St. Raphael's School fourth grade classroom. As part of the program, Mrs. Maxwell has now visited virtually every school in Marin.

George The Owl Goes To School

Maxwell when she visits a Marin classroom as the presence of George the owl or Wetback the coatimundi is her own electric personality and enthusiasm.

"I WANT TO make natural sciences exciting to the children," she says. "To accomplish that I'm always looking for new and different approaches."

Early reception to her efforts indicate that she succeeds. Principals and teachers generally are enthusiastic.

But the most satisfying result that can come to young Mrs. Maxwell is when one of the school children who has heard her in the classroom visits Boyd Museum in San Rafael's Albert Park for the first time, to find out more about George or the ferret. Or just to seek out some of the answers and links in nature's grand scheme generally.

HOW OFTEN does a child have an opportunity to pet a ferret? Priscilla Hofmeister enjoys the experience at St. Raphael's School. And so, apparently, does Isabel.

AS CHILDREN HAVE done for generations, Mark Berardi, St. Raphael's School fourth grader, "listens" to the sounds of a seashell, held here by Gay Maxwell, who is conducting a lesson on marine life as part of the Boyd Natural Science Museum's in-school natural science education program.

THE LESSON HERE is Indian life, and Gay Maxwell helps Albert Boro, St. Raphael's fourth grader, don the skin and fur of a mountain lion to demonstrate the kind of garments worn by California's Miwok tribe.

Bergen Has A Cause To Celebrate

Norway's most exciting event for visitors in 1970 is the year long celebration of Bergen's ninth centenary.

Nine hundred years ago the tiny village was founded in Norway's fjord country, and from it Norsemen sailed to discover the western world.

Once Norway's capital and today still a beautiful fjord city, Bergen and its citizens promise visitors a delightful experience, no matter what the time of year.

Activities include a "Meet the Bergensers" program, daily welcome tea parties, folk dances, fjord cruises, recitals at composer Edvard Grieg's home, cultural tours, open-air dances, brass bands, light shows and sports events.

BERGEN WILL especially shine from May 13 to 27 during its 18th international festival of drama, folklore and music linked with the works of Grieg.

Bergen grows in importance daily as the new gateway not only to Norway, but to all of Scandinavia. Scandinavian Air-

Air Fares Are Down For 1970

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

There are two indisputable facts about new air fares to Europe in 1970.

First, while inflation has spiraled the cost of almost everything else in the past few years, air fares will be the lowest in the history of aviation.

Second, the trans-Atlantic fare structure is even more confusing than ever.

FOR EXAMPLE, did you know it is possible for one passenger to pay more than four times as much as another passenger on the same flight from New York to London, Paris, Rome or other European capitals?

It's so.

Here's how: the highest round-trip fare on the New York-London route is $750, first class for individual passengers, effective year-round and valid for a full year. The lowest fare is $170 for a passenger who is part of an affinity group of at least 80 members flying during a limited off-season period.

BETWEEN THESE extremes there are more than 30 different fares.

They depend on certain factors: What class will you fly? What season: What day: What hour? How long will you remain overseas? Are you traveling as an individual or as part of a group? What's the type and size of your group? Will you purchase a prepaid tour from your airlines or travel agent?

Are you a member of the Armed Forces? A student? A merchant seaman?

DEPENDING ON your answers and your destination, your fare to Europe can range from well under $200 to more than $1,000.

A word of caution, however. This may not be the final word on fares.

At this writing, trans-Atlantic and other area fares are still being discussed by the International Air Transport Association and there may be some minor revisions. All major international air carriers adhere to IATA decisions and charge the same fares on the same routes.

COMPLICATING the situation further is Icelandic Airlines, a scheduled carrier but nonmember of IATA which flies prop-jet services between New York and the European continent via Iceland.

The flight takes longer—roughly about twice as long as by jet—but it has the lowest fares on the trans-Atlantic route, as low as $150 round-trip per person on affinity group flights from New York to Luxembourg, or $185 on the same route for individual passengers on off-season excursion flights.

It is obvious, therefore, that a little information could help save hundreds of dollars on flights to Europe this year.

THE MORE than 30 different IATA jet fares fall into six major categories on scheduled flights:

Regular fares, offered year round in first and economy classes.

Excursion fares, which specify the minimum and—or maximum time which the passenger must remain overseas—14 to 21 days, 22 days or more, 29 to 45 days, etc.

Inclusive Tour I.T. fares, in which the passenger must prepurchase at least $70 of tour and other ground arrangements in Europe to qualify for a reduced excursion fare.

Group Inclusive Tour fares, which require the pre-purchase of at least $70 of ground tour arrangements, plus formation of a non-affinity group of at least 15 passengers traveling together on the same eastbound and westbound flights in order to qualify for a further reduced 14 to 21 day excursion fare.

Bulk fares, which are similar to the GIT, but require a group of at least 40 passengers and the pre-purchase of at least $100 in tour arrangements overseas for a further reduction in 14 to 21 day excursion rates. Individual passengers can book all the above fares, as airlines and travel agents will organize the non-affinity groups when necessary.

Then there are the Affinity and Incentive Group fares, in which passengers must be members in good standing of a bonafide organization business, fraternal, social, etc. and travel in groups of at least 25, 40, or 80. The bigger the group, the lower the fare.

WITH THE exception of the regular first class fare, all others change with the seasons, which are generally classified as "high" in mid-summer, "shoulder" in the spring and fall, and "low" in winter.

Using Paris as a destination from New York for example, the lowest round-trip rates in each of the six categories would be $794 regular first class; $464 economy in Regular Fares, $285 on a new winter excursion rate, $301 on an I.T. fare; $260 on a GIT fare; $184 on a Bulk Fare; and $175 on an 80-passenger Group Affinity Fare.

lines now operates jet express services to Bergen from New York, Chicago, Los Angeles, Anchorage and Montreal, and the luxury liners of the Norwegian American Line call at Bergen on their way from New York to Oslo and Copenhagen.

From Bergen there are package tours in all directions—fjord cruises and coastal voyages, midnight sun excursions, and the famed package tours between Bergen and Oslo.

NEW IN 1970 is the "Discovery Tour" between Stavanger and Oslo, which takes in the sunny south coast, a top-grade tour which is tailor-made for American visitors.

The new travel trend among American visitors to Scandinavia is to take in the famous sights of North Norway, the "Land of the Midnight Sun." Seeing the midnight sun means, literally, watching a never-setting sun blazing above the horizon and brightening the sky with fantastic colors at an hour when your watch tells you there ought to be darkness.

Several places in the world witness the same phenomenon, but Norway offers the best vantage points, ranging from Bodo to the North Cape and Spitsbergen, and adds the beauty of fjords and mountains, exotic settings, opportunities for good fishing, hunting, photographing and well-planned tours.

OSLO'S EMERGENCE as the vigorous new "City of the Arts" in Scandinavia, offering everything from fine arts and industrial design to the performing and culinary arts, is making Vikingland's capital city increasingly popular as a year-round attraction.

Oslo has a wide range of cultural attractions that cannot be seen in any other city.

How Western Is Japan?

JAPAN: IMAGES AN REALITIES by Richard Halloran; Knopt, 281 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

The visitor to Japan, alighting from his plane at Haneda Airport in Tokyo, is struck by the modernity of the facility and by the crowds of Japanese travelers in Western-style clothing.

Taking the taxi or the monorail downtown to his sumptuous Western-style hotel, he is impressed by skyscrapers, urban traffic and that most Western of phenomena — smog.

It is easy to jump to the conclusion that the similarities between Tokyo and Los Angeles, and by extension, Japan and the United States are the reality and the people in kimonos, the Japanese-style homes and the stylized formalism in personal relationships are the passing image of a Mikado-like Japan that is no more.

Richard Halloran is concerned that Western observers of Japan continue to overestimate the degree to which that country has actually been "Westernized" since the mid-19th Century. It is his opinion that " . . . Japan in the mid-20th Century has not become Western in the essence of its national character." Furthermore, that Japan " . . . is heading into a time in which traditional Japanese values and ways are becoming even stronger in determining the course of the nation and the lives of its people."

The importance of Halloran's contention lies in the fact that if it is true, Americans who ignore this reality may well be building personal, business and foreign policy relationships on a foundation of imaginary assumptions. Our thinking about Japan's future world role may falsely be built on the belief that Japan will follow a path based on Western logic, when, in fact, Japanese decision-making will be more influenced by Oriental ways of thought.

Halloran's warning is relevant and important — be careful, Westerners, because reasoning from false premises can only lead to false conclusions.

Halloran's credentials for shedding light on this complex question are impressive. He has an advanced degree from the University of Michigan's Center for Japanese Studies. In addition to military service in the Far East, he has spent the better part of a decade as Far Eastern specialist for first, Business Week, and subsequently the Washington Post.

In a remarkably insightful chapter, entitled "We Japanese", Halloran puts himself and the reader in the position of seeing life through the eyes of an average middle-class Japanese. He is so successful in this, that for a moment we understand the network of obligations which dominate the life of a Japanese.

He also shows us the premium the Japanese put on order. In their hierarchy of virtues, order and the honoring of traditional relationships outrank individual freedom as a colonel outranks a corporal.

For any person planning to visit Japan, and hoping for more than a superficial understanding of his experiences, this is an excellent introductory work. Unless the reader already is quite familiar with the fabric of Japanese life, I would urge him to begin reading at Chapter 9 ("We Japanese") and then go on to read the entire volume.

RICHARD HALLORAN, author of "Japan: Images and Realities," is a veteran observer of and writer on the Far East.

Tiburon Man Charts A Section Of The Westward Trail

THE GREAT PLATTE RIVER ROAD by Merrill J. Mattes; Nebraska State Historical Society, 521 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

So thoroughly have the routes of America's western migration been covered by now that the historians are beginning to divide them into pieces.

Such is the case with "The Great Platte River Road."

Merrill J. Mattes of Tiburon, who is employed in the National Park Service's office of regional planning in San Francisco, has taken the stretch of the Oregon-California Trail from the Missouri River to Fort Laramie and studied and charted it in detail. Included are the numerous variants in the early part of the route, all of which converged on one side or the other of the Platte River to become the "Great Platte River Road."

Mattes gathered most of the material for his impressively detailed study while he was superintendent of Scotts Bluff National Monument and, later, in the Midwest regional office of the National Park Service in Omaha, where he served as regional historian. He has produced a study in depth of 400 miles of the road (or roads) over which the greatest migration in our nation's history rode, rolled and walked from 1841 until the arrival of the transcontinental railroad.

This reviewer found the arrangement of "The Great Platte River Road" a bit unsatisfactory; but as a study of the movement across the plains, it is impressive, and as a history resource book, of much value.

When Disaster Rode The Rails

TRAIN WRECK! by Wesley S. Griswold; Stephen Greene Press, 150 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Bryce W. Anderson.

There is a fascination in train wrecks that does not attach to other forms of land or even air transportation. It may be morbid, but it cannot be denied.

Wesley S. Griswold, editor and railroad buff, has gathered 19 famous wrecks from 1833 to 1958 between covers in "Train Wreck!"

The accounts are drawn largely from newspaper stories of the time, and are illustrated with drawings for the early disasters and photographs for the later ones. They are well told, and there is no escaping their interest.

A hint of the decline of railway passenger service is also in the book.

The 19th Century wrecks are of excursion trains and long-run "flyers." Those of recent years, except for one involving an empty troop train in World War II, are of short-run commute trains. The "flyers" and excursion trains are of the past.

AN ARTIST'S impression of the collapse of the Ashtabula, Ohio, railroad bridge is included among the illustrations in "Train Wreck!" by Wesley S. Griswold.

An Issue That May Well Be Past The Discussion Stage

By DON KEOWN

AMERICA THE VANISHING edited by Samuel R. Ogden; Stephen Greene Press, 242 pages, $6.95.

OWL by William Service; Knopf, 93 pages, $4.

Like tolerance, justice and peace, conservation and the control of pollution apparently are issues that have moved past the discussion into the action stage.

Everything that can be said about the crucial need to conserve our resources and to cleanse our environment must have been said by now.

Those not convinced will never be convinced. And it is up to the remainder of us to get on with the job.

"America the Vanishing," therefore, despite the merit of its contents, faces an uphill struggle in contesting for our attentions. It is, after all, only more discussion, though certainly learned and perceptive, of what has been already much talked about.

Indeed, it is, quite literally, repetition of earlier dialogue. For Samuel R. Ogden, Vermont writer, legislator and conservationist, has assembled classic writings from the 17th Century down to the present on the American environment, its virgin beauty and its ultimate destruction.

We must confess some resentment at what we thought a misleading subtitle: "Rural Life and the Price of Progress."

From that, we expected a collection of nostalgic pieces about the quiet and simplicity of country or village life. And remembering the wonder of this past autumn, sitting on the 40-year-old swing on the front porch of our family home in a small Kansas town and hearing for 10 minutes at a time not a sound except the twittering of birds, we looked forward to these warmly.

There are some such selections. But the "rural life" is overshadowed by the wilderness that came before it, and by the "price of progress" that came after.

So, though conservation is generally a subject that holds us, this time we found our interest lagging. Even the presence of such distinguished writers as Thomas Morton, John J. Audubon, Francis Parkman, John Muir, Nathaniel Hawthorne, Henry David Thoreau, William Dean Howells, Mark Twain, Hamlin Garland, David Grayson, Whittaker Chambers, Hal Borland, Edwin Way Teale, E. B. White, Rachel Carson, Joseph Wood Krutch and Harrison Brown did not work, totally. Literate all, and brilliant observers or courageous critics. But their reports and messages had an overly-familiar ring.

Perhaps we still do need to be told, as Barry Commoner does tell us, that "our technological society has committed a blunder familiar to us from the 19th Century . . . by plundering the earth's natural resources . . ." and that "the same thing is happening today, but now we are stealing from future generations not just their lumber or their coal, but the basic necessities of life—air, water and soil." And that "a new conservation movement is needed to preserve life itself."

Or to be reminded by Joseph Wood Krutch that ". . . if neither we nor any other nation had so many scientists (in the past), we should not be so desperately in need of still more of them now! The greatest proportion of those we do need, we need primarily to protect us against their fellow scientists in other lands."

But more basic is an earlier admonition: "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under heaven."

For conservation-minded persons, the season and time for talk and study have passed. Now is the time and the season for action.

CERTAINLY one of the most appealing "animal books" published in 1969 is "Owl" by William Service.

It is a small gem, the biography of an orphaned baby screech owl adopted and reared by the Service family inside their home.

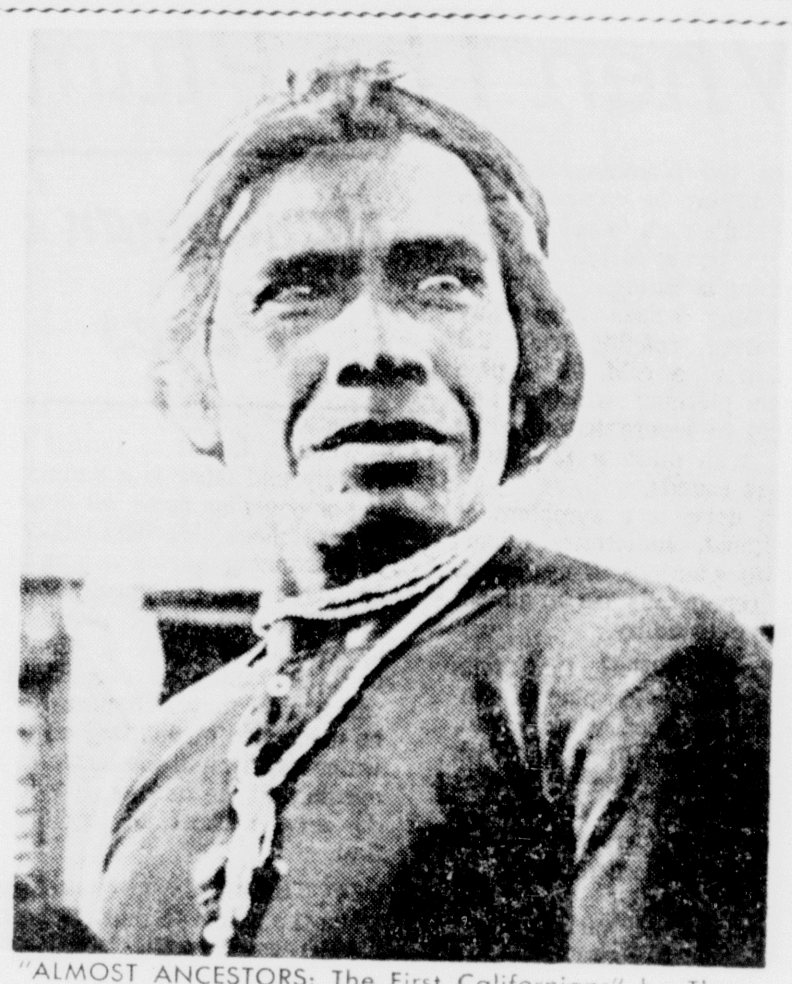
The book, parts of which appeared in Sports Illustrated, has two things going for it that lift it well above the usual work of its kind.

First, there is the unique charm of the tiny subject whose personality came to dominate the Service household.

And, second, there is the special ability of Service to capture in writing the qualities, habits and attitudes of Owl. Without being precious, cute or condescending, Service strikes just the right tone in recording the antics of the little screech owl with his strange blend of mischievous curiosity and stubborn inscrutability. The narration is informal, striking a conversational note, with the dialogue aimed sometimes at the reader and sometimes at Owl himself. The humor is gentle. And the reader relives with the Services the rare experience of sharing the life of a wild thing that, rather than be tamed, instead imposed by sheer willpower his own particular stamp upon an unnatural domicile.

"There is something not quite rational about Owl," observes Service. "I might even call him irrational. Even anti-rational."

"Owl" is for pleasure-time reading, and you finish the book all too soon. A few sketches by Walter Richards contribute to your enjoyment.



"ALMOST ANCESTORS: The First Californians" by Theodora Kroeber and Robert F. Heizer, a Sierra Club book on the tribes that once lived along the Pacific Coast but have been virtually exterminated, contains more than 100 photographs taken from the archives of the Lowie Museum at the University of California and the Southwest Museum, including the one above. All have been reproduced in a new $3.95 paperback reprint edition published by Ballantine Books.

Sleuths & Suspense

THE SAND ROSE by Margaret Summerton; Doubleday, 191 pages, $4.50. Reviewed by Shirley Graves.

This Crime Club Selection is a rousing adventure story written for those who like to face danger in the comfort of their favorite chair.

Rachel Clement accepted with pleasure when her brother, whom she had not seen for many years, suggested she spend a month or so at his home in Tunisia. However, at the beautiful Villa Jasmine she got anything but the rest she wanted. An atmosphere of mystery laid heavily on the villa; the visitors she heard every night made her uneasy, but Raymond evaded her questions about them. Then he berated her for allowing an injured man to enter the villa for help.

Through it all, Raymond's Arab wife, Suli, kept to her room.

To get away for a while Rachel accepted an invitation from friends of Raymond leaving on an expedition into the desert, only to find that, by agreeing to deliver a package for Suli, she has taken all of the danger of the villa with her and placed her new friends in jeopardy also.

The author is an Englishwoman who was a newspaper reporter before she began her successful career writing mysteries and other novels.

When The Plumbing Rumbles And Groans

Handyman's Pages

When the plumbing in your house begins to compete with your child's rock 'n roll recordings, it's trying to tell you that something is wrong.

Plumbing noises are many and varied, ranging from the drip-drip of a cold water pipe through piercing whistles and chatters to severe hammer-like bangs, with quite a few other assorted sounds.

Each noise is a symptom of an ailment, sometimes minor, sometimes serious. If neglected, major repair bills are an almost certain eventuality.

THE DRIPPING that falls from a cold water pipe is condensation, formed when warm, moist air comes in contact with a cold surface. The solution is relatively simple: wrap some sort of covering around the pipe to prevent the warm air from hitting it.

Hardware and various other stores carry different kinds of pipe wrappings for just such a purpose.

When a faucet is turned off rapidly and there is a hammering or pounding noise, air chambers or shock absorbers or pressure-reducing valves are needed. This requires professional attention, but if the plumbing system already has air chambers, they may be clogged, in which case they sometimes can be unclogged by shutting off the water supply into the house and opening all the faucets. It won't do any harm to try this first.

IF THERE IS a chattering when the faucet is shut off, turn off the water to the fixture and take out the spindle that holds the washer. If nothing seems to be loose or wrong, the chattering may be caused by a vibrating pipe which has come loose from its strap or hanger along one of the beams or joists.

Reattach it or buy a new support.

When water rushes down a sink or tub drain and makes a sucking noise, it indicates a clogged vent, an improper vent or no vent at all. Whether this will be a major or minor repair depends on local codes, some of which permit the installation of an anti-siphon trap, but others which insist on proper venting even if an anti-siphon trap is used.

IF THERE IS a rumbling noise in the vicinity of the hot water heater when the water is turned on, the water may be too hot. Every heater has an adjustment. Try turning the control down to between 140 and 160 degrees.

If this doesn't work, you'll need a plumber.

In an old house, noises in the pipes can result from inadequate pipe passages, caused by the deposit of rust and mineral particles. When it occurs in a new house, it may mean that the pipes aren't large enough or that a pressure-reducing valve is required.

WHEN THERE IS a whistle while the toilet tank is filling up, the flow of water into the tank should be increased. There usually is an adjustment by the float valve to permit this.

If there is a humming sound caused by dripping into the toilet bowl, the stopper ball at the bottom of the tank isn't seating properly. It needs a new ball or, if the ball is in good condition, the opening on which the ball sits may require smoothing with an emery cloth.

Paneling Will Hide Those Wall Cracks

Tongue-and-groove boards are blind-nailed to the furring strips, with the nail set through the board's tongue. Each board is plumbed separately, using the tongue-and-groove for adjustment.

CORNICE moldings and base shoes are removed before the paneling is installed, then are replaced.

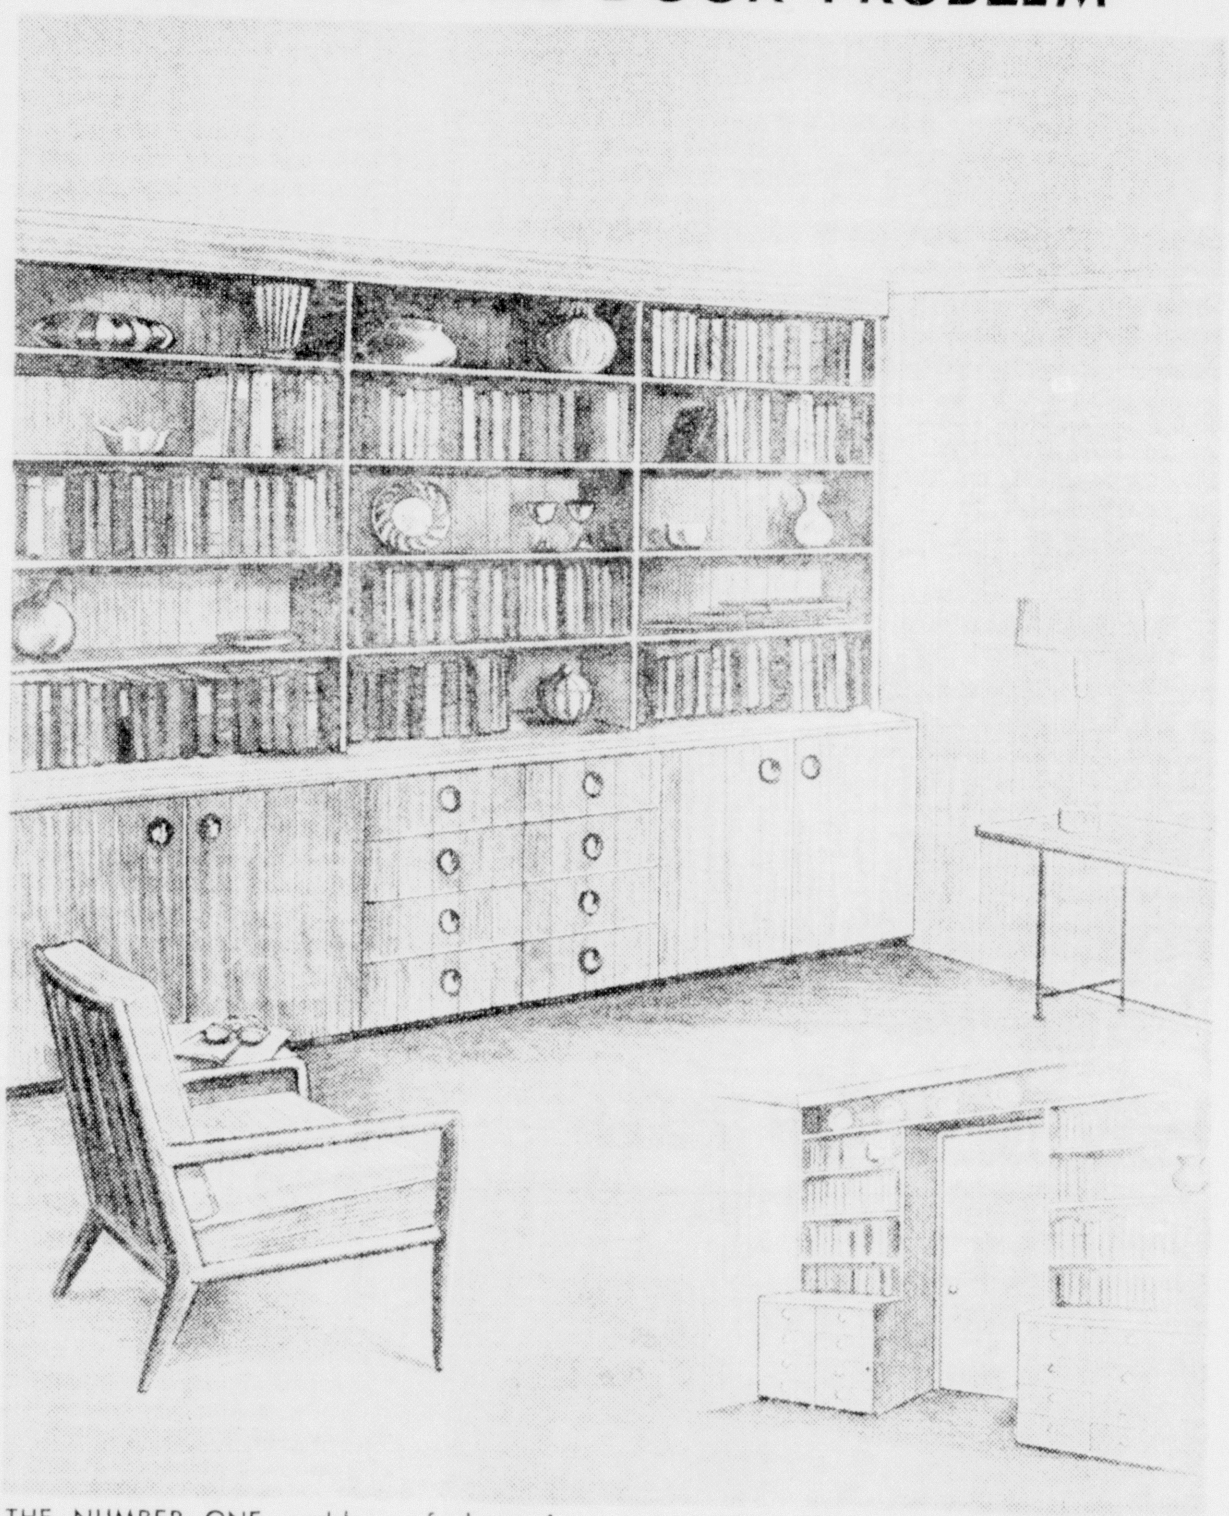
Panel board patterns and finishes can be chosen to suit any style of room interior. A full-color booklet of ideas is available for just 10 cents in coin. Write to "Paneling," Dept. 504-P, Western Wood Products Association Yeon Building, Portland, Ore. 97204.

Older homes are frequently an excellent buy for the young, growing family, but almost always they require extensive redecorating.

Old plastered walls that are cracked, bulging or out of plumb are a special problem. Many interior designers recommend simply covering them up with an entirely new wall surface of lumber paneling.

THE JOB is relatively simple. For vertical paneling, three furring strips, usually 1x2-inch pieces, are mounted over the existing wall, one at the top, one centered, and one just above the base shoe. The furring strips are screwed through the plaster and into the wall studs behind.

SOLVING THE BOOK PROBLEM



THE NUMBER ONE problem of decor in many a Marin home is what to do with the books. The conventional bookshelf space is soon exhausted. And books begin to spill everywhere. One solution is to build your own wall-to-wall bookcase. And you can do it with the help of Easi-Bild Pattern 719, available for $1 from Independent-Journal, Post Office Box 215, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., 10510. Be sure to include your zip code number.

A RHODOENDRON in full bloom has been likened to a festive party at its height. But along with the lavish beauty of its showy flowers, see photo at left, it boasts a broadleaf evergreen foliage that blends ideally with other plant materials in a landscape. There are rhododendrons in all sizes, shapes and colors, suited to every gardening plan. And most of them flourish in Marin County's soil and climate, providing they are given a location with partial shade. At Marin's nurseries, the rhododendron shrubs are beginning to show buds, and sometime next month they will be bursting forth in their annual explosion of color. But there is no reason why you can't pick your rhododendrons now.

The Rhododendron -- A Marin Favorite

The rhododendron is a well-established favorite with Marin gardeners for areas with partial shade.

And with good reason. For there is nothing that will surpass or even equal the regal splendor of a rhododendron in full bloom.

Their spectacular blooming show will not begin until February. But unless you simply must see them in flower so that you can select the exact color shape and size of bloom to fit your special gardening needs, there is no reason to wait a month before planting your new rhododendrons.

YOU CAN PUT them in the ground now and let them enjoy the benefits of the rains that will most certainly fall in the next few weeks.

A rhododendron, even without its bloom, is not to be scorned. Its handsome foliage is a year-around attraction in the garden.

Hybridizers have succeeded in stretching the geographical range of the rhododendron greatly. They have expanded too the variety of colors forms and sizes from small-scaled plantings for mini-gardens to tree-like giants for huge estates.

MOST VARIETIES do well in Marin's climate.

Marin nurserymen now carry a large assortment of rhododendrons from which to choose, some of them already bearing buds soon to burst into glorious bloom.

Give your rhododendrons filtered sun or partial shade. Ask your nurseryman for his soil moisture and feeding recommendations for the variety or varieties you have chosen. Follow his directions and you will be rewarded with a long season of breathtaking beauty that makes a most distinctive addition to your garden landscape.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Brighten your garden with a spring flowering tree. Have your nurseryman tell you about flowering peaches, plums, cherries, crabapples and other flowering trees he has available.

✓Set out calendulas, Iceland poppies, pansies, violas, and fairy primroses for late winter bloom.

✓Another don't: Refrain from pruning spring-flowering trees and shrubs until after or while they are blooming. Otherwise, you lose your flowers.
